TWO PARTIES ARISE OUT OF SPLIT OVER FARMER-LABOR REDS

Group Which Called Chicago Harmony Conference Proceeds to Adopt Its Own Name.

OPPOSES "MOSCOW RULE"

Fitzpatrick of Illinois Delegation Leads Fight Against Bowing to Communists.

RUTHENBERG HEADS OTHER

New Federated Party Puts Five Former Opponents on Its Executive Committee.

CHICAGO, July 6 (Associated Press).—The Federated Farmer-Labor Party and the Farmer-Labor Party of the United States, with individual platforms and candidates, are announced as entries in the 1924 political field.

The majority of the Farmer-Labor Party today refused to affiliate with the federated organization, a group born in the Farmer-Labor Convention, and decided upon a platform and ticket of its own. A minority went over to the Federated Party, splitting the Farmer-Labor organization.

The National Executive Committee of the Federated Party accepted five of the bolting Farmer-Laborites as members of its Executive Committee and proceeded to the selection of an Executive Council and an intensive program of activity. Headquarters of the Federated Party probably will be here, C. E. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, convicted in Michigan of communistic tendencies and a leader in the new party, announced.

The Farmer-Labor convention was adjourned after a day of oratory over a motion of M. Toscan Bennett, member of the party's National Executive Committee, which would have placed five of its members on the federated group's Executive Committee with reservations. After its defeat Bennett announced he would abide by the decision, but the minority faction filed out.

Fitzpatrick's Opposition Felt.

Nonparticipation by the Farmer-Labor Party with the federated orginization, which Bennett characterized as "threatening the suicide of the Farmer-Labor Party," was not shared by the sold Illinois unit, which is credited by its speakers with having established "a clean break with the extreme radicals; is unshackled of a possible red menace and is on its feet stronger than ever in the pursuit of independent political satisfaction."

John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who declined the chairmanship of today's meeting in favor of Robert M. Buck, Chicago labor leader and editor, sounded the keynote of nonparticipation on the part of the Farmer-Labor Party and it stuck throughout a siege of the minority.

"We want political betterment for the workers and farmers, but we want control through the ballot in our own ranks and not from a dictatorship in Russia," Fitzpatrick asserted. "Union men and women will not subscribe to the tinted platform of the Federated Part—its leadership of Ruthenberg, William Z. Foster and Joseph Manley being sufficient to describe its communistic principles."

The repudiation of the Federated Party came soon after the reading of a communication from President Brophy of District 2, United Mine Workers of Pennsylvania, which said his organization could not deal with the Federated Party "because it has a philosophy contrary to the principles we are fighting for."

How much strength the Farmer-Labor Party lost in its membership by the minority bolt could not be definitely learned, although John C. Kennedy, Secretary of the Washington State Farmer-Labor branch, claimed that the units from his State and from Ohio, Minnesota, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Montana, Idaho and California, went over. The claim was denied by Jay G. Brown, National Secretary.

Executive Committee Choices.

The five former Farmer-Labor delegates elected to the Federated Executive Committee are C. J. Stevens of Kentucky, Mrs. Mary D. Bright, Cincinnati; John C. Kennedy, Washington State; Richard Swift, Illinois; J. F. Rasmiller, Wisconsin. William Bouck of Washington, Chairman of the conference in which the Federated Party was created, was elected National Chairman of the party; Joseph Manley of New York, representing the structural iron workers, National Secretary, and W. H. Green of Nebraska, representing the Progressive Party, Vice Chairman. Ruthenberg announced that the committee would draft an invitation to the Cleveland conference to unite with the Federated Party.

The party's constitution calls for a nominating convention to be held in December or next January.

Secretary Brown said his party would immediately approach all groups of workers who could accept its principles and solicit their affiliation. The National Committee will meet soon to determine the date for its nominating convention.

The original purpose in the call of the Farmer-Labor Party for its convention and conference with representatives of all minority political parties and economic, industrial, agrarian, cooperative and labor groups was to reach a common ground for political procedure.

Upward of 800 delegates responded, all of whom were seated in the Farmer-Labor Convention the first day. The convention was adjourned to meet in conference the next day with all delegates to discuss a platform of harmony, which resulted in the conference being taken away from the Farmer-Labor Party and its name, part of its structure and plat-

Clash of Greeks and Turks On Dardanelles Reported

SOFIA, July 6 (Associated Press).—A report received tonight from Constantinople says that the Greeks attempted to land a regiment at Kara-Burun, near the Dardanelles, and that the Turks repulsed them after severe fighting.

There were many casualties on both sides, the report says.

In the fighting a Turkish torpedoboat sank a Greek ship, according to the Constantinople report, and many were drowned.

Kara-Burun is a cape on the Asiatic coast of the Sea of Marmora, about thirty-five miles east of the town of Gallipoli.

ARMOUR SELLS BLOCK OF HIS BANK SHARES

Holdings Disposed Of Are Reported to Be Worth Several Million Dollars.

WERE PLEDGED FOR LOAN

He Had Borrowed $20,000,000 When Packing Firm Reorganized—Shares Go on Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—J. Ogden Armour, Chairman of Armour & Co., has sold several million dollars of his stock holdings of Chicago banking institutions. It was announced this afternoon that Mr. Armour had disposed of a "substantial block" of stock of the Continental and Commercial National Bank to a banking syndicate, which will offer the shares publicly to investors.

The exact amount of stock to be offered was not made known, but recent publication of Chicago bank stockholders' lists showed Mr. Armour as the holder of 14,109 shares of the Continental Bank. At today's market price of around $270 a share the aggregate value of this stock would be about $3,800,000.

"No fixed price has been placed on the bank stock which will be offered, but it is expected to start the sale at $272 a share," a statement issued by the banking syndicate explained. "The book value of the stock on June 30 was $247.

"At the time of reorganization of Armour & Co. recently, Mr. Armour negotiated a personal loan of $20,000,000 with a number of banks, depositing as collateral thereto a number of stocks, including a substantial amount of the stock of the Continental and Commercial National Bank. Mr. Armour desires to liquidate his personal obligation as rapidly as possible, and has sold to a syndicate of bankers a substantial block of his stock."

The offering of the stock is to be made through the firms of Mitchell, Hutchins & Co. and Blair & Co., and also through the Continental and Commercial National Bank. Mr. Armour has been known as the largest holder of bank stocks in the Middle West and one of the largest such holders in the country. Recent publication of bank stockholder lists showed the packer as possessing, in addition to 14,109 shares of Continental and Commercial, a total of 1,836 shares in the Central Trust Company, 313 First National, 98 Harris Trust, 390 Live Stock Exchange, 200 Northern Trust Company and 350 Stock Yards Savings, a total value of nearly $5,000,000.

It is understood that Mr. Armour has recently disposed of part of his holdings in other Chicago banks, including 848 shares of the Illinois Trust Savings Bank which had a market value around $340,000 previous to consolidation with the Merchants Loan and Trust Company.

The value of his holdings has been placed at nearly $5,000,000. First place now will go to the Norman W. Harris Estate, with holdings estimated as worth around $4,000,000 in the stock of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank.

The sale of Mr. Armour's stock in the Continental Bank will mark the first public offering of shares of any of the large Chicago banking institutions. Previously the older institutions have sold their shares to their stockholders whenever increases in capitalization were made.

Coming so shortly after the recent announcement of financial reorganization of Armour & Co., with Mr. Armour's securities in that company placed in the hands of a committee of bankers for administration, although he remains as chairman of the board of the reorganized packing company, the bank stock sale story was of great interest to financial men.

Reports have been circulated also of the contemplated sale of the Armour estate in Lake Forest, as well as in other holdings.

TIMES PLANE WINS RACE FROM SHELBY WITH FIGHT PHOTOS

FAST TRAINS WAITING HERE

Boston Post's Special Accorded Right of Way and Made a Record With the Prints.

ELEVEN MACHINES STARTED

Second Times Plane, With Duplicate Set of Photos, Also Arrives Safely.

THE NEW YORK TIMES airplane won the Dempsey-Gibbons fight photograph race to New York yesterday, and all photographs of the battle published in the East today were supplied through the Times Wide World Service. [Some of the pictures are reproduced in the sports pages (Pages 8 and 9) of this issue of THE TIMES.]

At 3:28 o'clock yesterday afternoon the big Curtiss airplane, Oriole, landed at Curtiss Field, Mineola, dropping down through the pelting rain, a trifle more than 40 hours after the bell in the fifteenth round had ended the bout at Shelby, Mont., 2,040 miles away. A short time later the developing laboratories in the Times Annex had turned about twenty-five plates into photographic negatives and prints were being made.

Special couriers were in readiness to dash for other cities where newspapers awaited the special service. At the Grand Central Terminal a three-car special train, engaged by The Boston Post, had been held ready. At 6:05 P. M., daylight time, a complete set of the pictures was handed to The Boston Post representatives, and seven minutes later the special train pulled out of the station for a record, with the right of way accorded it over the 234 miles of tracks to Boston. It made the record, getting to Boston in 4 hours and 5 minutes, the fastest time known on the New Haven Road.

8 Hours, 2 Minutes From Chicago.

A second TIMES airplane arrived at Curtis Field early last night. It carried duplicates of the photographs brought by the Oriole, and was dispatched from Chicago yesterday morning merely as a precaution against accident to the Oriole. The secondary airplane, however, did not have an opportunity to demonstrate its usefulnes, because the victorious Oriole, bucking the centre of some rainstorms, going above or around others, flew through the approximately 790 air miles from Chicago in eight hours and two minutes.

Every stage of the 2,040 miles through the air from the Montana oil town to New York had been charted out for the trip. Three airplanes were employed over the route that won the race to the East. Whenever a plane was forced down a special train was quickly made up and speeded to the next take-off place of the air carriers. Fast motorcars bridged the gaps between the special trains and the airplanes. Bulletins from men posted along the route enabled executives in THE TIMES Annex to maintain a constant check-up on the flight.

Associated with THE TIMES in the flight were the Newspaper Enterprise Association and the Pathé News. Several weeks before the fight, the photograph service by air was worked out. Three photographers were sent to Shelby in charge of J. V. Dumas of the Wide World Service. A Pullman car was hired and run onto a siding near the fight arena. A complete photographic workshop was established in the car, with developing tanks and all facilities for fast work.

Followed Fight With Camera.

Throughout the fifteen rounds of fighting the cameramen were busy snapping and when the final gong sounded the photographers hurried to the improvised developing room. Some of the photographs were quickly run through the developing process, but the majority was snapped into plateholders and rushed over to the Shelby "air field," where two NEW YORK TIMES airplanes were ready.

The first plane was piloted by J. W. Jacobson, a former army aviator. This plane was scheduled to fly all night and arrive in Chicago on Thursday morning. The second plane was piloted by Dallas M. Speers, former Captain in the Aviation Service. Its route was from Shelby to Williston, N. D. Nine other

Federal Judge Holds Volstead Law Is Void Where It Limits Doctors' Prescriptions

HELENA, Mont., July 6 (Associated Press).—Congress once having said that alcohol can be used for medicinal purposes, cannot now dictate to the physician as to the number of whisky prescriptions he shall write or the quantity he shall prescribe, Federal Judge George M. Bourquin held today.

In his decision, which said part of the prohibition act was unconstitutional, Judge Bourquin invalidated the prosecution of Dr. J. B. Freund of Butte, who, it was charged, issued more than 100 prescriptions within a ninety-day period and prescribed more than one-half pint of alcohol to one patient in ten days.

The decision, in substance, held that Congress could not substitute its judgment for that of the physician, ruling similarly to Federal Judge Knox of New York, who on May 9 last granted an order restraining prohibition authorities from interfering with the practice of Dr. Samuel W. Lambert with respect to the amount of whisky which might be prescribed to one patient.

Judge Bourquin's ruling, however, goes further and holds that the portion of the Volstead act which seeks to limit the number of prescriptions is invalid, as well as that portion limiting the quantity prescribed. The invalid section with reference to the number of prescriptions is "nothing but an arbitrary restriction upon the number of patients a physician shall treat in ordinary course of circumstances, or is an unreasonable mandate to malpractice in respect to them," read the Court's decision.

Continuing, the Court said "that if therapeutics were an exact science and diseases and their courses of unvariable diagnosis and patients were all constituted alike," the provision arbitrarily fixing the amount of alcohol which could be prescribed might be valid, but "since in respect to all these factors the truth is otherwise, every patient presenting to the physician a different proble mfor solution, this provision of the statute is invalid."

The decision continues:

"It may be that even as legislation for reasons of health can compel vaccination, it might in like behalf extend prohibition of alcohol for therapeutic uses. But so long as legislation tolerates or sanctions such use of alcohol, the duty and judgment of the physician, the necessity and welfare of the patient and the right of both cannot be subjected to arbitrary and unreasonable legislative interference like the statutory provision aforesaid.

"The physician with unrestricted power to begin a course of treatment must have like power to finish it. Otherwise there may be dangers greater than involved by denial by any power, for the latter might be supplied by substitutes. These statutory provisions to restrain the judgment of physicians in the exercise of power to prescribe alcohol, which deprive physicians and patients of liberty without due process of law within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment, are unconstitutional."

The Court held that the Bureau of Internal Revenue had the power through its regulations to cope with abuse of the use of alcohol without attempting to dictate to the physician in the treatment of cases where alcohol was prescribed.

BALLOON IS MISSING WITH TWO OFFICERS

Navy Entrant A-5689, With Lieutenants Roth and Hull, Has Not Reported.

ONE SEEN OVER BAY STATE

Observers Think This May Be It —Another Drops on a Cliff on Lake Erie.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 6 (Associated Press).—All trace has been lost of Lieutenant L. J. Roth, navy airman and only starter in the national elimination balloon race, who has not been heard from, according to announcement made late this afternoon by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, sponsor for the race. Lieutenant T. B. Hull accompanied Lieutenant Roth as aid. The men came here from the naval training station at Lakehurst, N. J., for the contest.

The missing balloonists, as usual, were well supplied with card-bearing streamers, with instructions to drop them overboard as the craft drifted over cities and towns. Not a word, however, has been received here from the ship, known as the U. S. N. A-5698.

An official check, compiled at the Chamber of Commerce, gave Lieutenant Robert S. Olmstead, army balloonist, the lead in distance traveled over the eleven other pilots who have reported, bringing their ships to the ground. Lieutenant Olmstead descended at Marilla, N. Y. The distance between Indianapolis and Marillo on an airline is approximately 500 miles.

According to the check, H. E. Honeywell, St. Louis, piloting the St. Louis, traveled the next furthest distance—about 450 miles. He brought his balloon to the ground at Brocton, N. Y. Honeywell was the last pilot to report. Three other bags, piloted by Lieutenant J. B. Lawrence, Washington naval officer; C. E. McCullough, Baltimore, and Lieutenant L. T. Miller, army man located at Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., came to the ground about 400 miles from Indianapolis, it was said.

Honeywell and his aid, P. J. McCullough, had a harrowing experience while they were in the air, according to a telegram received from them by The Associated Press. At the mercy of storms, the craft was driven into Canada, then back into the United States again toward Lake Erie. Short of ballast, Honeywell determined to land and brought the ship down on a cliff 150 feet high and close to the edge of the water. The landing was effected in darkness, the time being 9:15 o'clock last night, according to the telegram.

Belief was expressed by Honeywell that he had traveled about 500 miles and had won a place on the three-balloon team which will represent the United States in the international contest in Belgium in September. He said both McCullough and he were badly sunburned and tired.

The following table gives the names of the entries, the names of the balloons, where they landed and the approximate distance traveled by each:

Lieutenant R. S. Olmstead, United States Army S-6, Marilla, N. Y., 500 miles.

H. E. Honeywell, St. Louis, Brocton, N. Y., 450 miles.

Lieutenant J. B. Lawrence, United States Navy A-6799, Glen Campbell, Pa., 400 miles.

C. E. McCullough, American Legionnaire, Frankfort Springs, Pa., 400 miles.

Captain L. C. Miller, United States Army S-5, Ford City, Pa., 400 miles.

Lieutenant F. B. Culbert, United States Navy A-6690, Alliance, Ohio, 310 miles.

Lieut. Commander J. P. Norfleet, United States Navy, 6074, Mount Eaton, Ohio, 300 miles.

Lieutenant J. B. Jordan, United States Army S-7, Macedonia, Ohio, 300 miles.

Jack Boettner, Goodyear II., Fremont, Ohio, 250 miles.

R. F. Donaldson, City of Springfield, Bryan, Ohio, 160 miles.

Ralph Upson, Detroit, Wapakoneta, Ohio, 150 miles.

W. T. Vanorman, City of Akron, Hartford City, 75 miles.

Balloon Seen Over Bay State.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 6.—A balloon, thought to be the lost naval entry in the national elimination contest, passed over Winchendon and Gardner at 2:30 this afternoon. It was flying too high to permit residents to give a description. The craft was heading north and sailing on an even keel.

10 IN KNIFE BATTLE ON CROWDED SUBWAY

Women and Children Huddle in Panic as Italian Laborers Fight in Car.

WILD RUSH AT STATION

Some Smash Through Windows —One Man Arrested, Several Wounded.

Panic-stricken women and children huddled together in one end of the first car of a B. M. T. west end express bound from Coney Island late yesterday afternoon, while ten Italian laborers, heedless of the screams, fought with drawn knives up and down the aisle. As the train sped into the station at Fort Hamilton Parkway with the whistle screeching for help there was a wild scramble for exits. Many passengers would not wait for the doors to open, but smashed their ways through windows to the platform and safety.

The arrival of police from the Fourth Avenue Station ended the battle, and the combatants fled, leaving two of their number on the floor of the car. Pasquale Napoli of 117 Willoughby Street, Brooklyn, was carried to the drug store of Pekarene & Adler, at 4,301 New Utrecht Avenue. His throat was badly slashed, and he was removed to Israel Zion Hospital in one of the ambulances that had been summoned. The second man, Tony Martini of 9 Bolivar Street, Brooklyn, was also taken to the drug store, as was Leon Briskman and a score of other passengers.

Briskman, who is a silk dealer, was on his way to his home at 2,252 Eighty-second Street, Brooklyn. During the melée, he was unable to get out of the way of the combatants and was stabbed in the left thigh.

Conductor Seizes One Man.

Antonio De Luca, of 264 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn, was taken to the Fourth Avenue Police Station, where he was locked up charged with felonious assault. Conductor Popio, of the B. M. T., who was in charge of the first car, told the police that he had seen De Luca attack Napoli with a knife. When the other combatants fled, Popio says he seized De Luca and with the aid of several passengers held him until the police arrived.

Meanwhile, in the drug store, Martini suddenly showed signs of insanity. Witnesses say he set about to demolish the store, and it required the combined efforts of six men to subdue him. One glass show case was shattered before this was accomplished. With the aid of a strait-jacket and the second ambulance, Martini was removed to the Kings County Hospital.

According to passengers, the fight started shortly after the train of six cars left the Bay Parkway station. The Italians, who were apparently laborers, got on at that point and seated themselves in a group in the rear of the first car. The forward part was well filled with women and children returning from a day's outing at Coney Island.

The train had hardly got under way, passengers say, before it became evident that the men had been drinking. One started to sing in Italian, whereupon another proceeded to take off his shoes. This last act aroused some objection on the part of the other men, and before any one was aware of what had happened knives were flashing and the entire car was in the throes of a panic.

The women and children, their escape to the rear cars cut off by the combatants, huddled together in the front. Their screams mingled with the cries of the fighters, and Motorman Mahoney, hearing the disorder, drove the train at top speed to the next station, never once releasing his hand from the whistle cord.

Police Hear Train Whistle.

Patrolman Petrosini and Detectives Ward and Osanato, near the Fort Hamilton Parkway Station, heard the whistle blast and reached the station just as the train pulled in and the passengers ran shrieking to the platform. But when they arrived at the first car they found only Conductor Popio, who, aided by passengers, was grappling with De Luca, and Napoli and Martini, who were crouched in a corner of the car. Several blood-stained jackknives lay scattered on the floor.

De Luca was arrested and the injured men removed to the drug store. Dr. Fred M. Margaretton of 4,602 Tenth

60,000 MEN NEEDED TO END 12-HOUR DAY IN MILLS, GARY SAYS

Can't Say Exactly When, but Companies Will Begin to Act Very Soon.

EFFORTS TO BE "DILIGENT"

Workers From South, Mexico, Philippines and Canada Have Helped Labor Situation.

TELLS POLICY OF PRODUCER

Shorter Day to Increase Cost of Steel 15 Per Cent.—Amplifies Statement to Harding.

"I can't say exactly when the United States Steel Corporation or any other company will get rid of the twelve-hour day entirely, but I can positively state that they will begin to act in that direction very soon and be very diligent in their efforts."

This statement was made yesterday by Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation and recognized spokesman of the steel industry of the country. He was amplifying the letter of the Directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute to President Harding promising to abolish the twelve-hour day when "there is a surplus of labor available."

Mr. Gary estimated the additional number of men needed in the industry to make the eight-hour day possible at 60,000. Men, however, coming from the South, from Mexico, the Philippines, Canada and other countries have made some showing, and, Mr. Gary said, increases are expected.

Mr. Gary, in his interview, outlined the policy of the steel producer in regard to the elimination of the twelve-hour day. "For several years," he said, "the steel industry has recognized the growing public sentiment."

Since President Harding called the steel leaders of the country to the White House fourteen months ago, he added, "practically all of the manufacturers of iron and steel in this country have positively agreed to the entire abolition of the twelve-hour day so soon as there is sufficient labor to permit it." This he regarded as "a wonderful achievement."

After telling of the prompt response by the steel men to President Harding's letter of June 18, Mr. Gary reviewed the twelve-hour situation. That the twelve-hour day was established by the workmen themselves was one of his statements. He said:

"The twelve-hour day in the steel industry was referred to at the stockholders' meeting of the Steel Corporation in April, 1914, by Mr. Smith, one of the workmen connected with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at one of the mills in Ohio, who, with others, made remarks which were taken down by the stenographer and written up and printed.

Start of the 12-Hour Day.

"In those remarks Mr. Smith said:

"'There is just one thing more about the twelve-hour day that perhaps the company should know and the stockholders, too. It may be wise and we appreciate the great effort that the Corporation has made to reduce the twelve-hour day to ten, or whatever it sees fit, and we feel the effects of their effort. They have done it to a great extent. But I notice when the criticism comes that the Corporation or employer gets all the criticism. I have had experience to the contrary. The facts are that the employer never established the twelve-hour day. I helped to establish it and every workingman who helped to build up the iron business helped to establish it, and the refusal in many cases to grant the twelve-hour day would have been a sufficient cause for a walkout many a time.'

"The twelve-hour day was started by the men long before the United States Steel Corporation was organized. I do not believe the twelve-hour day in the steel industry could have heretofore been entirely abolished by consent of all, or substantially all, of the employers in that industry. Certain it is that several and perhaps many of the employers, from the time of the Presidents' dinner in May, 1922, have been using every reasonable effort to eliminate the twelve-hour day. And now that within fourteen months practically all of the manufacturers of iron and steel in this country have positively agreed to the entire abolition of the twelve-hour day so soon as there is sufficient labor to

Rockefeller, 84 Tomorrow, To Have Quiet Celebration

John D. Rockefeller will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday tomorrow at his home, Pocantico Hills, near Tarrytown, N. Y. In the morning he will attend services at the New Community Church. At night members of the family and a few intimate friends are to be invited to the house, but the brass band which has been an indispensable part of previous birthday celebrations will be waived.

Mr. Rockefeller has been accustomed to have members of his family and many friends at his home for the birthday celebration, but last year, owing to the death of his brother, William Rockefeller, the customary observances were dispensed with.

GIVE $250,000 FUND TO EDUCATE YOUTHS

New Jersey Manufacturer and Wife Establish Endowment as Memorial to Their Son.

TO AID THE AMBITIOUS

Countrywide in Scope, but Passaic Employes of Julius Forstmann Will Get Preference.

Establishment of a fund with an initial capital of $250,000 to enable boys or young men to obtain an education was announced yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Julius Forstmann as a memorial to their son, Carl Edward Forstmann, who was killed in an automobile accident last August. Any youth who has ambition but lacks money is eligible.

Creation of the foundation was disclosed to the 4,500 employes of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company at Passaic, N. J., at noon yesterday, by Frank Kron, a clerk in the storeroom of the woolen manufacturing plant. Kron is a member of the employers-employes' council, which works out all the problems of management and workers at the plant, part of an elaborate welfare system installed by Mr. Forstmann as President.

Officially known as the Carl Forstmann Memorial Foundation, the fund has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey and will function through three trustees and a committee of awards and loans. The trustees are Colonel Robert H. Montgomery of New York and William F. Laporte and Mr. Forstmann of Passaic. The committee which will directly administer the fund is composed of Robert J. Scoles, President of the Passaic National Bank and Trust Company, Chairman; Robert M. Reinhold, Director of Industrial Relations at the plant, Secretary; Isaac W. England, President of the Passaic Metalware Company; the Rev. William Doidge, and Charles F. Lodor, Principal of Passaic Public School 1.

"The primary purpose," said Mr. Reinhold yesterday, "is to assist boys and young men of ability, character and promise, whose financial circumstances make impossible the proper development of their powers and ambitions, to attain, through such assistance, a large measure of self-realization and social usefulness, and thereby perpetuate the influence for intelligence, integrity and industry that would have been Carl Forstmann's had he lived.

"The general scope of the foundation and the specific purposes for which grants of assistance are to be made include education or training of any grade, degree or kind, the prosecution of useful experimentation or research, physical correction or rehabilitation and the realization of any particularly worthy ambition which, with assistance, offers a strong likelihood of success.

"The amounts and conditions of assistance are to be governed by the circumstances of the individual cases. The starting point in every case is to be the individual, his purpose and his needs, rather than any prescribed scheme or course. No restrictions as to qualifications or places of residence are imposed, but basic guiding principles have been laid down as follows:

"Assistance is to be given only where the specific purposes for the achievement of which assistance is asked can not be achieved except under conditions of undue hardship and only where it is shown that the applicant and his family have evidenced a sincere desire to make this achievement possible.

"Participation is open to any youth in the country, except that where other conditions are equal preference is to be given to employes or to members of the families of employes of Forstmann & Huffmann Company and to employes or to members of the families of employes of the other industrial establishments of the Passaic district.

"Grants of assistance are to be of two kinds, awards and loans, and are to be made always for the achievement of specific purposes. An award is to be given outright and the recipient is under no obligation to return any part of the money furnished unless he chooses to do so. In the case of a loan, the recipient is expected to return the amount received when he is able."

FRANCE AND BELGIUM SERVE ULTIMATUM ON CHANCELLOR CUNO

Diplomatic Relations Will Be Suspended Unless He Repudiates Ruhr Crimes.

HE IS WORKING ON HIS REPLY

Meanwhile Two Krupp Factories Are Forced to Close—French on Outskirts of Frankfort.

POINCARE UNMOVED BY POPE

Deputies Sustain Him, 388 to 190, In Declaring Against Vatican Mediation.

BRUSSELS, July 6 (Associated Press).—The Belgian Diplomatic Agent in Berlin has informed the German Government that diplomatic relations will be suspended if the Reich does not repudiate unequivocally the Ruhr crimes. The French Ambassador has given similar notice.

BERLIN, July 6 (Associated Press).—The Reichstag will adjourn indefinitely tomorrow for the Summer recess, according to an authoritative statement made tonight.

Chancellor Cuno continued his conferences today with Monsignor Pacelli, the Papal Nuncio. It was announced that a special courier had arrived from Rome bringing new instructions for the Nuncio from the Vatican.

The Government's expected declaration on sabotage on the Ruhr is said to be now merely a matter of form, and the Federal Cabinet is consulting with the Prussian Government on the formulation of the statement.

The Socialists have a proposal before Parliament for a debate on Germany's foreign relations before the vacation begins, but action on the proposal was being delayed late today by discussion of tax questions. It is stated, however, in trustworthy political quarters that the sentiment against such debate at the present time is so strong among the Government leaders and the other political parties that the Socialist proposal will undoubtedly be rejected. In any case, it is declared in these quarters, adjournment of the Reichstag will be taken tomorrow; thus there will be insufficient time for the Deputies to discuss foreign affairs thoroughly.

Cities Feel Pinch of Penalties.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, July 6.—The enforcement of penalties for the Duisburg outrage in the form of closing the frontiers between the occupied and unoccupied territory of Germany for a fortnight is making itself disagreeably felt by business interests here. The difficulty in replenishing stocks of merchandise—already considerable, owing to passive resistance—has become so great than many tradespeople, fearing that their stores will be emptied entirely, have decided to remain open only a few hours a day. Many stores in Düsseldorf, Essen, Bochum and other important Ruhr centres are now open only three hours a day, while in Dortmund 30 per cent. have been closed entirely since Wednesday, and will remain so until the fortnight's punishment ceases, as they fear that otherwise they may be forced to suspend business altogether.

Elsewhere stores continue well stocked, supplies continuing to arrive regularly. Yesterday 653 cars loaded with food reached the Ruhr, which is well above the number required, and, as roughly that number of cars has been coming in daily for the last few days, the position is quite normal. Any stocks which have been depleted momentarily are being built up again.

Prices, of course, are again soaring rapidly. It is hardly possible to keep up with them. Meat especially is very high, and the unemployed and the people of the poorer sections are undoubtedly suffering hardship. But, however high the prices soar, they do not prevent Germans from filling the restaurants, eating meals which last for many hours, while the delicatessen stores are doing as good a business as ever.

Two Krupp Plants Close Down.

Nevertheless, economic conditions are undoubtedly growing steadily worse. Every day, almost, more factories are obliged to close owing to the impossibility of remaining active while continuing to obey the orders from Berlin regarding non-co-operation with the French. Yesterday, for instance, two important steel works near Witten, the Annener and Wittener foundries, both connected with Krupp's, were closed, the men, of course, receiving their wages from the Ruhrhilfe funds—in other words, from the German Government.

The number of unemployed is increasing, too. At Recklinghausen more than 1,000 are employed on municipal emergency work, and municipalities throughout the Ruhr are finding growing difficulty in coping with the unemployed situation.

The French have seized 378,000,000 marks destined for the Ruhrhilfe on a Rhine steamer at Zankt Goar and 93,000,000 at Bensdorf, north of Coblenz.

Four sugar factories were occupied by the Belgians yesterday—three at Urdingen and one at Julich.

Three Germans were seriously wounded at Duisburg last night while trying to evade the curfew order.

DUISBURG, July 6 (Associated Press).—Because posters announcing the penalties inflicted on this town after last week's bomb explosion have been mutilated in a certain part of the town, all traffic has been prohibited in that section until further notice. Fire Wipes Out Goldfield, Old Boom Town; Bootleggers' Feud Blamed for Catastrophe

TONOPAH, Nev., July 6.—All of the town of Goldfield, except six buildings, was burned to the ground today.

One man is dead from causes attributed to the fire, a woman is missing and is believed to have perished. Several persons were treated for burns as the result of the conflagration, which is believed to have been of incendiary origin, started as part of a bootleggers' feud. Fire Chief Galliac declared that he believed an enemy of a known bootlegger started the blaze in a building behind the Brown-Parker garage.

The loss is estimated to be from $500,000 up.

The fire, it was reported, started in the old Tenderloin District. The water supply was not sufficient and dynamite only scattered the frame structures and added kindling to the flames.

The flames were fanned by a forty-mile wind.

Van D. McArthur, after carrying furniture from his home, died of heart disease, according to Dr. Charles R. Blake. John Salisbury and Ben Gill were cut about the face and hands by flying glass resulting from the dynamiting operations. The name of the missing woman has not been learned.

Residents were returning tonight from the mountainside where they fled with their belongings and telephone connections are being restored. Food has reached there from Tonopah, all the local supplies having been destroyed.

A group of miners' shacks on the outskirts of the town are being rehabilitated under the direction of a relief committee.

The main buildings left after the fire are the hospital, railroad station, old John S. Cook Bank Building, Goldfield Hotel, Post Office and Elks's Club.

Tonopah has raised $3,745 for the relief of the sufferers and caravans of automobiles and trucks laden with food have been dispatched.

Goldfield is one of the last of the gold boom towns of the West and has a history as stirring as that of any of its predecessors. Situated in the lower Nevada desert it has seen its population swell overnight to more than 20,000 and then fall away to a few dwindling hundreds as the boom died down. Booms came and went, but a fair sized little town remained, living in the hope that another boom would come.

200 New Pay-As-You-Pass Trolley Cars To Speed Up Brooklyn Surface Traffic

Brooklyn is to have 200 new steel trolley cars of the front-entrance, "pay-as-you-pass" type, in which the conductor sits in the centre and collects fares from passengers, who board the car at the front end. Fares may be paid by passengers who pass from the front half of the car to the rear half or when they leave the car after occupying seats in the front half. This type of car has been used successfully in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Buffalo and St. Louis. The announcement of an appropriation of $3,500,000 for the purchase of these cars by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company was made yesterday by Transit Commissioner Le Roy Harkness. They will be put in service in September.

"The decision to use this new type of car," said Clinton E. Morgan, General Manager of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, "was the result of an intensive study of traffic conditions by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company and the Transit Commission, in an effort to save time and trouble for the passengers, and thereby speed up the entire service.

"'Pay-as-you-enter' means holding up the traffic while change is made and the nickels are dropped in. In the new cars ordered those who wish to go to the rear of the car pay the conductor as they pass him, and when they reach their destination exit freely through the double exit at the centre. There is never any necessity for the passenger to pay the fare while struggling to board the car while holding wraps or bundles.

"These cars are equipped with four motors. This means a much higher acceleration, so that it will be possible for them to keep pace with the automobile traffic. Another feature is the variable load brake—the first installation of its kind on any surface lines in New York. The subway trains already have them."

French on Outskirts of Frankfort.

PARIS, July 6.—The French practically occupied Frankfort today. They advanced to the city line on the north, south and west sides of the city and occupied the Frankfort airdrome in the western suburbs.

All the Frankfort banks have moved their valuables to the interior of Germany. The strategical importance of Frankfort is that it is the jumping-off point to cut out Bavaria from the north.

POINCARE REBUFFS PAPAL MEDIATION

He Declares That France Will Not Admit Vatican Interference in Her Policies.

DEPUTIES BACK HIM, 388-190

Premier Sees No Reason to Suppress Embassy to the Pope Because of Ruhr Letter.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—Premier Poincaré declared before the Chamber of Deputies tonight that there existed no power, temporal or spiritual, which could swing France from her enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles. Thereby he paid his official respects to the efforts of the Vatican and of Downing Street to get the French out of the Ruhr.

The Premier's speech was followed by a vote of confidence, 388 to 190. Thus M. Poincaré faces the three months' vacation period of Parliament with an absolutely free hand to carry out his reparations policy.

The warmth of the Premier's statement tonight appeared to match the temperature, which was about 90 degrees outside the Chamber and several degrees higher within. He received an ovation when he said:

"France, which has advanced 100,000,000,000 francs to the account of Germany, will have to oblige certain great international financial consortiums to wait a little bit longer."

Germany, he said, was the only nation on earth which could get France out of the Ruhr, and she could do it by paying the reparations bill.

The debate hinged upon a demand by some Deputies that because of the Pope's letter advising the French to evacuate the Ruhr the French Ambassador to the Vatican should be withdrawn. M. Poincaré refused this demand and in so doing said that the French Parliament should forgive the Pope for having made an error. He referred to the Pope's motives as belonging to that category of good intentions "with which hell is paved."

The Premier disclosed that M. Jonnart, the French Ambassador to the Vatican, had knowledge of the Pope's letter before it was published and protested, notwithstanding which the letter to Cardinal Gasparri was sent to the newspaper agencies. After the publication of the letter, M. Poincaré said, he instructed M. Jonnart to see the Pope and tell him that the letter would do neither the Vatican nor any one else any good, and also that papal infallibility was in danger of a heavy strain when it trusted in German good-will. The next day, he continued, the outrage of which Belgians were the victims proved to the Vatican that France was right, and Pius instructed his representative at Munich to express his condemnation of such acts and advise against sabotage.

M. Poincare said that regardless of how high the authority of the Pope might be, "that authority has no right to intervene in the foreign or domestic policies of France."

"The idea which inspired this letter was like that of certain of our allies, and if this idea is not our idea, and even if we consider it inopportune and regrettable, it is our duty to examine it with as much coolness as if it came from another Government. As far as France is concerned it goes without saying that the advice which the Pope thought he ought to give us is without force and leaves entire liberty to the faithful. To leave to the Popes all the City of God but to see that they do not venture beyond its walls—such was always the policy of the Kings of France. The revolution proclaiming the separation of Church and State crowned this policy. The Republic of the twentieth century will not destroy these pages of our history.

"It doesn't seem reasonable to suppress our embassy at the Vatican because the Pope shows interest in something which interests everybody else in the world. The maintenance of an embassy in a capital is not a recompense for services rendered to France by that nation.

"The only thing for us to do today is to remain firm in our position as to nothing has happened, everybody will obey the authority of the Pope in the domain of religion. The republic for its part has the greatest respect for all religions, but the intervention of any spiritual power in political questions can only weaken its religious authority.

"We went into the Ruhr to make Germany keep her engagements. She resisted. She spills the blood of our soldiers. Let her renounce, first of all, this criminal resistance.

"It is the task of Germany to get us out of the Ruhr. She alone can do it, for the quicker she pays us the quicker we will withdraw our troops. That is the whole truth of the matter. We shall not cease to repeat it and we hope that our Allies and the Vatican and every one else will understand that we will stop at nothing to triumph."

POPE AIMS TO AVERT WIDER COMPLICATIONS

Fears That Britain and Italy Will Be Seriously Involved by Ruhr Conditions.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 6.—Great anxiety is being felt at the Vatican with regard to possible complications between France and Germany which might also drag Great Britain and Italy into the conflict. The Vatican is especially concerned lest either France or Germany take advantage of the Pope's letter to Cardinal Gasparri or of the Papal protest against the violence committed in Germany against Belgian soldiers to use the Vatican as a kind of lightning conductor for their excessive electricity.

In the reparations dispute the Vatican believes that both France and Germany are partly right. Germany is right inasmuch as France's reparations claims are beyond Germany's financial capabilities and France is right inasmuch as Germany has not shown any particular anxiety to pay anything. The Vatican at the same time believes that the French occupation of the Ruhr defeats its own object because it merely renders the Germans more stubborn and intractable.

Starting from these premises, the Vatican's solution for the reparations deadlock is on straight lines. France must withdraw from the Ruhr after having exacted ample and serious guarantees of an economic character. The time will then be ripe for Germany, France and the other allies to gather at a conference table and discuss not what Germany ought to pay, but what she can pay.

There seems to be no doubt that Mgr. Pacelli was directed by the Vatican to sound Chancellor Cuno on how the German Government would receive such a proposal. As a matter of fact the Vatican says that Mgr. Pacelli's business with Herr Cuno was to convey to him the Pope's protest against the bombing of Belgians in Germany, but a high Vatican official said: "Of course nobody can guarantee that when Chancellor Cuno and Mgr. Pacelli are actully face to face they will not discuss other and graver problems."

At the same time Monsignor Cerretti, the apostolic nuncio in Paris, is approaching the French Government in the hope that by inducing France to yield a little on one side and Germany a little on the other the common ground may be found on which negotiations can take place.

The Vatican does not discuss France's right to claim reparations. It does not even say that France's reparation claims are excessive or unfair. It merely says that they are beyond Germany's financial capabilities and that therefore they ought to be reduced out of considerations of expediency if not out of considerations of justice.

What chances of success this mediation has it is now too early to foretell, but the Vatican has great hopes, believing as it does that only by steering a middle course between France's and Germany's claims can Europe's ruin be averted.

BIG ROBINSON GALLERY ON SALE AT CHRISTIE'S

But Magnate Is Believed to Have Retained Many of Them by High Reserve Prices.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—The sale took place at Christie's today of Sir James B. Robinson's collection of 114 old masters. Nominally they realized the "record" sum of £205,741, but owing to the high reserve prices placed on the pictures only a dozen of them seem to be actually sold, the total of these amounting to £28,866. All others were knocked down to unfamiliar names and it is reasonable to assume that they remain the property of the vendor.

Dealers from all parts of the country, Europe and the United States were present at what promised to be one of the greatest picture auction sales of modern times. It was understood, though not announced, that there would be reserves on most of the pictures, but before the sale had gone far it became evident that these reserves were so excessively high that buyers would be outclassed, and that proved to be the case when the last lot was knocked down, going to known buyers.

The pictures included Gainsborough's portrait of General Blyth, 3,100 guineas; bought by Knoedler, who also bought Romney's portrait of Mrs. Chitty Marshall for 300 guineas; Romney's portrait of James Oliver, 800 guineas, and Van Der Capelle's view on the Dutch Coast, 4,000 guineas.

Rembrandt's portrait of the artist's sister, Lysbeth Van Ryn, realized 4,300 guineas. Sir Thomas Lawrence's portrait of a young boy with a St. Bernard dog brought 4,100 guineas.

The pictures knocked down to unfamiliar names included Frans Hals' "Portrait of a Gentleman," 19,000 guineas, and four Boucher panels, 18,000 guineas.

In explanation of the high reserves placed on the pictures it is stated that Sir Joseph had not seen his collection for eleven years and had scarcely realized the magnificence of his treasures until he saw them exhibited at Christie's when he decided, after all, to retain many of them for himself.

Another picture which it is understood will remain in his collection is Gainsborough's Page Boy, which is sometimes described as the study for the famous Blue Boy, which is now in America. This was knocked down at 9,500 guineas.

TIKHON ACCUSES POPE OF PROSELYTIZING

Issues Statement Saying Poland Is Turning Orthodox Churches Into Roman Catholic.

By WALTER DURANTY.

MOSCOW, July 6.—Ex-Patriarch Tikhon has lost no time in opening his campaign against the Living Church, as the reform movement now in control of the Church in Russia is known.

Far from being depressed by his imprisonment, the aged prelate makes a spirited attack upon the Russian clergy who have meddled in politics, among whom he includes himself. Then, after a brief but vigorous denunciation of Pope Pius, whom he declares to be responsible for the closing of hundreds of churches of the Orthodox faith in Poland, Dr. Tikhon throws a bombshell into the Living Church ranks in the shape of a proposal to convoke an All-Russian Church Assembly, in which the emigré clergy shall be represented, in order that they, too, may make their peace with the Soviet Government.

I understand that this remarkable suggestion is not made at haphazard. On the contrary, it is not only stated that Dr. Tikhon has received word from prominent emigré churchmen that they are willing, under safe conduct, to attend such a congress in Russia, but also that the Soviet authorities are willing to allow them to return. If this be true, the results may surprise the world. The emigré clergy in general are said to be willing to follow Dr. Tikhon in sinking their opposition to the Bolsheviki for the sake of the "rescue" of the Church from the reformist "usurpers."

LENIN NOMINAL HEAD IN NEW SOVIET ORDER

But Three Vice Presidents Form Acting Commission—New Cabinet Is Named.

MOSCOW, July 6 (Associated Press).—Although ill, Nikolai Lenin will continues as titular head of the Council of Commissars under the constitution of the new union of Socialist republics, or the United States of Russia. This was decided by the Federal Executive Committee today.

Leo Kamaneff, A. Rykov and M. Buringa were elected Vice Presidents of the Cabinet, or actual executives carrying on the presidency during Lenin's illness. The Cabinet members were chosen as follows:

Minister of War—LEON TROTZKY.
Foreign Trade—LEONID KRASSIN.
Foreign Affairs—GEORGE TCITCHERIN.
Railroads—M. DJERJINSKY.
Posts and Telegraphs—M. SMYRNOFF.
Food—M. BRUKHANOFF.
Finance—M. SOKOLNIKOFF.
Labor—M. SCHMIDT.
Head of Peasant and Workers' Inspection—M. KUBICHOFFIAS.
Head of the Council of National Economy—M. RYKOV.

The new Constitution for the United States of Russia was formally approved by the Federal Executive Committee, but it must be ratified by the next All Russian Congress of Soviets. The committee also approved the new flag with elaborate coat of arms for State occasions, but recommended a simpler red flag, bearing only crossed sickle and hammer, for ordinary use.

The body which elected the Cabinet was one of the Chamber, acting temporarily as a Federal Parliament, pending the election of the two new houses provided in the Constitution. It met in the throne room of the Kremlin Palace, where there were almost as many white collars as soft colored shirts among the delegates, in sharp contrast to previous more roughly clad sessions.

LEAGUE IN SECRET GETS SARRE FACTS

Lord Robert Cecil Questions Commissioners on the March and May Decrees.

AMNESTY IS ANNOUNCED

Delegation of Four From Sarre Local Government Arrives at Geneva to Testify.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 6.—Today's session of the Council of the League of Nations was given up to a secret session on the conduct of the Sarre Commission. This is practically the first time that the public has been barred from the Council's meetings, but today even Lord Robert Cecil, an adversary of secret debate, declared for the necessity of secrecy.

Practically the whole of both morning and afternoon sessions were given over to the questioning of M. Rault, the French President of the commission, and almost the entire interrogation was carried on by Lord Robert Cecil. The English statesman went into the greatest detail on the constitution of the Sarre Government, its duties and the minute history of its administration. Particular inquiry was made into the two decrees promulgated by the commission during the recent strike, which formed the subject of an interpellation several weeks ago in the British Parliament.

The inquiry was carried on in a courteous and entirely objective manner, and President Rault made every effort to aid the interrogation.

Four representatives of the Sarre local Government who came to Geneva for the inquiry were not heard today. M. Branting of Sweden asked that they be admitted, but was opposed by the French and Belgian members of the Council.

Other members of the Sarre Commission will be heard tomorrow.

GENEVA, July 6 (Associated Press).—Even Lord Robert Cecil, a stalwart adversary of any form of secrecy concerning debates, recognized that the discussions on the Sarre question, begun by the League of Nations Council this morning must be conducted without the presence of the public, as it might take a distinctly personal character on certain points.

Thus, examination into the administration of the Sarre Valley was started before a gathering of some fifty, all of whom are attached to the League. The members of the commission Government of the Sarre were present, in answer to a telegraphed request for them to attend. They are M. Rault, French President of the commission; Count Moltke Huitfeld of Denmark, Vice President; M. Lambert of Belgium, R. D. Waugh of Canada and M. Land, a native of the Sarre Valley.

A colorless communiqué issued at the end of the morning sitting says that M. Rault, at Lord Robert Cecil's initiative, gave the Council information on the commission's duties under the treaty, its composition and the manner of sharing the work, the number and rôle of French troops in the Sarre, the development of the local gendarmerie, and the circumstances under which the March and May decrees, dealing with public order, security and picketing, were issued.

M. Rault informed the Council that the commission had just granted amnesty to all those condemned under these two decrees.

Lord Robert was the chief questioner during the meeting, basing his demands for information on criticisms expressed in the British House of Commons. He was particularly insistent to learn everything about the two decrees, which the French defend as having been nothing but reproductions of German laws.

PARIS, July 6.—Ambassador Herrick intervened with the French Government today to urge ratification of the Washington treaties. In the course of a long call at the Quai d'Orsay this morning he told Premier Poincaré that the American Government earnestly hopes that these treaties, particularly the naval limitation treaty, would be ratified by the French Parliament before it adjourned on July 13, otherwise it would be deeply disappointed.

The same message was conveyed to M. Peretti de la Rocca, Political Director of the Foreign Office, several days ago by Sheldon Whitehouse, Counselor of the American Embassy.

WINONA CONFERENCE FAVORS WORLD COURT

Also Wants World Organization to Deal With All Matters Tending to War.

WINONA LAKE, Ind., July 6.—Qualified approval of the World Court was unanimously voted by the World Christian Citizens Conference, in session here today, which adopted a resolution urging American participation in the World Court. The resolution reads:

"We express hearty approval of the international court of justice and believe that all nations, including the United States, should be members of the court.

"We believe this court is a most important step toward world peace, but we do not believe it to be adequate, as it will deal only with disputes over questions of rights and not over questions of policy.

"We favor a world organization which shall have the right to deal with all matters international in character, likely to lead to war."

The conference is composed of approximately 2,000 delegates from all sections of America and representatives of more than a score of foreign nations.

This budget, which has already been cut by several different commissions, is almost double the first budget of the League.

SCULPTURE SOLD HERE ON WAY BACK TO PARIS

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—Paris is mystified tonight over the publication of a letter addressed today by Paul Leon, Director des Beaux Arts, to the Secretary of the Syndicate de la Presse Artistique, stating that the dealer who sold the two Parthenay capitals to a New York museum last April had learned of their classification as historic monuments and was returning them to France.

The news of the shipment of the two famous capitals from the Church of Notre Dame de la Couldre to America was only announced in the press three days ago, and it created a great deal of indignation in view of the scandal over the "kidnapping" of the Virgin and Child statue of St. Sauveur. The capitals, which represent the sacrifice of Abraham and the combat of David and Goliath, are considered among the best existing specimens of France's twelfth century sculpture.

Permission was obtained by the direction of the Beaux Arts from the owner in 1913 to classify them, but before the classification actually was made the property was sold. The new proprietor was asked at the end of the war for permission to classify the capitals, but refused to give permission.

In November of last year the capitals were bought by a Paris antiquary, M. Joret, who sold the famous Virgin of Saint Sauveur to M. Demott. M. Joret disposed of the Parthenay columns to another antiquary, not yet definitely identified, who shipped them to America in March. According to the President of the Archaeological Society of the Department of Deux Sévres, who went to Paris to protest to the Director of the Beaux Arts against the sale of the capitals, he learned that they were bought by a New York museum.

The Matin points out that the sculpture was not classified at the time it was shipped to America and asked when the classification was made. And as it was only publicly known three days ago that the statues were sold in America, many people in Paris are interested to know how they happened to be so soon on the way back to France, and the Director of the Beaux Arts already notified of their repurchase and shipment by the seller.

POINCARÉ INTRODUCES NAVAL TREATY TODAY

Ratification by French Parliament Before Adjournment Is Regarded as Practically Assured.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—In the course of the debate in the Chamber tonight Premier Poincaré announced that he would bring the Washington Naval Treaty forward for ratification tomorrow, and that he intended to push for its approval by both houses of Parliament before their adjournment on July 13.

The favorable manner in which the declaration was received by the Chamber indicated that there was practically no doubt of the approval of the compact, since the Premier has declared it "an urgent measure of foreign policy."

There will be no official change or amendment in the treaty, but it is probable that the act of law approving it will carry the statement that France regards the arrangement as binding for only ten years. It is said that the French Government's notification to Washington of ratification will make mention of this reservation.

The French do not like the treaty because they regard it as unfair to France, but inasmuch as they intend to centre their attention on the development of a submarine fleet, which is unaffected by the terms of the Washington treaty, and because their finances do not permit them to build battleships in the next few years, and because they wish to avoid the resentment which would be caused in America by failure to ratify the Washington treaty, they are going to approve it as un beau geste.

100,000 START STRIKE IN BERLIN METAL TRADE

150,000 More Are Expected to Go Out Today—Agree to End Woodworkers' Strike.

BERLIN, July 6 (Associated Press).—More than 100,000 of Berlin's 250,000 metal workers struck at noon today following a ballot last night in which the union rejected for the second time the agreement reached between representatives of the Government and the employers. The strike is being instituted by stages.

The strike affects 200 plants. By tomorrow the union is expected to extend it to all of the 450 metal works in Greater Berlin.

Many large plants whose names are known around the world are involved, including the Borsig, Siemens, Mix & Genest, Ludwig Lowe, Orenstein and Koppel & Schuckert.

Up to late in the afternoon the metal workers of the General Electric Company had not struck, although they belong to the striking organization.

The employes and employers of Berlin's wood industry have reached an agreement which is expected to end the strike among the woodworkers. Their hourly wages were fixed at 10,750 marks for the first week of July and 12,313 for the second week.

FOR BRITISH AIR DEFENSE.

Hoare Says They Expect No Attack, but Must Be Ready Just the Same.

LONDON July 6 (Associated Press.)—Referring to Great Britain's new air program, Sir Samuel Hoare, the Air Minister, said today in speaking at a luncheon given by the National Citizens' Union that he did not expect an attack from any one, "least of all from any of our old allies." He added:

"But being a great empire we must insure our national security. Whoever be our friends, we cannot leave our shores open to hostile attack or live on the sufferance of any power in the world. Just as we have the one power standard for the navy, so must we have a standard for the air force."

Sir Samuel expressed a wish to see aviation a great British national industry, and he wanted to strengthen the hands of the Government so as to bring about international restriction of air forces.

RESUME REPARATION PARLEYS IN LONDON

French, Belgian and Italian Ambassadors Meet Lord Curzon in Turn.

SECRECY IS MAINTAINED

Occupying Powers Firm Against Meeting Germans Till Passive Resistance Ends.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—The conversations on the reparations question were resumed this evening between Lord Curzon and the French and Belgian Ambassadors. They were preceded by a long and cordial interview between the Foreign Secretary and the Italian Ambassador, who again visited the Foreign Office for the purpose of a full exchange of views on the same question.

Briefly, Italy has not departed from her program as explained in the London memorandum, namely: The coupling of the problem of reparations with that of the interallied debts; a sufficient moratorium for Germany; the establishment of a definite and reasonable plan of payments; reliable guarantees of a purely economic nature, and the subsequent renunciation by France of the territories occupied in the Ruhr.

The Italian Government thinks that Germany has no interest in prolonging passive resistance, because she cannot expect France to tire of the occupation or expect help for Germany from outside sources.

When the Italian Ambassador had withdrawn, the Belgian Ambassador saw Lord Curzon alone. It is understood that, having received a further communication from Brussels, he reported the views of the Belgian Government on Lord Curzon's remarks made to him last Tuesday. He did not leave any written statement, but contented himself with an oral explanation.

It is known that the Belgian Government's view of passive resistance corresponds to that of the French, namely, that there can be no conversations with the Germans until they have abandoned such resistance. If the Germans were to give up all official resistance and to show this by their acts and behavior the Belgians would not be slow to recognize that the change of attitude would necessarily have an effect on the occupation.

The Belgians are in a very difficult position. They are closely associated intellectually, commercially and geographically with France, with whom they naturally desire to live on terms of close friendship; but they are also most anxious to maintain their friendship with this country and to use their good offices in every respect to preserve the cordiality of understanding between England and France. It is believed that Baron Moncheur has made himself the interpreter of views such as these to Lord Curzon.

The French Ambassador was the last of the three to see Lord Curzon today. Again the seal of official secrecy is put upon the interview. It is known, however, that Count de Saint-Aulaire left no written statement behind him. It would therefore seem that the desire of the British Government for a note in reply to its questionnaire has not been complied with. At the same time it is asserted on good authority that the French Ambassador was prepared at this interview to inform Lord Curzon fully and frankly of the views of the French Government on such points as the British Government desired to be advised, and which is gathered that the Foreign Secretary did not receive a note, could, if he pleased, himself reduce to writing during the interview all the points which up till then remained ambiguous.

The crux of the difficulty seems still to be the question of passive resistance. It appears that until passive resistance is abandoned by Germany the deadlock will be unbroken.

PARIS, July 6 (Associated Press).—For the first time since the delivery of England's questionnaire on the Ruhr and reparation problem there appeared today in French political circles a distinct feeling of optimism over the outcome of the conversations between the two countries.

The French interpret the very lengthiness of the conversations as auguring an eventful Franco-British understanding rather than the pursuance of separate lines of settlement with Germany.

Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, called on Premier Poincaré this afternoon for a long conversation on the general reparations situation, and it is understood their interview was conducted in a spirit of cordiality.

In Government circles it is indicated that while France repeatedly has announced that her thesis remains intact, there are definite signs of a more conciliatory attitude and a sincere desire to find a basis acceptable to England for co-operative application of this thesis.

It is the details concerning modified application of the French program that are occupying the diplomatic representatives of England and France at this time, according to authoritative information.

PEACE PLAN PROPOSES STOPPING WAR FUNDS

Pacifist Organization Also Suggests Abolishing Army and Navy in Bok $100,000 Contest.

The International No More War Demonstration, representing a number of pacifist groups, announced yesterday that it had sent to the American Peace Award its plan for the United States to promote world peace, in co-operation with other nations, in competition for the prize of $100,000 offered by Edward W. Bok.

The plan provides for depriving Congress of the power to appropriate funds for war and for abolishing the army and navy. It also proposes that the whole civilized world take steps to outlaw war by making it illegal to prepare for, declare or carry on war. In commenting upon its proposal to deprive Congress of the power to make appropriations for war purposes, Bishop Paul Jones, Chairman of the organization, said:

"It is ridiculous to pretend to outlaw war by agreement with other nations while our Constitution, which is the supreme law of this country and paramount to any treaty, makes war legal and empowers Congress to prepare for it. Surely our good faith would be questioned, and justly, by other nations. Moreover, we wish to get rid not only of war between nations but also the use of armed forces to develop imperialism, to exploit the weak or to protect special privilege, and we cannot trust any international court to declare such use of force a crime so long as the maintenance of armies is legal."

TRADE IN CHINA GAINS DESPITE CHAOTIC RULE

Natives' Rising Standard of Living Turns Them Toward More Foreign Goods.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, July 6.—It has been generally expected that the widespread confusion in China would result in a serious check to foreign trade. The fact that so many provinces are either engaged in war or overrun by bandits necessarily affects commercial confidence, and this is proved by the standstill in business in many up-country regions and the large accumulation of Chinese capital in Hongkong and the treaty ports, where it has been brought for safety instead of being employed in financing trade.

The boycott of Japanese goods, which has assumed serious dimensions in the last two months, was expected further to affect commercial returns. Customs figures for the half year, however, have proved these forebodings false and give proof of the extraordinary vitality of trade in China. The customs revenue is ahead of all previous records, and even if a generous allowance be made for the increase consequent upon the application of the effective 5 per cent. tariff for part of the period, there is a net gain of $2,000,000 compared with the record figures for the corresponding period last year.

When it is considered that the principal import of piece goods was unusually dull and Japanese imports during June were only half of the previous monthly average, it is remarkable that the total volume of trade not only has been maintained but actually increased. The explanation is simple enough. It is that the Chinese are fast awaking to the utility of foreign manufactured goods, that their standard of living is steadily rising and that the demand for foreign articles within zones of the treaty ports alone is sufficient to maintain and increase foreign imports.

In huge areas in the interior trade and enterprise are being stifled to extinction by the chaotic conditions prevailing, but the economic development of the littoral regions continues unabated. It is hardly affected by the political chaos, and there seems to be no limit to its possibilities.

The commercial prospects of China in a normal or even in an abnormal condition are almost beyond estimation, and it plainly is to the interest of industrial nations to establish themselves here commercially. But they are faced with extraordinary conditions, requiring remedies of extraordinary character, which only Governments can apply. There are great debts owing to foreigners which the Chinese Government can never liquidate until the foreign powers consent to an increase in the tariff. There is a decline in foreign prestige, resulting in a danger to foreign life and property, and in constant violations of treaty rights, which can be stemmed only by international action.

The problem of the debt is easy of solution and the re-establishment of foreign prestige is principally a matter of a small increase in the foreign garrison. If the interested powers neglect these necessary steps—and they are now hemming and hawing about it—they will have endless trouble on their hands in the near future and the certainty that increased confusion will end in damage to trade upon which the interests of all are founded.

RUHR RAILROADS IN BAD CONDITION

Locomotives and Cars Broken Down and Rusty Tracks Hidden by Weeds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLOGNE, July 6.—The present state of the railways in the occupied territory shows with particular clearness the destruction of wealth, in the conservation of which the Allies as well as Germany are interested, since the railways were among the guarantees recently offered by Germany.

I have recently traveled by Franco-Belgian régie trains between Cologne and Coblenz in order to see for myself the actual situation. The evidence of decay and destruction en route was depressing. In siding stood countless locomotives and freight cars in need of repairs which the régie has not a big enough staff to carry out.

The freight yards were full of loaded trucks which had been lying there for months. At Godesburg wheat was actually growing a foot and a half high in a truck. The system of signals and automatic locking points is no more. It is replaced by a man with a red flag, which, as our train moved out of each station, was planted in the permanent way.

The rusted rails on many sidings were vanishing from sight under a luxuriant growth of weeds and grasses which have sprung up since February.

"It is significant that the régie disowns all responsibility toward its patrons. It accepts no liability for injury or loss of life to its passengers or for loss and damage to goods, thus declining to be regarded as a common carrier.

Its freight traffic, without which no railway can hope to pay, is insignificant. The régie issues no balance sheet and no figures have been given of its loss before June, but the French admit the loss of 1,000,000 francs during that month in spite of the fact that the rolling stock and fuel required are seized without payment.

By a neutral railway expert, who has particular opportunities of observing the régie at work I was told the greatest damage resulted from the facts that the German brake system is totally different from the French and that the fireboxes are of a different type, some of them requiring delicate handling, and to some extent from the attitude of mind of the French railway men brought to the Rhineland and Ruhr to fight German resistance. Many of them are inclined to consider a damaged engine as more of an asset than a loss to their cause.

WANTS BRITISH SUGAR.

Premier Urges More Competition With American Speculators.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—American speculators in sugar, according to the thesis developed in Parliament today by Premier Baldwin, will not have a very long period in which to make profits at the expense of consumers. Also the American sugar producers may have to look forward to keener competition.

The margin of sugar production, Premier Baldwin argued, was so small that there was extraordinary sensitiveness as to market conditions.

Only by considerably increasing sugar production, Premier Baldwin said, could the world get that surplus which would give it more or less constant sugar prices. Growers and manufacturers of sugar in the British Empire had the opportunity of building up a large industry, he declared. Nothing did more to foster agriculture in Germany before the war, on to increase the wealth of that country, he added, than the sugar industry, which was built up on scientific lines under strict protection and became one of the most profitable of German industries.

Now that this country, he said, had to remit such very large sums to the United States it was a matter of very vital importance that England should, as far as possible, encourage the growth of certain products outside the United States, which have been entirely suspended.

BRINGS UP DRY LAW IN THE WORLD COURT

Prof. Basdevant Cites Our Panama Canal Rules as Pertinent to the Kiel Case.

SPEAKS FOR FREE TRANSIT

French Agent Continues His Argument Against Germany's Barring of the Wimbledon.

THE HAGUE, July 6.—Continuing his pleading in the case of the steamer Wimbledon at a public session of the World Court today, the French agent, Professor Basdevant, again spoke before a large and interested crowd of listeners of all nationalities.

Going into the question of the defense of territorial rights and the difference between the prohibition of exports and imports and goods in transit, he referred to what he called an interesting contemporary event, saying that the United States found itself, under the necessity of affirming its authority in territorial waters with regard to the importation of alcoholic drinks. In doing so, he argued, the United States took particular care to treat transit on an entirely different footing, not merely from importation but even from the possibility of importation.

The French agent then referred to Section 20 of the American Prohibition act, which provides in regard to the Panama Canal Zone that the act shall not apply to liquor in transit through the canal or by railroad in Panama. In the case of Germany to assimilate the questions of transit, export and import, as assumed by German documents, M. Basdevant argued, was without justification.

The right to prohibit imports and exports cannot be regarded as a right to prohibit transit, he added. An advisory opinion given by the Court at a former session was used as an argument on the question of the restrictive interpretation of treaties.

Professor Basdevant called attention to the proclamation by the United States in November, 1914, fixing the conditions for free transit through the Panama Canal after the outbreak of the war when the United States was still neutral. Free transit was even permitted to belligerent ships and prizes, he argued, which was of interest in the present case.

"It shows that the idea in the minds of the authorities," he said, "was that a maritime canal should be absolutely free and open to all vessels. The Americans did not admit prizes to their waters, and yet allowed them through the Panama Canal. It is interesting to call to mind the judgment of the United States Supreme Court in a similar case."

After this, Professor Schücking, now sitting on the bench as a German Judge, was quoted on the rights of neutral and riparian States in regard to the Kiel Canal.

One of the most interesting questions brought up in the French argument was the special situation resulting from the Polish war.

"Can it be said," asked Prof. Basdevant, "that there were any neutral powers in this particular war, and can it be said that Germany, by its decree of neutrality in July, 1920, assumed neutrality? Can it be said that Germany by this decree could force other powers to recognize its neutrality? This is a new problem not yet touched upon in any treatise on international law."

It is argued that Germany's rejoinder was not founded on any authority or precedent and was not accompanied by proofs but merely affirmed facts, and that was impossible to accept such affirmations without cogent reasons. The rejoinder was held to contradict the Versailles Treaty and the statutes covering the Suez Canal.

The German agents, who had listened attentively for a day and a half to the French argument, then began their pleading and will continue tomorrow.

The Dutch are following the question of the Kiel Canal with great interest, owing to their many waterways and their vital interest in the prospective revision of the Rhine treaties. It is argued here that the Kiel Canal case is very similar to the sand and gravel question which almost dragged Holland into war on several occasions. Holland allowed Germany to transport sand and gravel over the Dutch waterways to be used at the German front for building bomb-proof shelters. The Dutch now point out that the Allies threatened to blockade Holland on that account.

DRUG TRADE IS PASSING IN PRISONS, SAYS VOTAW

Many Ingenious Methods of Smuggling Have Been Discovered, Mainly by Women Visitors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Ingenious plans by inmates of Federal penitentiaries to obtain cocaine, morphine and other drugs were revealed this afternoon by Heber H. Votaw, Superintendent of Prisons, who said, however, that drug smuggling into the institutions had been cut to a minimum since his investigators began an intensive campaign more than a year ago.

Even in a last kiss women sometimes passed narcotics to prisoners, he said. Handkerchiefs were soaked in "the stuff" and ironed and folded, to be sent to inmates, who later chewed up the cloth. Babies in arms were at times made the bearers of drugs hidden in their little dresses.

To cope with the smuggling evil a strict guard is now being maintained in all Federal penal institutions, especially in the Atlanta Penitentiary, where the traffic was found to be in a flourishing stage when the investigation began.

"No prisoner is now permitted to enter a Federal penitentiary until he purchases a new pair of shoes from the officials," said Mr. Votaw, who added: "It was discovered that many of the convicts when they arrived had secreted in the heels and soles of their shoes large quantities of drugs. Also narcotics were found in their clothing and occasionally secreted in their mouths. All letters are received by the prisoners subject to close examination, as it was found that under the folds of the envelopes frequently was a quantity of cocaine.

"In a few institutions guards and 'trusties' were found to be in league with the prisoners requiring the drugs, and in some instances these guilty individuals were discharged or arrested and indicted.

"The drug evil is one of the most alarming situations that we must cope with and it is a regrettable fact that thousands of young men, and women too, are slaves to the habit. If the Federal Government would establish an institution for first offenders we would be able to salvage many incipient human wrecks. As the situation is, however, these men and women who are just beginning to fall victims to the drug habit must be herded together with old offenders, and incurable users of narcotics."

MEN LIKELY TO TAKE 5% I. R. T. PAY RISE

Head of Employes' Brotherhood Believes That Hedley's Offer Will Be Accepted.

NO STRIKE IN ANY EVENT

Company, in Statement to Workers, Cites Its Strained Financial Condition.

WOULD AVOID ARBITRATION

Cost of Living Declared to Have Fallen Further Than Pay Has Been Reduced.

Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, sent a statement to the employes of the company yesterday in reply to their demand for a 10 per cent. increase in wages, offering to grant a 5 per cent. increase. Patrick J. Connolly, President of the Interborough Employes' Brotherhood, said last night that he believed the company's offer would be accepted, and that in any event the men would not strike because of their arbitration agreement.

Mr. Hedley said in his statement that the company was unable to offer more than a 5 per cent. increase because of financial conditions which prevented the payment of dividends before 1926. Even the 5 per cent. increase would mean an additional burden of $1,250,000 a year on the company, he said, the earnings of which are limited. Mr. Hedley said that if the company were forced to arbitrate, the offer and agreements as to working conditions would be withdrawn.

The skilled employes, such as motormen, might be in favor of arbitration, said Mr. Connolly last night, but the unskilled workers were inclined to believe that arbitration would not benefit them, while it might even lower their wages. Some of the members of the committee which met with the management were inclined to accept the offer, while others wanted to hold out for 10 per cent. As a result, said Mr. Connolly, the question was referred to the locals. At the first meetings only a few employes attended and voted against accepting the company's offer, but a poll since of three of these locals has reversed their position, and Mr. Connolly said he believed that when the vote was concluded on July 12 it would show that a majority of the men would be in favor of accepting the 5 per cent. increase.

Men Point Out Living Cost.

Mr. Hedley's statement followed a number of conferences between the management and the employes, at which a demand for a 25 per cent. increase was scaled down to 10 per cent. Wages were lowered 10 per cent. in 1921, and the demand for the restoration of the former scale was based on the plea that living costs had increased since the reduction.

Statistics of the Department of Labor are quoted by Mr. Hedley to show that the wages of the company were reduced only 10 per cent. from the high point to which they were advanced during the war and later, whereas he maintains the cost of living has decreased 21½ per cent. from the high point.

"The company is unable to fix a general wage scale on the basis of individual cases," said the statement. "The cost of living may vary in different families, but the company must be guided by the general averages from an authoritative and unquestioned source, such as the United States Department of Labor.

"No data submitted by your committee or by the various locals of your Brotherhood justify any general increase, although the management has offered 5 per cent."

Rises in Other Industries.

"It is true that within the last twelve months increases in wages have been made in various other industries. The most notable example has been in the building industry, but it has been due to abnormal and temporary conditions. These have led to a temporary shortage of skilled men to meet the present rush demand. The building industry and the transportation business cannot be compared—the conditions are so totally different.

"Some increases have recently been made in other staple industries, such as manufacture of cotton or woolen goods, steel, &c. But it is also true that in those other industries decreases had been larger in number and greater in amount than have been made by the Interborough Company.

"To sum it up: The increases in other similar industries have simply restored a part of the decreases which had been made from the high wage point.

"The management of this company cannot express in too strong terms the appreciation of the spirit and co-operation which its employes have shown through many years. It wishes most sincerely that this friendly relationship continue.

"We feel that it would be to the distinct disadvantage of both the company and its employes to bring in outside elements to settle problems which we have always been able to settle among ourselves. True, your constitution provides that in case we are unable to come to an agreement the matter may be submitted to arbitration. Arbitration, however, involves a number of things undesirable to us both; and if the matter is forced into arbitration the company would be obliged to withdraw all its present wage offers and agreements as to working conditions. Our feeling is that this problem, like all the others that have preceded it, should be settled among ourselves."

CITES CITY OFFICIALS FOR MOVING PRISONERS

Federal Judge Denounces Sending of Thirteen From Warrensville (Ohio) Workhouse to Hospital.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—Federal Judge Westenhaver late today directed Assistant District Attorney Evans to file contempt proceedings against City Welfare Director Perkins and Superintendent Walsh of the Warrensville Work House for the transfer of thirteen Federal prisoners to City Hospital. He also ordered all of the thirteen who have more than thirty days yet to serve to be taken to Montgomery Work House at Dayton.

The thirteen prisoners were transferred from the Warrensville Work House to City Hospital without knowledge of the Court. Among them found at work in the hospital kitchen by Federal agents were Charles Marotta, boxing promoter and proprietor of the Marotta Athletic Club, his bartender and another saloon man. The three, with two others, had been sentenced to the Work House in Federal Court and their transfer to the hospital apparently was the work of city officials.

END LABOR DISPUTE AT UNION-OWNED MINE

United Mine Workers and Engineers' Brotherhood Agree at Chicago Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Differences between the United Mine Workers of America and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, arising from a strike of miners at a mine of the Coal River Collieries Company on Lick Creek in Boone County, W. Va., owned by the Brotherhood, were settled at a conference behind closed doors today. Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Engineers, and President of the Coal Company, refused to discuss the conference. J. C. Lewis, President of the Iowa Federation of Labor, acted as mediator.

The miners claimed that the mines were being run on an open-shop basis. The agreement resulted in unionization of the mine.

JAIL 2 LABOR CHIEFS FOR A STRIKE LETTER

One Had Signed Missive Urging Nova Scotia Miners to Help Steel Workers.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 6.—Dan Livingston, District President, and James B. MacLaughlan, Secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, District 6, were arrested tonight, following circulation of a letter today over Mr. MacLaughlan's signature.

The letter urged coal miners throughout the province to strike in protest against alleged brutality by provincial police and Federal troops called to queel disturbances in connection with the strike of steel workers employed by the British Empire Steel Corporation.

The men were arrested upon instructions from the Attorney General of Nova Scotia. They were brought here and lodged in jail.

I. W. W. LEADER IN HOSPITAL

Texas Grand Jury to Investigate Alleged Police Attack on Holland.

GALVESTON, Texas, July 6.—James Holland, organizer for the Marine Transport Workers division of the Industrial Workers of the World, referred to by John Shuskie of New York, secretary of the Transport Workers, in a telegram to Governor Neff of Texas, as "probably murdered," is in the John Sealy hospital here suffering from wounds administered by unknown persons.

Shuskie alleged that Holland and two other I. W. W.'s were beaten brutally by Port Arthur, Texas, police and then handed over to a small mob, and demanded an investigation.

Dr. E. M. F. Stephon, acting surgeon in charge of the United States Public Health Service, says Holland's injuries are not serious.

Holland was arrested ten days ago at Port Arthur on the ground that he was a member of the I. W. W. He resisted efforts to fingerprint and photograph him, and it is said was punished by the officers. His attorney sought a writ of habeas corpus at Beaumont, and Judge E. A. McDowell ordered Holland released, declaring that membership in the I. W. W. was not a crime under Texas statutes. Judge McDowell instructed the Grand Jury to investigate the punishment Holland said the officers inflicted on him.

WILL AID PHONE STRIKERS.

Boston Labor Union to Raise $50,000 for Operators.

BOSTON, July 6.—The Boston Central Labor Union pledged itself tonight to raise $50,000 for carrying on the strike of telephone operators for a seven-hour day and higher wages in five New England States.

Julia S. O'Connor, President of the Telephone Operators' Department, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who is leading the strike, addressed a mass meeting of strikers in Salem tonight, but returned in time to address the Central Union and declare that the present strike was not primarily for wages and changes in working conditions, but a fight "to keep unionism alive."

The city of Lawrence continued to be the centre of the strikers' activities, with service almost cut off. Officials of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company reported that they were making every effort to restore service there, but that conditions prevented making the same progress as elsewhere.

To Cut Chicago-Seattle Run 2 Hours

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 6.—Two hours will be cut from the running of the Olympian Limited of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway between Chicago and Seattle and Tacoma July 29. The cut will reduce the running time between Chicago and the North Pacific Coast from seventy-two hours to seventy hours, the fastest schedule between the terminals named. The distance is 2,189 miles, of which 650 is electrified. Recent perfections in improvements in the electric zone make possible the shortening of time.

FARMER-LABOR SPLIT TWO PARTIES ARISE

form incorporated into one machined by the Workers' Party and other Trade Union groups.

Led by Ruthenberg, Foster and Manley, the Organization Committee elected by the conference, reported out a platform which at once was described as revolutionary by Conservatives, but which was adopted intact after a day and part of a night of speeches that were flavored with no attempt at concealment of the doctrine of the Moscow Third Internationale.

The Farmer-Labor delegates went into caucus and submited a substitute platform. The section upon which final debate centred being one which would forbid participation of any group which was affiliated, or in any way connected with, any organization that advocated overthrow of the Government by force or violence. It was overwhelmingly defeated, as was a minority resolution which incorporated the same provision.

Resolutions were adopted by the Federated Conference recognising Soviet Russia and Mexico, elimination of "military propaganda" in public schools and enfranchisement of citizens of the District of Columbia.

The platform of the Federated Party declares for nationalization of all public utilities; operation of industries on a basis of increased control by workers and farmers; security against destitution, unemployment, sickness and high prices; the eight-hour maximum work day; a law compelling the Federal Reserve Bank to serve farmers and workers; Child Labor to be limited to those 18 years of age; a minimum living wage for all workers; the Soldier Bonus; and Social and Maternity Insurance laws.

LABOR-SOCIALISTS NAME CANDIDATES

The city organization of the American Labor Party, composed of the Farmer-Labor Party and the Socialist Party, held a convention last night at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, at which candidates for Assembly, Board of Aldermen and Municipal Courts were designated.

Ex-Representative Meyer London was named for the new place in the Second Municipal Court District, Manhattan, where the Socialists are strong enough to make a winning fight and already have one representative on the Bench, Justice Jacob Panken. Another Municipal Court Judgeship which the Socialists believe they may be able to land for one of their number is in the First Municipal Court District in the Bronx. Maurice Gisnet, a lawyer, who has held no public office but has been a candidate for the Assembly on the Socialist ticket, was awarded this designation.

Designees for Assembly nominations in districts where the Socialists have a chance to win were as follows: Sixth New York, Samuel Beardsley, organizer for the International Jewelry Workers' Union No. 1; Seventeenth New York, August Claessens, former Assemblyman; Third Bronx, Abraham Beckerman, ex-Alderman; Fifth Bronx, Esther Friedman, national organizer for the Socialist Party; Twenty-third Kings, William Feigenbaum, ex-Assemblyman.

Algernon Lee, who was mounted out in the Aldermanic elections two years ago and seated by the courts only after his term was almost at an end, was selected for the Aldermanic nomination in the Eighth District, Manhattan, and ex-Assemblyman Louis Waldman for the nomination in the Fourth Aldermanic District, Manhattan. From the Sixth Aldermanic District, also in Manhattan, the designation went to Benjamin Schlesinger, ex-President of the Ladies Garment Workers' Union. Ex-Assemblyman Samuel Orr was chosen for the Twenty-ninth Aldermanic District in the Bronx, and Abraham Shiplacoff, former Assemblyman, for the Aldermanic nomination in the Brownsville District of Brooklyn. All the candidates will have to get their designations ratified in the Socialist primaries this Fall. They will appear on the general ballot under the Socialist emblem only, the Farmer-Labor Party having lost its right to a place on the ballot.

ANTHRACITE MINERS ASK 20% INCREASE

Eleven Demands Submitted to Operators' General Committee in Joint Conference.

TO FIGHT FOR CLOSED SHOP

Abolition of the 12-Hour Day Another of the Major Proposals of Union Scale Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—The Scale Committee, representing 155,000 anthracite miners, served upon the General Committee of Anthracite Operators, to join conference at the Hotel Ambassador this afternoon, the eleven demands voted last week at Scranton.

A 20 per cent. wage increase with a $2 daily advance for day men, abolition of the twelve-hour day, the "closed shop" throughout union fields and introduction of the "check off" were outlined by John L. Lewis, International President of the Miners' Union, as the principal points on which the miners will make their stand.

"But our demands as a whole," Mr. Lewis told the operators, "do not in themselves constitute ironclad demands, nor are they to be received as an ultimatum. Rather, we appeal to your fair play. We ask only that they be submitted to general analysis of all the conferees to determine their merits. Unless they can stand the acid test of analyzation they will fall of their own weight."

The eleven proposals, according to Mr. Lewis, comprised amendments the miners hoped to have incorporated in the present hard coal contract upon its expiration Aug. 31, and as a condition to its renewal, preferably for two years.

Samuel D. Warriner, Chairman of the mine owners' General Committee and President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, said the operators would submit their reply tomorrow morning.

In recognition of the equity the public holds in the present coal issue, the operators through Mr. Warriner agreed to a suggestion of President Lewis that the press be admitted to the opening sessions.

Mr. Lewis was made Chairman of the joint conference. James A. Gorman, Secretary of the Anthracite Board of Conciliation, was made Secretary. The miners' Scale Committee numbered forty and the delegation of mine owners twenty-five.

Although he said the demands as a whole were not included, Mr. Lewis warned of the fight in store to gain what he termed "the three major propositions." These are the wage increase, the eight-hour day and recognition of the Mine Workers' Union. Recognition, he explained, meant "closed shop" and the "check-off."

"There can be no compromise," he announced, "on the righteousness of the principles involved in any of these three."

Miners' wages, he said, ran from $4.20 to a maximum of about $5.60 a day. The miners, he added, were willing to stand by comparison with wages paid for similar work in other industries. He held that the hazard of a miner's calling should be reckoned in any such comparison.

Abolition of the twelve-hour day was asked by Mr. Lewis in behalf of a minority of about 3,000 men in the industry—pumpmen, compressors and the like—who had not yet received the general eight-hour standard.

"Joint relationship" was the desirable result that would follow in the hard coal industry if mine owners granted full recognition of the United Mine Workers of America, Mr. Lewis said. This recognition had long since been given throughout the bituminous industry, he said, and his organization would never rest until it had been equally attained in anthracite.

In his argument for recognition of the union, or the "closed shop," Mr. Lewis said that once full authority were given his organization it could be able to discipline mine workers who had been responsible for recent "unwarranted, reprehensible and unauthorized stoppings in the anthracite collieries." He denounced all violation of written contracts by miners or by employers.

Higher wages for anthracite miners now would not mean higher anthracite prices to consumers, according to Mr. Lewis. He said the forthcoming findings of the United States Coal Commission would prove this.

Rinaldo Cappellini, President-elect of District One, whose 70,000 members made it the largest in the hard coal fields, was in attendance today as a member of the Scale Committee. His presence and his public pledge to support the Lewis administration to the limit in the present negotiations augured well, it was said, for enventual ratification by the rank and file of whatever agreement the present Scale Committee finally subscribes to.

The joint conference adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow morning at the Hotel Ambassador.

TOKIO-SOVIET PARLEY IS NEARING DEADLOCK

Japanese Resist Russian Effort to Put the Responsibility on Them for Invading Siberia.

TOKIO, July 7 (Associated Press).—If Russia persists in her demand that Japan accept full responsibility for the allied expedition into Siberia during the World War, the present conferences between A. A. Joffe and Toshihiko Kawakami will end in deadlock, and there will be no supplementary negotiations for the reopening of commercial relations between the two countries, according to the view generally expressed in Japanese circles.

Already an impasse has been reached on the questions of the massacre of Japanese at Nikolaievsk, and the Soviet demand that Japan evacuate Northern Saghalin, the territory seized following the Nikolaievsk affair. Tokio insists on indemnities for the killing of Japanese nationals.

It is stated, however, that any differences on one point in the conversation will not result in the conferences being called off until all available avenues of approach to the desired goal—the opening of formal negotiations—will have been explored. After this has been done the two Governments involved will decide whether it is possible to initiate final discussions for reopening of relations between Tokio and Moscow.

AID SAYS AMUNDSEN HAS QUIT POLE FLIGHT

Dog Driver, Coming Out, Asserts Explorer's Damaged Plane Could Not Be Repaired.

NOME, Alaska, July 6 (Associated Press).—Captain Ronald Amundsen has definitely abandoned his proposed flight across the North Pole from Wainright, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, according to Gunnar Kaasan, the explorer's dog team driver, who arrived here today on the schooner Sea Wolf from Kotzebue and Wainright.

A recent test fight resulted in damage to the engine of Amundsen's plane, which, Kaasan said, could not be repaired at Wainright.

LOSES SHARE IN STATUE.

Italian Land Owner Who Found It Falls in Supreme Court.

NAPLES, July 6 (Associated Press).—The Supreme Court today gave an interesting verdict in an archaeological case.

At Sinuessa, on the site of an ancient colony founded by Sinopians, a land owner discovered some antique pieces of marble which he sold to an antiquarian at Rome for 800 lire. Dr. Vittorio Spinazola, Director of Antiquities, hearing of the transaction, intercepted the train bringing the fragments to Rome and, availing himself of the right of the State to redeem at a price anything excavated, bought them.

Under his direction the fragments were joined together, and it was found that they formed a magnificent statue of Venus by Praxiteles, one of the greatest of Greek sculptors, of inestimable value.

The owner of the land sued the State for a very large amount, as according to Italian law whoever discovers an antique is entitled to receive half its value. The proprietor won the case in court and the Government appealed, but again lost, and the issue was brought before the Supreme Court, which today decided against the land owner.

TRY GLIDER WITH SAILS.

Machine Tested in Paris Has Masts Like Ship's on Its Wings.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co

PARIS, July 6.—An air glider with sails such as a ship has was flown at the Villa Coublay Aerodrome today. It is a tri-plane built by M. Herremans, who was a member of the Tiger Escadrille during the war, and M. Helen, a veteran aviator.

On each top wing are masts, on which are hoisted sails of ten square yards each. The weight of the glider is 650 pounds.

As Villa Coublay is a flat field and not particularly suited for gliders, the aviators made only short flights, using the sails a few feet. M. Herremans and M. Helen assert they have flown with both sails fully hoisted.

CEMENT WORKERS CALL OFF STRIKE

5,000 Men Return to Work on $45,000,000 Worth of Construction Held Up.

TO CONSCRIPT BRICKLAYERS

Union Head Plans to Draft Shifts of 300 to Work on Schools at Lower Wages.

Five thousand cement workers, who went on strike on June 22 when the building employers refused to grant an increase of 30 cents a day, decided yesterday to return to work on Monday on $45,000,000 worth of construction which has been tied up for two weeks. Allied crafts which called sympathetic strikes also will return to their contracts.

The cement workers will resume at $7 a day. When they went on strike the independent workers were receiving $7.20. The union workers demanded $7.50 a day, and that scale will become effective for them on July 15, according to an announcement yesterday from the headquarters of the Building Trade Employers' Association, 30 West Thirty-third Street.

The men who went on strike for the 30 cents a day additional were members of the District Council of Cement and Concrete Workers. The principal units involved were Local Nos. 6, 18 and 20. When they walked out, the engineers operating the mixers, the carpenters and cement masons struck in sympathy.

The Executive Committee of the Bricklayers' Union of Greater New York, at a meeting at its headquarters, 239 East Eighty-fourth Street, discussed until the early morning hours various proposals by which they thought it might be possible to induce a sufficient number of bricklayers to leave more lucrative jobs for work on the public schools paying from $2 to $4 a day less.

School Jobs Pay $12 Daily.

"When I proposed at the conference of Mayor Hylan's Committee on School Construction at the City Hall on Thursday that we could draft enough bricklayers to man the school job," explained John J. Donnelly, member of the Executive Committee representing Local 34, "I was stating my own views, and not speaking officially for the Union."

"I still believe conscription would be one way of getting enough men to man those jobs. And, of course, when a bricklayer is making $14 to $16 a day, you can't expect him to quit that job voluntarily to go to another job that pays only $12. We haven't received any response to our appeal through the newspapers to the bricklayers, particularly the unmarried workmen, to make that sacrifice in order that school construction might be completed in time for these institutions to be opened on time for the Fall session."

Mr. Donnelly said that while the Executive Committee, including members representing each of the nine locals of the Bricklayers' Union, would not be likely to go on record at present as favoring the selective draft of bricklayers for school work, it would propose that 300 bricklayers, the number needed to resume work on seventeen different contracts, affecting 32 new school buildings or additions to old buildings, give up their more profitable jobs and undertake school construction for one week. Another shift of 300 men would take their place during the second week and so on.

"We don't expect a married man with a family to support to make this sacrifice," explained Mr. Donnelly, "but it is within the bounds of reason to ask the unmarried men to make that much of a contribution to the cause of more and larger school buildings for New York City. The employers have promised that they will give identification cards to these men who make such a sacrifice and will give preference to them when providing employment after the building emergency is passed."

Sweden Decorates Minnesotans.

STOCKHOLM, July 6.—The members of the official Minnesota delegation sent to Sweden by Governor Preus on the occasion of the Tercentenary Jubilee Exposition of the City of Gothenburg have been decorated by the King of Sweden. The President of the delegation, Edgar L. Mattson, has been made Commander of the Order of Wasa and E. A. Skogsberg, Gustav Karlson, Sloan, Bjornstad and Ekman have been made Knights of the Order of Wasa.

Six Jersey Sweat Shop Men Get 60 Days, Fined $100 Each

Judge Leo Sullivan, in the First Criminal Court of Jersey City yesterday, found six sweatshop contractors guilty of violating the Child Welfare act. Some of the defendants pleaded guilty. They were fined $100 each and sentenced to sixty days in the County Penitentiary.

The cases resulted from a round-up of sweatshops last week. Three women who were arrested got suspended sentence pending good behavior. Eleven parents of children from 8 to 15 years old were convicted of forcing their children to work. They were fined $10 each and warned that a second offense would mean a jail sentence and that their children will be taken from them.

MORSE WEEPS IN COURT WHEN CALLED VICTIM

His Counsel Refers to Him as Persecuted Patriot in Plea for Directed Aquittal.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Charles W. Morse, on trial in Criminal Court No. 1 with his three sons and four others on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government, wept copiously today when Judge Nash Rockwood, his counsel, informed the Court that the Fleet Corporation was bent on ruining Morse and his associates who were engaged in building ships.

Judge Rockwood was concluding his arguments in support of his motion for a directed verdict of not guilty for the eight defendants when Morse got out his handkerchief. The weeping continued for several minutes as Rockwood pictured Morse as a patriotic citizen who had been hounded and abused by the Fleet Corporation in his attempts to serve his country.

The Morse trial will go down in history as the "greatest case of legal oppression," Mr. Rockwood declared in closing his argument. Officers of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, he asserted, should be on trial instead of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and the four others indicted with them.

Validity of the indictments was defended by Government counsel who declared that the evidence introduced by the prosecution, which rested its case yesterday, warranted submission of the case to the jury.

On the other hand, the defense contended that before Oct. 23, 1918, it was not a crime by specific statute to defraud the Emergency Fleet Corporation. The indictments, the defense contended, charge that the conspiracy plot was hatched early in 1917, but do not aver that the conspiracy is alleged to have continued until February, 1922, when the Grand Jury returned the indictments.

There will be no session of court tomorrow. Justice Stafford indicated he would rule on the motions early next week. In the event he overrules the motions the defense will begin submission of testimony with the prospect that the case may go to the jury some time in August.

LOSES POST FOR TRYING TO AVOID A SURPLUS

Superintendent of Navajo Reservation Is Ousted for Urging Aids to Spend Whole Allotment.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—On the strength of a report that he had ordered his assistants to finish the fiscal year without a surplus of Federal funds in their possession, Evan Estep has lost his job as Superintendent of the Navajo Reservation at Shiprock, N. M.

An announcement today by the Interior Department said merely that Estep had been separated from the Government service "for cause," but officials revealed at the same time that he had been identified as the man recently cited by Director Lord of the Budget Bureau as an example of what a Government official should not be.

Director Lord's recital of the incident received the official notice of President Harding and led to an immediate inquiry. The Interior Department, it was said today, stated that while absent from his post Estep had telegraphed the Assistant Superintendent urging that every effort be made to complete pending disbursements before the new fiscal year began on July 1.

ENVOYS IN MEXICO FIRM FOR PLEDGES

Warren and Payne Insist Upon Virtually All the American Terms for Recognition.

BUT OBSTACLES REMAIN

Mexican Reports of Agreement Are Taken to Mean Obregon Has Decided to Yield.

MEXICO CITY, July 6 (Associated Press).—Several hurdles remain to be passed before the official views of the United States and Mexican Governments can be placed in the minutes of the conference of American and Mexican representatives who are discussing questions involved in the proposed recognition of Mexico, Charles B. Warren, one of the American delegates, said before entering what was considered an important session today.

The deluge of stories in Mexico City newspapers that the conference has virtually completed its work and that success is assured has been interpreted as an indirect manifestation of the determination of the Mexican Government to meet satisfactorily the views of the United States on the adequate protection of petroleum and agrarian rights in this country.

Should the minutes of the conference, in which are to be entered the Mexican Government's interpretation of its petroleum and agrarian laws and an expression of Mexico's intention to observe these interpretations in good faith, fail to include assurances for which the American commission is contending, the United States will make particular reservations concerning the American rights thus left unsecured.

It was learned today that the completion of the minutes will not be delayed beyond the middle of next week, although it is almost certain that full details of the understanding then reached will not be made public until after the American commission reports to Washington. Whatever statement the United States Commissioners make before leaving Mexico will depend upon the desires of the Mexican Government.

Of two claims conventions, which will not be acted upon until the completion of the minutes of the conference, it was ascertained today that the first will provide for a commission to consist of one Mexican and one American member with a neutral umpire who will consider American claims for damages caused by the revolution; and the second will be composed similarly to pass upon Mexican claims against the United States arising out of the Vera Cruz occupation and the punitive expedition of General Pershing. American claims based upon land expropriations by the Mexican Government will also be considered by the first of these commissions.

Mr. Warren and his associate, John Barton Payne, it is understood, have succeeded in impressing upon the Mexican Government the absolute necessity and desirability of granting virtually all the assurances which the United States has sought to obtain.

Dies Trying to Save Employer.

John F. Kelly, employed on the Staten Island oyster boat Rader, lost his life yesterday afternoon in an attempt to save from drowning John McLaughlin of 124 Bay Street, Tompkinsville, the owner of the boat. The Rader was off New Dorp Beach when McLaughlin, alone on deck, started forward along the narrow space between the hatch and the side of the boat. It is believed he became ill and toppled over the side. Kelly dived overboard after his employer, caught hold of his clothing and had started to swim against the tide back to the boat when suddenly both disappeared.

Irish Agitators Refuse Release.

SYDNEY, Australia, July 6.—Father Michael O'Flanagan and John J. (Sean) O'Kelly, the Irish Republicans arrested here in April charged with engaging in seditious activities, have refused to accept their release on condition that they undertake to address no more public meetings. It is reported that the United States Government has refused to accept them as deportees.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED IN PITTSBURGH STORM

Lightning Strikes One, Two Touch Highly Charged Wires and Two Die in Automobile.

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—Five persons were killed during a thunderstorm which broke over the city late today. A man and a woman were killed by coming in contact with electric wires struck by lightning, another man was struck by lightning while standing on the porch of his home, and two women met death when their automobile skidded on a slippery road while they were hurrying to shelter from the downpour.

Several buildings were struck by lightning and a high wind caused extensive damage.

John Silvachka, a laborer, hurrying to shelter, was electrocuted by a wire which dropped from a pole when lightning severed it.

Mrs. J. Gaver came in contact with a wireless aerial which had fallen across a high tension wire.

William H. Allen was struck dead while standing on his porch.

Mrs. Martha Bowser and Mrs. Anna Walker were killed when their automobile overturned. Four other occupants of the machine were injured.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Damage running into thousands of dollars resulted from an electrical storm of only a few minutes' duration which broke directly over Chicago this afternoon.

A dozen fires were started by lightning; chimneys were leveled by electrical bolts; basements were flooded by the heavy downpour; windows were broken and telephone and electric service was impaired all over the city when wires were blown down.

The temperature, which had climbed to 84 degrees at 2 P. M., dropped 11 degrees during the storm.

One death was attributed to the heat before the storm broke. Richard Uhlemann, a teamster, dropped dead while feeding his horses.

LORENZ CONVICTED OF LIBELING LEGION

Editor of Chicago Staats Zeitung Called Veterans 'Bums' Bribed by Britain.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Arthur Lorenz, former editor of The Staats Zeitung, a German language newspaper, was found guilty of criminal libel against the American Legion by a jury today.

Lorenz was indicted in connection with the publication in the newspaper of an editorial referring to the legion members in derogatory terms. A motion for a new trial will be heard July 21.

If motion for a new trial is denied, Judge Hugo Pam will impose sentence, which may be a year in the penitentiary or a $500 fine, or both.

Lorenz did not take the stand in his own defense. The editorial to which the legion objected was printed in December, 1921, and charged that legion members were "bums, tramps and vagabonds," and that the legion was "bought with British gold to suppress truth."

Several national and State officers of the legion testified.

By the statements in the newspaper, Lorenz slandered the reputation of 600,000 legion members, John K. Murphy, special prosecutor, declared in his closing arguments to the jury. A verdict of guilty will be a verdict for American principles, he declared.

Attorneys for Lorenz maintained that libel consists in its effect on the person libeled and that publication of the editorial in The Staats Zeitung did no material damage to the legion.

Eight Killed in New Zealand Wreck.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 6.—Eight persons were killed and thirty-eight injured yesterday when an Auckland-Wellington express train was derailed near Taumarunus.

Assemblyman Frank W. Long of Newark entered the race for United States Senator yesterday. Other candidates are State Senator William H. Farry of Newark and former County Prosecutor U. Henry Harrison of Caldwell.

60,000 MEN NEEDED IN MILLS, GARY SAYS

permit it, I think, we may say, is a wonderful achievement.

"Many of you here can bear witness to the fact that I have been opposed to it always, and for the reasons which have been published, and no other. Any single company or corporation could have made more rapid progress than has been made by the industry generally, but that would have been unavailing. And it has been recognized by everyone who has carefully studied the situation that in order to make an effort to eliminate the 12-hour day successful, there must be substantial unanimity in the whole industry. It was felt better to go slowly and go right than to go rapidly and make the mistake of risking success.

Good Progress Expected.

"Just when the 12-hour day will be substantially, and I hope entirely eliminated in the steel industry, cannot be now stated with certainty. But it can be said that efforts to get rid of the 12-hour day will be very promptly made and that good progress will result and perfect success reached within a comparatively short time, provided the increases in the number of workmen which now seem apparent continue.

"President Harding is and has been very earnest in his efforts to abolish the 12-hour day in the iron and steel industry, and I am glad to see by his statement published this morning that he intends to do everything practicable to abolish the 12-hour day in all other lines of industry. He is a very consistent and persistent President, and when he knows he is right he is pretty strong. But he will get the full cordial support of the iron and steel industry in this undertaking.

"If you gentlemen would take the pains to read the statements which I have made from time to time, you would have a full and consistent record of our position with relation to the 12-hour day, representing not only my own judgment but also that of my associate officers and associate members of the Board of Directors and Finance Committee of this corporation and also a substantial part of the steel industry of the United States, although not all of it.

"For many months, and I might say for several years, the steel industry has recognized the growing public sentiment which is quite different from what it was a few years ago and, in fact, after the President's dinner one corporation I might mention brought about a reduction of the 12-hour day to about 16 per cent. throughout its whole organization, and some other companies did as well and others better. But the volume of the iron and steel business increased rapidly, the demand was very great, production was considered of high importance, and the percentage of the 12-hour day, instead of continuing to grow smaller, began to increase until, I think, on the average it is equal to about 25 per cent. at the present time in this country, very much to my regret.

"But there will soon be an improvement in that situation I think, because there are expected to be increases in the numbers of workmen. Men coming from the South, from Mexico, from the Philippines and Canada and from various countries abroad have already made some showing, although the present numbers of workmen are inadequate.

Difficulty in Adjustment.

"We shall have some difficulty in making adjustments which will satisfy large numbers of our workmen. I mean by that that many, if not most of the foreigners who come to this country desire to work longer hours, even at the same rate per hour, and that is because by so doing they receive a larger daily allowance. We will have to make some adjustments that will be more or less expensive and possibly will result in some reductions of the quantities produced, though I hope not much, but as stated in our letter, we are determined to get rid of the 12-hour day at the earliest practicable moment and for the reason that the public sentiment favors that, and especially because the President so desires.

"Of course, there are some men that do not agree with the large majority and who would like to work less hours. But so far as we know there are very few workmen who are willing to work less hours unless they receive the same amount per day that they were getting for the long hours. The inferences that have been made by a few that the workmen have been ill-treated in the iron and steel industry during the last few years are without substantial foundation. Also the statements that have been made, though not often I am glad to say, that the Steel Corporation is still working its men seven days a week, are absolutely untrue so far as we at these offices know or are informed.

"During the war we were requested by governmental representatives to produce as much steel as possible and keep our mills and furnaces running night and day for the seven days a week. The necessities of the Government pursue justified them. But as soon as Mr. Baker, the Secretary of War, gave notice that we need not continue seven days a week we immediately gave positive instructions to discontinue and limit the work to six days a week by any one workman, and that rule has been strictly adhered to by our corporations.

"You understand that where furnaces are continuous they have to be kept going continuously. That is the only practicable way of keeping our furnaces in condition and of securing our production. But no one employe has been required or permitted to work more than six days a week since the war so far as our instructions go and so far as our knowledge or information extends."

Gary Answers Questions.

Mr. Gary here offered to answer any questions. Asked to explain why he thought there would be more labor soon, he said, "It is because the workmen are coming from the South, the colored men, and the Mexicans from Mexico and the Filipinos from the Philippines and men from Canada, and immigration is increasing a little. I still think that the immigration laws should be amended, that we should have more here to take care of the business in this country. By that I do not mean any labor which is not desirable for this country should be permitted to come nor that the numbers permitted should be large enough to interfere with the best interest of the laboring people of this country or any other interests, nor extend beyond the actual necessities of the purchasing public of this country. But I think, and that is what I have attempted to say always when I have spoken on this subject, that this country cannot afford in its own interest to prohibit a sufficient number of workmen in this country to take care of the public necessities, which means a large consuming public, and of course, also, the export trade. That, however, is a matter of opinion and not for me to decide. I understand it is in accordance with President Harding's ideas."

Mr. Gary said he did not believe a reduction in the number of working hours at the steel mills would draw a good deal more American labor—that is, labor which is unwilling to work in the mills now because of the twelve-hour days. He further said in answer to a question that the United States Steel Company was not bringing in any of the Mexican and Philippine labor.

Regarding the effect that the shorter working day would have on the cost of steel products, Mr. Gary said:

"It will increase the cost. I made an estimate at the institute of about 15 per cent., and I think that is about right. Of course, we shall do everything possible to increase the use of machinery, so as to enable us to get along with fewer workmen, but we have done everything we could do in that direction up to date."

Asked if the increase of 15 per cent. in production cost would mean an increase in the cost to the consumer, Mr. Gary said: "That is what it ought to mean, provided there is not sufficient profit without it, and I am sorry to say

Not to Be a Basic Eight Hours.

Mr. Gary was asked if it was the intention of the industry to make it a straight eight-hour day and not a basic eight-hour day. He answered that it would be a straight eight-hour day, adding:

"I had a letter from a clergyman of whom I never had heard before, who writes a good, strong letter and says he lived for a great many years in a mining district where a good many years ago the men, through representatives, were clamoring for an eight-hour day, and he said the reasons given by them and some of their representatives were that eight hours was as long as the men could work with justice to themselves and their families. He said finally they got the eight-hour day, but they worked just the same hours, only they used the eight hours as the basic eight-hour day and got extra pay." Mr. Gary said the clergyman referred to was the Rev. L. W. Irwin, Princeton Presbyterian Church, Princeton, W. Va.

"Of course, we know by practical experience that that is the way it has always worked," concluded Judge Gary. "Still, I do not want that to be used as an argument in favor of the twelve-hour day. I am opposed to it, decidedly opposed to it. That is the public sentiment of the country. Times have changed. People do not believe in that now, even for the foreigners who come over here and desire to work longer and earn more money. That is the President's conclusion, and I believe we should keep up with the times, and in saying that I speak for the iron and steel industry—not every man, perhaps, but for the industry as a whole. And I want to compliment the iron and steel industry for having, as I view it, arisen to a high opportunity to do something which, as President Harding says, would be approved generally by the people."

GOMPERS CALLS IT "BLUFF."

Charges Insincerity in Promise to Eliminate 12-Hour Day.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Promises made by E. H. Gary and other heads of the steel industry to President Harding to eliminate the 12-hour day in steel mills at some future date were declared today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, to be "tainted with bluff and insincerity."

"I advise steel workers not to expect too much as a result of the exchange of cordialities between the President and Judge Gary," Mr. Gompers said. "The President suggested to Mr. Gary that the 12-hour day might be abolished 'when there is a surplus of labor available,' and 'Mr

ONE NATION FAVORS HUGHES DRY TREATY

Informally Agrees to 12-Mile Limit—Other Countries Fail to Answer.

PLAN IS OPEN TO CHANGE

Form of Project Is Held Not Final—Idea of a Conference Is Advanced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Although no definite replies have yet been received to the Hughes proposal to Great Britain and other foreign powers for a 12-mile limit treaty for prohibition enforcement purposes, responsible Administration officials stated today that there have been informal conversations with one other power which had indicated a favorable attitude toward the treaty project.

While no reply has been received from Great Britain, it is a foregone conclusion that, if the British reply is parallel with the statements of Lord Curzon in the British Parliament, it would be unacceptable to the United States Government.

There is thought here to be an impression abroad that the 12-mile proposal must be accepted or rejected as it stands. But it was indicated in an authoritative quarter that there was no idea on the part of this Government that there could be no changes in verbiage if it were thought advisable. This Government wants suggestions from foreign powers, but officials hold that if they answer hypothetical questions it might lead to misleading reports abroad and further complicate an already difficult situation.

Deny Advantage Is Being Taken.

Insinuations from abroad that the American Government was trying to take advantage of the situation when it submitted the Hughes proposal were officially repudiated here. The European idea as portrayed in dispatches from London and other capitals, appears to be that the executive branch of the American Government could, at its own discretion, enforce or not enforce the Volstead law with respect to supplies of liquor brought under seal into American waters for beverage use on return voyages of foreign liners.

It was asserted today in a high quarter that this was a mistaken conception of the situation. It was insisted that the Supreme Court decision established the construction on the point in question and left nothing open to this Government except enacting new legislation or negotiating a treaty.

Administration officials said that the treaty method was chosen because it seemed a simpler way out of the quandary into which the Administration has been put by foreign protests against our refusal to allow sealed liquor to enter American waters, also by the inconvenience caused this country by the liquor fleet off the Atlantic Coast.

Officials asserted today that this Government cannot undertake to make a treaty which merely says that the "other" party to it can do something which is "contrary" to existing American law. Officials do not think that the Senate would ratify and such one-sided treaty, and declare that there must be a reciprocal agreement.

This Government, officials reiterated today, is trying to "do the fair thing in the matter." Sometime ago it addressed the British Government concerning the practice of issuing two sets of clearance papers. The British replied that they were anxious to do everything within their power to aid the United States in preventing liquor smuggling. Certain particular suggestions were then put forward by the United States, but the British Government has not seen its way clear to accept them.

New Ruling on Ship Liquor.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (Associated Press).—Liquor allowances to foreign ships in American waters, under a decision today by the Treasury, will be based hereafter on the requirements of laws of the country in whose trade the vessels are operating, regardless of the nationality of the owners.

By this addition to the ship liquor regulations, a British-owned ship engaged exclusively in Italian trade will receive allowances of intoxicants sufficient to comply with the laws of Italy. If a vessel's passenger list and cargo come from several countries, each of which has laws requiring liquor stores, the general medical supply will be granted, and specific provisions of the several laws will be met in addition.

The decision resulted from representations made by the owners of the Cunard liner Tuscania and the White Star liner Arabic through the British Embassy. Each ship came in conflict with the laws of Italy requiring wine stores for steerage passengers, and their owners appealed to the Government for relief.

Lapland's Bars Shut on Return Trip

SOUTHAMPTON, July 6.—The latest trip of the steamer Lapland across the Atlantic from New York was a dry voyage, she reported on her arrival here today. The ship's bars were closed and the ship's surgeon said that the patients who needed alcohol averaged about thirty daily. Their wants were supplied from the medicinal stores.

Dry Law Under Denby in Virgin Islands.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Under an executive order signed by President Harding June 19 and made public today, Secretary Denby, of the Navy Department, becomes responsible for the administration of the Volstead act in the Virgin Islands. The order transfers the duty of administering the act in the islands from the Secretary of the Treasury.

NO APPEAL TO SMITH FROM DRY OFFICIALS

Haynes Denies Aid Has Been Asked in Enforcing Prohibition in New York.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes today declared there was no truth in reports that Federal prohibition officials contemplated an appeal to Governor Smith of New York for aid in enforcing prohibition.

About the usual number of arrests, it was said, have continued in New York since repeal of the State enforcement act. The New York City police have not ceased to function entirely, officials declared, while State officers in northern New York still are actively aiding the Federal staff.

Discharge of eighteen New York prohibition agents on July 1 was explained as a weeding out of "non-producers." Their places probably will be filled in the usual course, it was said, despite the fact that the prohibition appropriation was cut, effective July 1, from $9,250,000 to $9,000,000.

Prohibition agents yesterday raided a roadhouse near Harmon, N. Y., and confiscated more than $1,000 worth of liquor. Charles Hassegowa, owner; Joji Kusumina, manager, and Parra Pato, waiter, were locked up at North Tarrytown on charges of violating the Volstead act.

With the aid of the police Special Agent Walter P. Murphy of the Internal Revenue Bureau raided a printing shop at 119 East Seventeenth Street, seized 100,000 bogus liquor labels and arrested six men, who were arraigned on charges of violating the prohibition and internal revenue laws. All were held for a hearing on July 20.

EDGE BACKS UP COUZENS

And Says "a Good Many" Other Senators Are For Beer.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., July 6.—A good many members of the United States Senate agree with Senator James Couzens in his declaration for a non-intoxicating beer of not more than 5 per cent. alcoholic content, Senator Edge of New Jersey declares in a letter received by Mr. Couzens today, in which he says:

"Everybody is for enforcement of the law, but when a law deliberately violates the intent of the Constitution itself it is almost time to re-write it. It is always difficult to secure support to modify what is looked upon as a moral issue, but, in my judgment, it is almost immoral to attempt to enforce a law that specifies one-half of one per cent. of alcohol as intoxicating.

"The Constitution prohibits intoxicating beverages and has nothing to say about alcoholic beverages. Every country in the world, so far as I have been able to find out, which attempts to differentiate between intoxicating and non-intoxicating beverages permits 2¾ per cent. beer, which by volume is over 3 per cent."

PLAN WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

Long Island North Shore Towns Organize a League.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., July 6.—A Law Enforcement League was formed at a meeting in the chapel of the First Congregational Church here tonight for the purpose of waging relentless war upon bootleggers on the North Shore of Long Island.

About seventy-five ministers and laymen of various communities from Orient Point to Port Jefferson were present. The Rev. R. Clyde White, pastor of the Congregational Church of Wading River, was elected temporary head of the league.

Residents of this section, incensed at the boldness of bootleggers, who have even gone to the length of warning people off the beaches, hope to put an end to the landing of liquor on the shores of Long Island Sound and Peconic Bay.

Sheriff Anna W. Biggs of Suffolk County, who was present, offered to make Deputy Sheriffs of any of those present. He had no applications for the job.

DENY BREWERY RECEIVERS.

Appellate Division Says Ringler Assets Are Sufficient.

The Appellate Division yesterday reversed the appointment of receivers for the property of George Ringler & Co., brewers, in a suit brought by creditors, and declared there was no necessity for the appointment of receivers. The Court said:

"It is apparent from the papers that the assertion that there is a threatened dissipation of assets to the detriment of creditors is not well founded. For it appears that the corporation has available assets to pay its debts, and not necessary for the conduct of its business, to at least the sum of $100,000 over and above the aggregate amount of the debts. It is also shown that the gross assets of the corporation are worth approximately $1,500,000, while its debts aggregate about $143,000."

STIRRED BY 'HALLELUJAHS.'

Two Revival Preachers in Court on Complaint of Neighborhood.

Religious fervor, alleged to have been punctuated by loud "hallelujahs," has marked the progress of the evangelical services being conducted by "Sandy" MacDonald, a red-haired negro from North Carolina, in the Mount Hebron Baptist Church, 592 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn. Yesterday the Rev. J. W. Bright, pastor of the church, the evangelist, members of the congregation and residents in the vicinity of the church appeared in Gates Avenue Court. Pastor Bright was summoned by Mrs. Catherine S. Maxwell, who lives at 590 Marcy Avenue, next to the church. Other neighbors came to sustain her charge that the noise was "endangering the comfort, poise and health" of those living in the vicinity.

Since June 12, Mrs. Maxwell said, her family had been kept up until late at night, and sometimes into the early morning by the meetings next door. Bright waived examination and was held by Magistrate Ellperin for General Sessions.

$360,000 CLUB MORTGAGE.

Army and Navy Organization Refunds Obligations.

Supreme Court Justice McCook signed an order yesterday permitting the Army and Navy Club to mortgage its property at 112 West Fifty-ninth Street for $360,000. The club will use $300,000 of this sum to pay off an existing first mortgage to the Deutscher Verein, from which the property was bought, and $60,000 to apply on a second mortgage for $150,000, on which $40,000 has been paid.

Colonel Frank Q. Brown is President of the club, Brig. Gen. Weigel and Colonel George C. Reed are Vice Presidents and Louis A. Sigaud is Secretary and Treasurer. The club has assets of $110,276 and debts of $687,105, of which $410,000 are secured.

HANISCH THANKS AMERICA.

Austrian President Grateful for Children's Relief Work.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 6.—On the occasion of the suspension of the American children's relief work here President Hanisch attended the last committee meeting and expressed to Captain Gardner Richardson the warmest thanks for his unselfish and extremely useful work.

Herr Hanisch referred to the fact that at the time of its greatest extension the American relief corps fed daily more than 400,000 Austrian children, protecting them from hunger and illness. He said that Austria would always gratefully remember the American help at a most critical time, and asked Captain Richardson to inform the Americans participating in the relief work, particularly Messrs. Hoover and Harkness, of the sincerest gratitude of this country.

GAVE CHILDREN FOR CATTLE.

Up-State Father Convicted of Trading Daughters and Son.

CORTLAND, N. Y., July 6.—Lark Thornington of Truxton, alleged to have traded his two daughters and a son for a horse, a cow and a calf, was found guilty in Children's Court today of improper guardianship.

George Shaw of Truxton, with whom, it was charged, the barter was consummated, recently was released in $1,000 bail on a charge of attacking the younger of the daughters, Belle Thornington. The latter and her brother will be committed to the County Home, the court ordering that the father be compelled to pay for their care. The elder girl, Mamie Thornington, 26, found in the Shaw home, was detained for mental examination.

It came to light in the investigation that the children never had seen a railroad train until recently and had been closely confined.

FLOOD IN SUBWAY HALTS B. M. T. TRAINS

Torrential Rain in Brooklyn Pours Into Montague Street Station.

BOLT HITS TROLLEY CAR

Passengers Escape Injury—Sections of City Deluged at Different Times.

A man on a ladder, a church, a trolley car and a house were struck by lightning. A subway and streets in different parts of the city were flooded by torrential rains. At least one person was overcome by the heat. All this happened within less than two hours in or near New York City yesterday afternoon.

In the early part of the afternoon a storm broke over the lower tip of Manhattan Island and the waves of the Upper Bay were dashed over the sea wall at the Battery, while Times Square basked peacefully in the sun. A little later mid-Manhattan fell under an uncanny spell of darkness and was drenched by a near-cloudburst while persons in the lower part of Manhattan reported the sky was blue.

A crowded De Kalb Avenue trolley car was struck at Grand View Avenue and Stanhope Street, Brooklyn, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon by a bolt of lightning which spent itself without injuring a single passenger. The passengers became excited, but soon were calmed.

Persons who had seen the flame shoot down to the trolley car and heard the screams of women sent telephone calls to the Glendale Police Station. The first reports indicated that several persons had been killed and many injured by the bolt. The police reserves were hurried to the scene and calls were sent to the nearest hospitals to rush ambulances there. When the police started in motor cars they turned in a fire alarm.

When they arrived they found that most of the passengers had deserted the surface car, which was set afire by the bolt. The fire department quickly extinguished the flames.

Another bolt struck the flagpole of the Greenwood Baptist Church, Seventh Avenue and Sixth Street, in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn. It split the flagstaff in two and hurled fragments through a stained glass window.

Charles Nelson, 40, of 179 Sixth Avenue was hurled from a ladder on which he was working at 681 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, when the ladder was struck by lightning. He was taken to Kings County Hospital, where it was said that he was suffering from burns. He sustained slight injuries from his fall, but will recover, according to the latest report from the hospital.

The residence of George Ivins on Rumson Road, Redbank, N. J., was set on fire by lightning and was practically destroyed despite valiant work of firemen from Rumson, Red Bank, Little Silver, Ocean Park and Sea Bright, N. J.

Between 4:40 and 5:30 o'clock the streets of Brooklyn were flooded by one of the heaviest rains of the season. Sewers were inadequate to discharge the water that poured through the gratings and ventilators into the B. M. T. subway tunnel at Montague Street.

Within a few minutes the water covered the subway tracks to such an extent that transit officials considered it inadvisable to operate trains to Manhattan over that line. The water did not interfere, however, with the operation of trains from Manhattan to Brooklyn because the tracks used by those trains are on a higher level.

The B. M. T. subway is equipped with powerful pumps but they were inadequate to discharge the enormous volume of water. The torrents pouring into the subway compelled workmen engaged in building the new station at Lawrence and Willoughby Streets to abandon their jobs until the water could be pumped out.

At Fourth Avenue and Fifth Street, Brooklyn, the water formed a pool from three to four feet deep. Many automobiles were stalled in the flood when their ignition systems were submerged and short-circuited. Children in the neighborhood used the place for a swimming pool. The intersection of Ocean View Avenue and East Sixth Street also was flooded with water knee deep.

Many sections of Coney Island were flooded and thousands of bathers fled the beaches and sought shelter when the storm swept the resort.

Mary Manning of Stamford, Conn., was overcome by the heat near the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Station. She was attended at the station by an ambulance surgeon.

SENT WRONG SOLDIER BODY.

Transposition of Markers Causes Error in Case of Binghamton Man.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 6.—Transposition of markers in the cemetery near Belleau, Aisne, in France is said by United States Government officials to be responsible for the mistake in shipping Mrs. Elizabeth Flynn of 512 Chenango Street another soldier's body for that of her son, Sergeant Francis Joseph Flynn, killed in action in 1918. The body was received in this city in September, 1921, a military funeral being held in St. Paul's Church and interment made with full honors of war.

Yesterday Mrs. Flynn received a communication from N. J. Connor, assistant to the Quartermaster General, stating that a mistake had been discovered in the shipment and the body buried was not that of her son, but of another soldier, and that on opening a grave adjoining that from which the first body was removed, it was found to contain the identification tag of Francis Flynn and the chevrons of his rank as Sergeant. Then it was found the crosses marking the graves had been changed after interment.

The body of Sergeant Flynn will arrive in Binghamton July 9 and will be accompanied by an escort of marines. It will be given burial with full military honors, the Government paying all expenses. What disposition will be made of the body now interred in the Flynn family plot has not been determined.

Avenue, Brooklyn, treated a number of passengers for minor lacerations. All went home.

Meanwhile passengers in the rear cars had hurried forward to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. The prolonged blowing of the whistle had caused a wave of uneasiness. Rumors spread at first to the effect that the train was on fire. Then came a report that a man in the front car had attempted suicide. It was some time before the guards succeeded in getting the passengers back in the train, and getting under way again.

The police are endeavoring to trace the ownership of the knives. All of them, they say, have longer blades than is allowed by law, which will render their owners liable to prosecution under the Sullivan act.

Passengers say that several of the men were wounded, but that all with the exception of the three found in the car managed to escape in the crowd on the station platform.

FEDERAL AIR SERVICE MOVES TO CUT COSTS

Army and Navy Organize New Body to Provide Standard Equipment.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 6 (Associated Press).—Under the organization name of Industrial War Plans Section the United States Army Air Service and the United States Naval Air Service have combined in a business project which will have for its prime motive of existence, a standardized air program, it was learned from Government air officials here today.

A survey of all industrial plants in the country will be made by the new organization. The commodity, equipment and output of each industry will be learned, and it will be the duty of the body to supply the United States Air Service with all equipment going into both Army and Navy airplanes at the shortest possible notice and at the greatest reduction in prices.

This system, according to officials, will eliminate all competitive bidding between the two branches of the Government aviation service and bring about a reduction in the cost of airplane production.

It will be the purpose of the organization to standardize all aerial equipment to keep a supply of each separate part on hand and to supply the Government with such parts as requisitioned, either from the stocks or to order them from the factory most suited to manufacture them within the shortest time.

In the organization there are six arena chiefs, with offices located at Dayton, New York City, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, San Francisco and a subordinate office to the Dayton branch at Akron.

Major James A. Mare will have charge of all branches of the organization. His headquarters will be at Washington, where he will be attached to the staff of General Patrick.

The organization will be ready to function within the next few weeks, officials said. It will be civilian in personnel, but will work directly with Government officials.

Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick was in conference today with Gilbert R. Eichelberger, former Dayton army officer, and plans for the area, which includes Indiana, Ohio, part of Illinois, Kentucky and part of West Virginia, with Dayton as the centre, were discussed. Mr. Eichelberger has been appointed by Secretary of War Weeks to the post of chief of the section, which embraces the States enumerated.

PASSIONS HIGH IN SPAIN IN CIVIL-MILITARY ROW

Angry Scenes Occur in Senate—Premier Says He Will Resist Restoration of Army Rule.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, July 6.—Violent incidents occurred in the Senate yesterday. First, General Aguilera and Señor Sanchez Guerra, former Prime Minister, struck each other during a discussion in the Speaker's office. Subsequently, in a stormy sitting, General Aguilera refused to withdraw the terms of his letter to Señor Sanchez de Toca.

Amid cheers and hoots the two members quarrelled, one wielding a stick and the other drawing a revolver. Eventually order was restored.

The heated political atmosphere had cooled considerably today, and there has been no sign so far of any justification for the wild rumors of approaching revolutionary events. The Government has not yet announced any decision with regard to Aguilera's extraordinary conduct and the violent incidents in the Senate.

Subsequent developments have brought the "responsibilities" question to a climax. The President of the Supreme Court of Military Justice General Aguilera, three days ago accused the former Speaker of the Senate of mendacity and said that the force of national opinion was behind him and would support him. This gave the Prime Minister, the Marquis de Alhucemas, occasion to gain an ovation by declaring that any unconstitutional movement would be resisted by the Government to the death.

Loud cheers for the supremacy of the civil powers were raised in the streets during the passage of the Prime Minister's car, and the crowd of demonstrators visited the Military Casino and Aguilera's house in the course of the evening, shouting, "Up with responsibilities, down with politicians," but there has been no public disturbance of any sort.

109 MAY LOSE CITY JOBS.

Court Rules That O'Malley Erred in Naming Market Aids.

As the result of a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday that Commissioner of Markets O'Malley must appoint supervisors and assistant supervisors of markets from civil service lists, 109 persons named by the Commissioner to $2,500 a year jobs will lose them if the Court of Appeals affirms the ruling. One of the men affected is Moe Hirshfield, brother of the Commissioner of Accounts.

The Appellate Division reversed a decision of Justice Ford restraining Commissioner O'Malley from making appointments from the civil service list in a suit brought by Patrick J. Murray, one of O'Malley's appointees. Justice Ford held the law unconstitutional. Justice Martin, who wrote the Appellate Division opinion, said in part:

"The Constitution establishes competition as the rule guiding the determination of merit and fitness. There is a restriction upon the power of the Legislature to provide for the appointment by means other than competitive examination, when same is practicable.

"Not only is it clear that the Legislature had the power to pass the statute providing for competitive examinations to fill the positions referred to, but also that, in so doing, it simply carried out the intent of the constitutional provision. It was not necessary for the Legislature to say why such positions should be placed in the competitive class."

CAT AND DOG CRUSADE.

Brooklyn S. P. C. A. Collects 10,000 Waifs in a Month.

The crusade against dogs and cats which started in Brooklyn on June 1 has brought more than 10,000 animals to the S. P. C. A. headquarters at 223 Butler Street.

According to Inspector A. G. Haven, in charge of the Brooklyn office, 2,000 dogs and 8,000 cats were rounded up by a force of thirty men. He said that a cage had been constructed at McCarren Park, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, and Betsy Head Park in the East New York section of Brooklyn, where the residents who had rounded up stray dogs and cats place them until they are taken away by agents of the S. P. C. A. He said that 400 animals were secured in the cage at McCarren Park and 800 in the cage at Betsy Head Park during June.

Woman Uses Gas to Kill Herself.

Martin F. Meehann, a publisher, returned to his home, 789 Lexington Avenue last evening, to find his wife, Flora Meehan, unconscious in the kitchen. She had attached a tube to a gas fixture and placed the end in her mouth. Dr. Goodman of Reception Hospital, pronounced the woman dead. Ill health is said to have caused her to commit suicide.

ARREST SEVENTY-FIVE KLANSMEN AT FUNERAL

Charged With Disorderly Conduct for Marching in Springfield, Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, July 6.—Seventy-five Klansmen, who headed the funeral procession of William F. Sweigert, a World War veteran, this afternoon, were arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct. They were marched to jail, where they were soon released on $15 bail each, furnished by an attorney.

A large crowd followed the Klansmen to the jail. One young veteran mounted the Court House steps and spoke to the crowd, declaring that the United States was a free country and that action of the police was a disgrace to the community. The Klansmen wore hoods, but the masks were rolled back, exposing their faces.

The police said the arrests were because of the parade which preceded the funeral and were made under a ruling of Police Judge Davis that three or more persons appearing on the street in masks could be charged with disorderly conduct.

The Klansmen were headed by Kleagle Cortner, who was tried several weeks ago on a charge of conspiracy after a police raid on the Klan headquarters and all of the books, paraphernalia and lists of names had been taken to headquarters. Judge Davis then acquitted Cortner and restored the papers and Klan property.

DYING WOMAN ON SIDEWALK.

Police Believe She Was Struck by an Automobile.

The police of the 177th Street Station are attempting to solve the mystery of the death of Mrs. Mary K. Kearney, a governess, 49 years old, of 805 West 158th Street, who was found unconscious on the sidewalk early yesterday morning.

Patrolman Sullivan of the West 177th Street Station was attracted by the groans of the woman, who was lying in front of 61 Audubon Avenue, only a block from her home. He commandeered a passing automobile and took her to Columbus Hospital, where she died a few minutes later from a fractured skull.

Mrs. Kearney had been living with her sister, Mrs. Susan Woodward of 805 West 168th Street, for four months. According to Mrs. Woodward, her sister had been suffering from insomnia and was accustomed to leave the house early in the morning to walk through a small park nearby before returning to her room.

It is believed that while crossing the street she was struck by an automobile.

MARATHON GOLF MARK SET.

Clevelander Covers 257 Holes in a Day—Old Record 238.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—Rudolph Supan, 21-year-old veteran of the World War, established a new marathon golf record of 257 holes on the Highland Park course here today. Starting at 4:20 o'clock this morning, Supan played until darkness, breaking the former record of 238 holes recently established by N. J. Morris at San Antonio, Texas. Supan played through two rainstorms, one this morning and one this afternoon. He shot his most consistent golf during the morning storm, going out over the nine-hole course in 39 and coming back in 39, making the 18 holes in 78. He stopped for six minutes shortly after noon for food. He used a total of eight caddies and wore out two pairs of shoes. It is estimated he traveled between fifty-eight and sixty miles during the marathon.

"QUIET HOURS" FOR RADIO.

Amateurs Barred From 8 to 10:30 P. M. and During Church Services.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 6.—Quiet hours are to be maintained by amateur radio telegraph stations between 8 and 10:30 P. M., local standard time, and during Sunday-morning church services, according to a regulation of the Department of Commerce, the American Radio Relay League headquarters was advised today.

Under the authority of the radio law of 1912, licenses are being recalled by radio supervisors and stamped with this proviso.

Recent recommendations of the league to the department have been adopted, and among other things provided for is the issuing of special amateur licenses for stations using pure continuous wave.

WARNS SPEEDING GOVERNOR

Maryland Policeman Catches Ritchie Exceeding State Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 6.—A State policeman recently made a prize haul on the Annapolis Boulevard. He stopped Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, and John N. Mackall, Chairman of the State Roads Commission.

The policeman said their car, on one or two spurts, had attained 36 miles an hour, which is a mile above the speed limit.

Having called attention to this excess of speed, the guardian of the highways permitted the Governor and the Commissioner to proceed. They have not admitted, however, that they were going even a mile an hour faster than the law allows.

Negro Death Rate Above White.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The mortality rate among negroes in the United States now is 17 a thousand or 70 per cent. greater than among whites, according to a report issued today by the Interior Department based upon statistics collected by Howard University. The figures further show that while the colored physicians and surgeons increased only 633 or 23.7 per cent. in the last ten years, the number of colored undertakers has increased during the same period by 605 or 60.9 per cent.

Catholic Daughters Elect Officers.

KANSAS CITY, July 6.—The Catholic Daughters of America closed a three-day convention here last night with the election of these officers: Miss Mary C. Duffy, Newark, N. J., Supreme Regent; Miss Frances Maher, Kane, Penn., Vice-Supreme Regent; Miss Katherine M. Rosney, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., National Secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth L. Ahern, New Haven, National Treasurer, and Miss Marie Easly Smith, Washington, D. C., National Advocate. The directors include: Mrs. Jennie V. Green, Baltimore, and Mrs. Mary F. Larkin, New York City.

Czech Minister on Mission to Paris.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, July 6.—Dr. Benes, Minister for Foreign Affairs, left Prague tonight for Paris, whence he will go to London. It is semi-officially stated that his object is to make arrangements for President Masaryk's visit to Paris in the Autumn and to confer with leading statesmen on various questions, especially on French action in the Ruhr and its economic consequences.

Say Alien Officer Took Bribes.

William Leonard, a former immigration inspector at Ellis Island, was placed on trial yesterday before Judge Louis Fitzhenry in the United States District Court on charges of accepting bribes to permit aliens to enter the country without examination. One indictment charges that on May 24, 1921, Leonard accepted $50 from Thurwald Pedersen to permit Astrid Juul to land with her infant son without examination.

HOLDS DYE PATENTS WERE 'CONFISCATED'

Government's Counsel Contends Congress Alone, Not the President, Can "Confiscate."

INSISTS SALE WAS INVALID

Foundation's Attorney Defends the Custodian's Right to Sell Seized Patents "for Any Consideration."

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 6.—Colonel Henry W. Anderson, Special Assistant Attorney General, declared today that the Alien Property Custodian's transfer of seized German patents to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., was confiscatory because the sales price of $250,000 was grossly inadequate. The Government seeks to set aside this sale.

Colonel Anderson declared that Congress alone can confiscate not even the President having that power. In principle of law, he proceeded, the military and commercial necessities of the nation do not justfy a transaction amounting to confiscation.

For the defense Isidor J. Kresel held that the Trading With the Enemy act empowered the Custodian to sell at whatever price the circumstances impelled him to accept, even though inadequate. He contended, however, that the restrictitve terms of the sale made impossible a higher cash price than $250,000.

The defense entered a letter written in Paris April 17, 1919, by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, physician to President Wilson, in which he wrote that the President was informed of A. Mitchell Palmer's report on the patents situation and of the Foundation program and "agreed it was an important accomplishment."

Discredits President's Power.

Colonel Anderson declared President Wilson did not, as insisted by the defense, authorize the conveyance of the patents to the Foundation under the circumstances revealed during the trial. He argued that the President had no more power to confiscate property than the Custodian had, that function being solely resident in Congress.

"The question of what is the welfare of the United States, commercial or military, and what is necessary for the defense of the United States is by the Constitution expressly vested in Congress," continued Colonel Anderson in reply to the assertion of the defense that the sale to the Foundation was commanded by considerations of health and national defense.

"That question is not one to be considered by an officer of an executive department, like the Custodian, nor is it a question that can be considered by the courts."

"I was just wondering why this suit was instituted at all in the name of the United States instead of the Custodian if the title to these patents was in the Custodian," observed Judge Morris.

Colonel Anderson replied that the Custodian was only the hand of the United States that held this property, and its public obligations demanded that the Government be the plaintiff.

"Just how the chemical industry in the United States will be jeopardized" if the Court decides in favor of the Government and nullifies the transfer of patents to the Foundation will be asked of the defense, Judge Morris promised.

Choate's Testimony Ended.

The Government closed its cross-examination of Joseph H. Choate Jr., now counsel to the Foundation and formerly counsel to the Custodian.

The Government, which alleges that the Foundation and the American Dye Institute are one and the same, recorded Mr. Choate's testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, in which the witness said he appeared for both the Foundation and the Institute.

In the bill of complaint the manufacturers composing the institute are accused of employing the Foundation as their instrument in a conspiracy to effect a monopoly.

Before the Senate Judiciary Committee Mr. Choate testified that in 1920, after he became counsel for the Foundation, he went to Paris in the interest of the institute, by which he had been retained, "to present to Congress and the appropriate committees the case for special protection for the American dye industry."

The legal debate, which consumed a considerable part of the session, ensued on the Government's objection to introduction by the defense of documents showing that the Custodian transferred to the Navy Department seventy-two wireless patents and twelve agreements for $500. This evidence was offered to show that at the time the Custodian was selling to the Foundation 4,800 chemical and dye patents for $250,000 the Custodian was selling the navy very valuable wireless patents for a nominal sum, "in pursuance of President Wilson's policy that the patents seized be placed in a position where they would be a help to the Government."

Judge Morris asked: "How do I know but that $500 was the full commercial value of those patents?" and Mr. Kresel admitted that no evidence on that point had yet been presented.

"The title of the Government of the United States to these patents and rights, so far as the Germans are concerned, cannot be questioned," said Colonel Anderson. "That question has been settled in a treay which was dictated by the sword. But as between the officers of the United States, its citizens and its Government, this Government is too great to claim that its necessities, whatever they may be in war or in peace, permit the violation of the fundamental law of this country and the principles of justice as between itself and those who have sought its protection and relied upon its protection."

Insists on Right to Appeal.

Referring to the navy patents transaction, Colonel Anderson protested:

"The idea of standing in a court of the United States and citing as an authority for the sale of property without consideration, in view of the decisions of the courts of this country and of the Supreme Court of the United States, the fact that the officers of the Government themselves took property without consideration! If they did such a thing it was an absolutely invalid act. Whetrer as between this Government and the Germans the Germans can raise the question is immaterial to this issue. But as to anybody that could raise it, if they could, I hope the courts of this country will never be closed to their rights to come into them to question an act of that kind, which has not the slightest element of justice and has for its foundation every principle that Germany asserted in its effort to overthrow the civilization of the world.

"If this corporation is going to take that position in the courts I am ready to challenge it in the name of the United States, for this Government, although it may be powerful, is not above the law, and I hope will never be above morality."

Mr. Kresel argued at length that the custodian had the right to sell the property, under the direction of the President, for any consideration, "whether adequate or inadequate."

When the patents were seized, Colonel Anderson declared, the primary interest in the property was in the United States, with "the power in Congress either to perfect that into a complete interest or to return the property to its owners, subject to such consideration as Congress might impose, if any, or none at all."

Declares Sale Was Confiscation.

Colonel Anderson "assumed for the sake of argument" that the Government never intended to deprive the owners of their property, "but by this act of sale," he asserted, "at an inadequate consideration, or nominal consideration, there was perfected an act of confiscation of the property as against the original owner.

"The Government of the United States was charged with the duty and an obligation in that regard, a sacred duty and trust," he went on, "and therefore it has a right to come into court, although the Germans may not have the right—the United States has a right and a duty to come into court and say, Congress has never determined to confiscate this property, and, therefore, when you undertook to convey and divest any contingent right of the owner to its return and not return its value in the place of it, or when you undertook to convey it and divest the interest of the people of the United States—and this property is now subject to be held as security for the payment of the debts by Germany—you have in effect completed an act of confiscation which you were not authorized to do by any law."

"Every act the Government took in the seizure of this property, if not in its disposition, is claimed by the Government to have been ratified by the treaty," replied Mr. Kresel. "Therefore, it cannot be confiscation of the Germans' interest, assuming even that they had an interest after the seizure, although the courts have held, interpreting the Trading with the Enemy act, that the full title, legal and beneficial, passed to the custodian the minute he filed his demand. How then can it be said that there is any confiscation?"

"The Courts have held without exception that when the Custodian seized this property, he held it as trustee," Colonel Anderson replied. "The full legal and beneficial interest cannot be vested in a trustee. The beneficial interest was outstanding continually, the legal title being held in trust for the final beneficiary named by Congress.

"If this transaction is valid and Congress determines to return all of this property to the Germans—which it must do, unless it is going to confiscate, some time or other, but subject to such conditions as it wants to impose — what can it return?"

McKAY DEMANDS HEARING.

Resents Statements by Federal Counsel in Dye Patents Suit.

Colonel Douglas I. McKay, Vice President of Chemical Foundation, Inc., sent a letter yesterday to Francis P. Garvan, President of the Foundation, taking exception to statements concerning the writer made by the Government's counsel in the suit to withdraw the seized German dye patents sold to the Foundation. In this letter Colonel McKay said:

"THE NEW YORK TIMES carries a story this morning wherein reference is made to me and to compensation which I received as an officer and director of certain corporations which are or were controlled by the Alien Property Custodian because of enemy interest therein.

"Presumably the counsel for the Government in its suit against the Chemical Foundation thinks he has done a very smart thing in attempting to make it appear that I thus received indirect compensation for my services to the Chemical Foundation.

"I think he has done only an unworthy thing, and I am surprised that Government counsel should stoop to such contemptible tactics.

"When recently I was subpoenaed as a witness by the Government I was subjected to preliminary examination by Government counsel. During such preliminary examination reference was made by Government counsel to compensation which I had received for services to corporations which are or were under the control of the Alien Property Custodian.

"I stated to Government counsel that if he opened a similar line of questioning while I was on the witness stand I would request his permission to amplify my answers to bring out clearly and unmistakably that there was and could be no connection whatsoever—whether directly or indirectly—between the compensation which I received from corporations under control of the Alien Property Custodian and the service which I gave as a voluntary contribution to the work of the Chemical Foundation.

"Government counsel agreed to permit me to make such amplification to my answers.

"Government counsel eventually decided not to call me to the witness stand. But apparently he has not hesitated to attempt by innuendo what he was unwilling and unable to do directly and openly.

"I now call upon you, as President of the Chemical Foundation, a party to the suit in process, to secure for me opportunity to record or have recorded in the minutes of the suit the following facts relating directly to the compensation which I received for services rendered to corporations which are or were under the control of the Alien Property Custodian:

"First—The total of such compensation is substantially less than I had been accustomed to earning and receiving in civil life prior to my entrance into the army during the war.

"Second—The total of such compensation is substantially less than I have been accustomed to earning and receiving since I left the army after the close of the war from sources having no relation to or connection with alien property companies.

"Third—I served as a Director and officer of two companies, both alien property controlled, during the time I was connected with the Chemical Foundation, without receiving compensation of any kind whatsoever therefor.

"Fourth—By reason of my services as a Director and officer of alien property companies. I sacrificed and put aside business opportunities which would have been far more lucrative than the total compensation I received from alien property companies. This I did knowingly and with intention, because I believed that service to my country was above private gain.

"Fifth—As a direct result of my services to alien property companies there were realized in savings and economies, for which I was personally and solely responsible, sums at least twenty times larger than the total compensation which I received from all alien property companies.

"I trust that you will take immediate steps to secure for me opportunity to refute the unwarranted and defamatory suggestions put forward by Government counsel, and to that end I shall hold myself ready to appear and give testimony under oath regarding these or any other matters of which I have knowledge."

BANK CLERK ADMITS $169,000 DEFALCATION

Detroit Employe Says He Used People's Bank Securities in Speculating.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., July 6.—Defalcations of Edwin Spencer from the People's State Bank totaled $169,000, and not the $10,000 which the bond department employe first confessed he embezzled, John W. Staley, President of the bank, said today.

Mr. Staley said that Spencer had made a complete confession of his misappropriations when he faced the officials of the bank today.

It is understood that, although the defalcations were begun about two years ago, the greater part of the securities were taken since early in May this year, when the Michigan Department of Banking and the bank's Directors conducted two examinations of its affairs.

President Staley's statement was made public soon after Spencer, who is 62 years old, nodded his head in the Recorder's Court as Judge Jeffries ordered him remanded for sentence.

The demeanor of the prisoner was as calm and sedate as if he were counseling a patron of the bank on a prospective bond investment as he came into court and quietly admitted the embezzlement, saying he stole the securities to cover up losses in speculation.

SABOTAGE ON LINER TRUE, HE DECLARES

Electrical Worker Who Helped to Repair Leviathan Says He Saw Plans of Damage.

CONFIRMS DANIELS REPORT

Blueprints of Mutilation Hidden for Use if Germans Won War, He Asserts.

Daniel Gundacker of 1,121 Richmond Terrace, West New Brighton, an electric welder, said yesterday that he helped to repair the Vaterland, now the Leviathan, during the war, and that as an eye-witness he could corroborate former Secretary of the Navy Daniels's statement that the charges of German sabotage on the great liner were true.

Gunacker said that the damage on the Leviathan was discovered by accident, and that the Germans had hidden a set of blue prints, consisting of complete plans of the Leviathan, on which had been marked the damage done to the ship. According to Gundacker, the plans had been hidden so that if the Germans had won the war and regained possession of the vessel, the German officers put in charge would know what repairs were needed.

Gundacker said these plans had been discovered and that he himself had seen them, though Capt. Earl P. Jessop, U. S. N., retired, who had charge of the repair work, said in Washington on Thursday, that he knew of no German document dealing with sabotage on the Leviathan.

The statement made public by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company on Wednesday, to the effect that the damage to the Leviathan was the result of improper handling of delicate machinery by an unskilled German crew, rather than sabotage, was disputed by Gundacker.

"The fact is," he said, "plans had been very carefully drawn up and carried out for the destruction of the Leviathan, the George Washington and the Princess Irene, as well as others, and were effectively carried out on all. While the damage done on the Leviathan was probably not as great as on the George Washingotn and the rest, yet it was deliberately done by the German crew and the commander, even to the smallest detail, such as the cutting of all electric wires, cables, &c."

LEVIATHAN AVERAGES SPEED OF 23.07 KNOTS

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE LEVIATHAN, July 6.—The run until noon today, when we were 1,044 miles from the Ambrose Channel, has averaged 23.07 knots per hour. The present distance to Cherbourg is 2,174 miles.

At 6:30 P. M. yesterday the Leviathan passed the Canopic, Captain Kearney. That ship sent a message of good wishes.

The spirit of the crew of 1,200 on the Leviathan is highly praised. Ninety per cent of the deck and engineer forces are American and thirty per cent of the stewards. It is the largest crew which ever sailed on a merchant ship under the American flag.

The passengers at 5 o'clock today witnessed the ceremony of throwing a wreath over the port side in memory of sailors, soldiers and marines lost at sea. Mrs. Charles Augustine Robinson of New York, who threw the wreath, was escorted to the ship in New York by a delegation of wounded veterans, the senior Vice Commander of the Woman's Relief Corps, the National Disabled Soldiers' League of New York and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Justice Sutherland of the United States Supreme Court will be the chief guest at a dinner in honor of the Leviathan pilgrims in London next Wednesday.

Vincent Astor is aboard to attend the twenty-first birthday celebration of his sister, Alice, to be given by Lady Ribblesdale in London next week. He will return to America on the Leviathan.

E-Congressman Butler Ames of Massachusetts, who is spoken of as a possible successor to Governor Cox, said today:

"Congress at the next session should remedy the present fatal handicap on the merchant marine by compelling all vessels to seal all their liquor at the three-mile limit under the severest penalties. We would then not jeopardize international rights or strain relations with friendly nations. The cause of prohibition would be materially benefitted by removing the least essential and most stupid of its burdens placed upon it by oversealous extremists."

British to Search Ships for Deserters.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—It is stated that when the Leviathan reaches Southampton between 200 and 300 of the crew will be arrested as deserters from British ships. British shipping companies which trade with the United States are understood to be acting in concert in the matter and proceedings against the men will be taken by the Board of Trade.

The Leviathan on her arrival will most likely be put in quarantine until the police have been able to identify the men wanted. British seamen, it is stated, have been induced to desert on their arrival at American ports by the high wages paid for labor by the American steamship lines.

HARDING RESTS ON SHIP ON HIS WAY TO ALASKA

Transport Henderson's Speed Is Kept at 12 Knots to Allow Smooth Running.

ON BOARD U. S. S. HENDERSON, July 6 (Associated Press).—President Harding was beyond American boundaries today enjoying life at sea in comfortable cabins and on the decks of the marine transport Henderson. Escorting the Henderson are two American destroyers, the Hull and the Corry, equipped with depth finders and commanded by officers who recently made charts of the Pacific shore water depths.

The attendance of the destroyers is due merely to the extraordinary precautions of naval authorities to surround the President with every possible safety during the voyage. The course follows the inland passage from Puget Sound to Alaska and touches the open waters of the Pacific for only a few miles of the trip.

The Henderson's speed was kept at an average of twelve knots, allowing smooth running without roll and with only scarcely noticeable tremor from the 40,000 horsepower reciprocating engines.

The Chief Executive plans entire deversion from governmental affairs through the voyage. He and Mrs. Harding today inspected the ship, meeting the personnel. Both enjoyed in fullest measure the first uninterrupted rest since departing from Washington.

60598 Bankers to say "Yes" or "No"

"How does this hat look on me?"

you turn to a friend for an opinion. The salesman says it looks fine, but the salesman is interested.

Your friend does not care whether you buy the hat or not, but he does care how you look—he is the disinterested adviser. He says what he believes.

On great occasions of doubt we all turn to professional advisers—Bankers, Architects, Lawyers, Doctors, Engineers—whose opinions influence us in things we are going to buy.

The Literary Digest is read by 60,598 Bankers, 3,292 Architects, 56,732 Lawyers, 61,394 Doctors, 29,737 Engineers, whose "Yes" or "No" influence the sale of many kinds of goods.

Millions of people who buy and use the products the national advertiser makes and sells turn to professional advisers whose disinterested opinion they want on matters ranging all the way from a tooth paste to a new factory.

In its circulation of 1,300,000 copies per week, The Literary Digest reaches 359,757 professional advisers, and these professional men are the leading professional men, just as the merchants and manufacturers who read The Digest are the leading merchants and manufacturers.

Men of thought and action, men who lead, men who have arrived, read The Digest, whether professional advisers or merchants, or manufacturers. The Digest did not make them leaders, but leadership makes The Digest necessary to them.

The same advertisement in the pages of The Literary Digest reaches both the customer and the professional adviser who may be consulted about the purchase. And this professional man is a multiple customer, buying in his own individual capacity as a successful and prosperous man, home owner, head of a family, etc., and influencing sales to others in his capacity of professional adviser.

We shall be glad to send any manufacturer or other advertiser a chart showing just how the readers of The Digest are multiple buyers for the goods he makes and sells. The Literary Digest, 354 Fourth Avenue, New York.

COURT SEES LOEW'S IN FILM CONSPIRACY

Grants Injunction to Halt Interference With New Theatre at Peekskill.

"LIABLE TO PROSECUTION"

Deliberate Plot to Ruin Business of Plaintiff, Says Opinion of Appellate Division.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a sweeping opinion yesterday, in granting an injunction against Loew's, Inc., and several of its officers, restraining them from interfering with the Peekskill Theatre, a motion picture house recently built there, in getting films, and causing contracts already made by the Peekskill Theatre with producers and distributers of films from being broken.

The papers allege that Dave Bernstein, Nicholas Schenck and Fred Mitchell, who are, respectively, Vice President, General Manager and booking agent of Loew's, Inc., are interested in a rival theatre, the Colonial, at Peekskill, and that they sought to put the Peekskill Theatre out of business.

The opinion, written by Justice Smith and concurred in by by the four other members of the Court, which reversed a decision of the lower court refusing an injunction, says:

"The distinction between lawful and unlawful competition and the resultant interference with another's business is not in any way obscure. The motive of the defendants is clearly shown, both by their acts and by their statements that they would ruin the plaintiff's business and not allow the plaintiff to procure films for exhibition. That the defendants represent powerful interests aggravates rather than mitigates their unlawful acts.

"The action of the individuals, in their deliberate conspiracy to prevent the plaintiff from obtaining these films, for the purpose of ruining the plaintiff, not only renders these defendants liable to criminal prosecution, but makes them liable personally for all damages which the plaintiff has suffered, and the plaintiff is not confined to his action at law for damages, but the strong arm of equity can stop this unlawful interference by injunction, and to this equitable power the plaintiff has appealed.

"Where a wrong is being perpetrated for malicious purposes, the Court will not look for technical reasons to refuse relief; but, on the other hand, speedy relief should be granted, both that the plaintiff may be protected and that the public may learn that the principles of fair play and free competition are a part of the fundamental and statutory laws of this State and nation. It is claimed that there is no malice here shown, but only a desire to protect the defendants' interest by all their acts of which complaint is made; but the law condemns all acts trespassing upon the legal rights of others as malicious, as a matter of law, and will grant reparation in damages or an injunction where those damages are not capable of specific measurement.

"This interference must be stopped and the courts will have no difficulty, either by injunction or, if necessary, by the administration of the criminal law to prevent these unlawful acts. The courts have little patience with those who trifle with the clear legal rights of another."

LYN HARDING ARRIVES.

London Theatres Suffer From Reduced Incomes of Patrons, He Says.

Lyn Harding, the English actor, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania from London to take part in a Cosmopolitan film production in which Marion Davies will be featured.

Asked about the condition of the drama in England last season, Mr. Harding said:

"The lack of support from regular patrons, I believe, has been the cause of the great losses by producers of legitimate drama. The old patrons do not stay away from lack of interest but because they no longer have the incomes they formerly enjoyed. The attendance at first nights is but a fraction of what it formerly was. First nighters these days come to first-night performances more to be seen than to see. They attend because the flippant younger generation considers it the 'toffy' thing to do.

"I have noticed with great interest the growth of the little theatre movement in the United States and feel that members of these groups are accomplishing much more in the development of a proper sense in theatrical values than all the drama leagues combined, whose only apparent purpose is to usurp the power of the critics."

PLAN LEGION'S WORLD LINK.

"Fidao" Group to Consider, at Indianapolis, Joining Move Abroad.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 6.—Members of the "Fidao" committee of the American Legion, representing the United States veterans in the movement among former World War fighters of eight nations for international peace and comity, will meet here in executive session on July 20, according to an announcement today by Alvin Owsley, National Commander of the Legion.

A program for the Legion's participation in the affairs of the international organization, it was said, will be considered for presentation to the national convention of the Legion in San Francisco and the Legion's representation in the annual convention of the "Fidac," to be held in Brussels, Belgium, in September, also will be discussed.

H. Nelson Jackson of Burlington, Vt., is Chairman of the committee and the members are E. Condon, of New York City; Colonel Cabot Ward, of Paris, France; Colonel L. R. Gignilliat, Culver, Ind.; Congressman A. Platt Andrew, Gloucester, Mass.; Leigh Rovzar, Mexico City, Mexico; Alexander Fitzhugh, Vicksburg, Miss., and General Roy Hoffman, of Okahoma City, Okla.

LACONIA DELAYED BY FOG.

Almost Midnight When the Cunarder Docks Here.

The Cunarder Laconia, from Hamburg via Southampton and Cherbourg with 1,393 passengers did not reach her pier at the foot of West Fourteenth Street until nearly midnight. The delay was due to the dense fog off Nantucket and having to stop at Quarantine to land ten storage passengers who had to be disinfected before being considerable eligible to land at Ellis Island with the other immigrants.

Chief Steward R. B. Powell said there were 80 gallons of wine, six bottles of liquor, 60 gallons of assorted spirits and 2,000 bottles of ale and stout under seal on the ship.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The management of "Go-Go" has again changed its plans, and the final New York performances of that piece will be given at the Apollo Theatre today.

"By the Grace of God," a comedy by Frederick Lonsdale, will be produced by the Selwyns in September, with a cast including Violet Heming, Norman Trevor and Estelle Winwood.

"You and I," now at the Belmont, will open in Chicago on Labor Day.

Bertha Kalich will sail for London on the Adriatic today. She will be seen here next season, under the direction of the Shuberts, in a play now being adapted by Louis K. Anspacher.

MUSIC NOTES.

Dvorak's "New World" symphony is on the Philharmonic Orchestra's third program at the Stadium tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Many motorists will attend Alexis Kosloff's Russian dance benefit at Hastings tomorrow for the Veterans' Mountain Camp.

LUDLOW STREET JAIL MAY BE PLAYGROUND

George Gordon Battle Favors Tearing Down Building to Provide New Recreation Centre.

A proposal to abandon Ludlow Street Jail and make it a public playground has been taken up by the Parks and Playgrounds Association at the suggestion of the Prison Association. George Gordon Battle, President of the Parks and Playground Association, said yesterday that the Directors were heartily in favor of the project and that there seemed to be no legal objection to carrying it out.

"The object," said Mr. Battle, "can be accomplished with legislation by proper action on the part of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Sinking Fund Commissioners. In brief, the Board of Estimate can provide that the civil prisoners, who are now the only inmates of the Ludlow Street Jail, shall no longer be confined in that institution. This will relegate them to the custody of the Sheriff. The Sinking Fund Commissioners can authorize the Sheriff to confine them in the House of Detention, where material witnesses in criminal actions are now kept.

"This would leave Ludlow Street Jail tenantless and the Board of Estimate could transfer the property either to the Park Department or the Board of Education or some other city department for playground and recreation purposes.

"The result would be to add a playground in a section of the city where it is sorely needed. At the same time, there seems to be a kind of poetic justice in using this old prison site, which has so long been a refuge for those who have failed in life, as a means of so directing the coming generation as to prevent, so far as may be, such failures in the future."

Ludlow Street Jail is on Ludlow Street, at Grand and Broome Streets. The prisoners confined there are largely persons who have failed to pay alimony.

Mr. Battle also made public a letter to Mayor Hylan expressing gratification at the Mayor's decision to use the public school yards for playgrounds during the vacation months.

WEEKS GETS POWER TO RETIRE OFFICERS

President Authorizes War Secretary to Act on Findings of Army Boards.

WASHINGTON, July 6. — Specific authority under which the Secretary of War "will act for and in the name of the President and by his authority" in approving or disapproving findings of the army boards which have to do with placing officers in the "Class B" status provided by law is contained in an executive order signed by President Harding June 19 and made public today.

Authority of the Secretary of War to take such final action in the absence of special instructions from the President has been questioned before the courts by officers thus classified, and the executive order was issued to clear up the legal questions thus raised.

Under the Class B system, officers rated by a preliminary board in that classification in their professional attainments go before a final classification board, which reviews all the evidence and submits findings. When the board recommends that an officer be placed in Class B and the action is approved by the Secretary of War, such officer is no longer eligible for promotion.

In certain cases Class B officers then go before the "honest and faithful" board, which determines whether they should be retired with full retirement privileges or with limited privileges, or should be separated from the service completely. The right of approval of the findings of this board also is granted to the Secretary of War by the executive order.

Specific provision is made for the Secretary, in his discretion, to take before the President for personal consideration and action by him any findings of either the final classification or the "honest and faithful" board.

ARBITRATE TRADE DISPUTES

Germans Can't Wait for Courts With Mark Values Fluctuating.

DRESDEN, July 6.—Arbitration is replacing litigation now in Germany's commercial affairs, for the uncertainty of the value of the mark makes quick action necessary. Law suits are so long and expensive that Germans cannot afford them, particularly at a time when the amount they are suing for may shrink to nothing within a few months. As a consequence it is common now for business contracts to contain a clause providing that both parties will accept an arbitration of any differences without resort to the courts.

The German Supreme Court at Leipsic recently gave a decision which indicates a disposition on the part of courts to consider the gold value of the mark at the time the litigation was begun as the amount which an unsuccessful litigant must pay in case a verdict in marks is rendered against him. But as yet this principle has not been thoroughly established, and litigation of all sorts is at a standstill.

EXPLAINS USE OF INSULIN.

Dr. Bartlett Says It Relieves Diabetes, but Does Not Cure It.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Diabetic patients may enjoy a ten-course dinner provided they can afford one, without any restrictions as to the kind of food and suffer no ill-effects, according to Dr. Clarence Bartlett, head of the Department of Medicine in Hahnemann Hospital, if before the meal the patient takes a hypodermic of insulin.

Dr. Bartlett said that insulin, the newly discovered serum for the treatment of diabetes, injected hypodermically, acts as a solvent of the sugar in the blood. The patient, he declared, is relieved of effects of a superabundance of sugar so long as the serum is present in the system, and for that period his circulation is acting normally, Dr. Bartlett said.

For this reason, he explained, insulin is not a cure for diabetes. It merely brings temporary relief.

SAYS RITES FOR BOY KILLED BY HIS AUTO

Priest Freed of Blame in Death of Lad Who Dashed Against Machine.

FATAL ACCIDENT IN JERSEY

Pastor's Daughter Crushed as Car Turns Over at Red Bank After Collision.

When 11-year-old Adolph Brust was run over at noon yesterday by an automobile owned and operated by the Rev. Herbert Farrell, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Roman Catholic Church, Far Rockaway, Queens, the priest and a grown sister of the boy carried him to a drug store, where Father Farrell administered the last rites of the church a few seconds before the boy died.

The accident happened at the intersection of Atlantic Avenue and Essex Streets, Brooklyn, and witnesses said that the boy ran into the fender of the car. The clergyman, they added, swerved his auto, but one of the rear wheels passed over the boy's back. The victim was on his way to his home at 2,804 Atlantic Avenue and his sister, Anna, 18 years old, was walking a short distance behind him.

As Adolph started to cross the street an elevated train was passing and it was believed that he did not hear the horn on the priest's car.

Father Farrell went to the Miller Avenue Police Station and reported the accident. He said he was operating his car at a moderate speed and when he saw the boy step off the sidewalk he blew his horn. He was released on a technical charge of homicide but later, when arraigned before Magistrate Jacob Hilperin in the Adams Street Court, he was discharged, witnesses having testified he was not to blame for the accident.

Miss Angie Chase, 23 years old, daughter of the Rev. W. P. Chase, pastor of a Baptist Church at Livingston, N. J., was killed yesterday afternoon at the entrance to the Rumson Country Club at Red Bank, N. J., when the automobile in which she was riding overturned. Harold Riddle, a clerk in the Red Bank Post Office, was driving. He received internal injuries and a deep cut on the leg.

Riddle, driving along the Rumson Road, approached the entrance to the country club just as Mrs. Edward M. Crane, daughter of Henry C. Atha, started to back her car from the entrance to her father's country home across from the club. Riddle jammed on his brake and his car skidded, the rear fender striking Mrs. Crane's car. The Riddle automobile toppled over. Other automobilists rescued Miss Chase and the driver from beneath the car and carried them to the porch of the Atha residence, where the young woman died.

Mrs. Anna Becker, a widow, of 745 East 178th Street, the Bronx, was discharged by Magistrate Frederick B. House in the Homicide Court when she was arraigned in connection with the death of 8-year-old Katherine Donovan, who was struck by a car Mrs. Becker was driving near the girl's home on June 22.

John J. Ryan, 47 years old, of 115 Brown Place, Jersey City, while riding a bicycle on Ludlow Street, Jersey City, was killed by an automobile. The police charged that Louis Joachim, 28 years old, of 220 Pacific Avenue, was learning to drive the car when the accident happened, with the chauffeur, William Quick, 29 years old, of 25 West Fifty-fourth Street, Bayonne, instructing him. Joachim and Quick were arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Electricity by Steam From Geyser.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., July 6.—Natural steam, obtained from a 400-foot geyser boring, generated 21 kilowatts of electricity in tests made here last night. It is said to have been the first time such a feat has been accomplished in America.

LENGLEN AGAIN WINS WORLD TENNIS TITLE

Beats Miss McKane at Wimbledon, 6-2, 6-2, and Gains Crown for Fifth Time.

OUTGENERALS ENGLISH STAR

Drives Opponent From Net and Then Dominates Play From the Baseline.

U. S. DOUBLES TEAM LOSES

Mrs. Mallory and Richards Eliminated by 5-7, 6-3, 6-4—Hunter Meets Johnston Today.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6 (Associated Press).—Suzanne Lenglen still is supreme among all the women tennis players of the world. With ease and certainty the French star defeated Miss Kathleen McKane the best of Britain's tennis playing women, this afternoon by the score of 6—2, 6—2, and so won, for the fifth successive season, the title of world's champion. It was the fifth meeting between this pair of stars, and, with one exception, it was the worst defeat Suzanne has administered to the lively British woman.

Mlle. Lenglen had the battle in hand from start to finish. Both players started carefully, seemingly with the intention of finding out what the tactics of the other would be, and the first game went to deuce three times. Suzanne soon found out that Miss McKane preferred the safer course of staying in the back court and trusting to deeper returns. So the French star, who can play well in any part of the court, adjusted herself to this style of battle and with her greatest accuracy and sureness in stroking had no difficulty in winning.

She took the first five games, then dropped two and then finished the set on her service.

Advances to Net.

Miss McKane is adept at volleying, and she decided to risk a few excursions to the net when the second set began. Her audacity was worth while, momentarily, giving her one of the first two games, but Suzanne soon drove her back into deeper court and took the net herself. For most of the time the French player also stayed on the back court and the struggle as a whole lacked thrills. It was merely a sure player exchanging blows until a weaker, uncertain opponent hit the ball inaccurately, driving it into the net or out of bounds.

The remainder of the day's program produced little that was exciting. For one thing, the weather, with the thermometer passing the hundred mark in the sun, was too hot for the European players whose game lacked the usual dash. Still it wasn't too hot to keep L. S. D. Deane and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron from beating the American pair, Vincent Richards and Mrs. Molla Mallory, who played a loose game. The score was 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

Randolph Lycett and L. A. Godfrey of England entered the finals in the men's doubles by defeating Dr. A. H. Fyzee and L. S. D. Deane, Indian Davis Cup players, 8—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Win After Dull Match.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan entered the finals in the women's doubles by defeating Miss Kathleen McKane and Mrs. Lambert Chambers in a dull match the score of which was 6—1, 6—2. The victors will play the Misses Austin and Colyer in the finals. The youthful Misses Austin and Colyer advanced to the finals by defeating Mrs. Youle and Miss Rose 8—6, 6—4.

Tomorrow the tournament, which daily for a fortnight has drawn huge crowds to the courts, will come to an end. The chief event will be the tussle for the men's title between William M. Johnston of California, and Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y. The other matches will be for the various doubles championships.

In the men's doubles, Eduardo Flaquer and Count de Gomar of Spain, will play Randolph Lycett and L. A. Godfree of England; in the women's doubles, Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan will meet the Misses Austin and Colyer; in the mixed doubles, Lycett and Miss Ryan will play Deane and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron.

Mrs. Mallory Off Game.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 6.—Vincent Richards and Mrs. Mallory entered the centre court at Wimbledon today to meet L. S. Deane and Mrs. Shepherd-Baron in the mixed doubles semi-finals as the favorites. Richards's hot service and net work and Mrs. Mallory's placing seemed a combination that was unbeatable, but the English couple were determined not to permit Richards to establish himself at the net and they relied on lobs as their chief weapon. Time and again they forced the Americans to fall back to take the balls sent high in the air and ran up themselves while the coast was clear. In this way they took the first three games and ran the score to 5 to 2 before the Americans found their bearings.

Richards put all his force into his service but Mrs. Mallory was not giving him the accurate support he had a right to expect. However, he managed to bring the score to 5-all. Then, for a time, it looked as if the Americans would win as they took two more games and the first set at 7—5.

Richards's slams and Richards's service took the first two games o fthe second set. Then it seemed that, even if Mrs. Mallory was disappointingly uncertain, Richards's efforts would clinch the victory, but Deane unmasked a new device in a little cross court lob when the ball was volleyed at him.

Richards, in his element at hard hitting, suddenly found the ball gently slipping past out of his reach and three games went against him in succession. He replied by harder driving and serving, but the sixth, his service game, went to deuce three times and the English players showed themselves able to meet force with force and varied it with enough clever lobs and pats to capture it.

The strain, however, was telling on Mrs. Barron, and she practically gave the next game to the Americans. But she and her partner then braced and took the second set at 6—3. From then on there was not much doubt how the match would result. It was interesting to the last, but Richards and Mrs. Mallory were up against a finesse they did not know how to combat, and they lost the third set, 6—4:

AMERICAN LOSES AT GOLF.

Bingham Defeated in Semi-Final of French Amateur Tourney.

DIEPPE, July 6 (Associated Press).—Michael Scott of England defeated H. P. Bingham, an American resident of France, in the semi-finals of the French national amateur golf championship tournament today, 4 up and 3 to play. The other semi-final was won by Colonel Hannay Addington, who defeated G. McCall, a Canadian player, one up. The Scott-Bingham match was very closely contested. Every hole from the fourth to the eleventh was halved.

Weissmuller in Hospital; May Never Compete Again

CHICAGO, July 6.—Johnny Weissmuller, crack swimmer of the Illinois Athletic Club and holder of all swimming records up to a half mile, is in a hospital here today and all engagements scheduled for next month have been canceled. Weissmuller's ailment has been diagnosed as a leakage of the heart, and it was said it was doubtful whether the aquatic star would compete again. Physicians who examined Weissmuller said it would be necessary for the star to take a long rest. Overexertion at Decatur last Wednesday, when Johnny swam five hard races, breaking the world's record for 500 meters in one of them, was given as the cause. It was said that Weissmuller probably would not attempt to swim again until the national championships in August.

QUEEN MAB WINNER OF SCHOONER EVENT

Ayer's Yacht Captures Commodore's Prize for Race on Eastern Y. C. Cruise.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 6.—With the flagship Constellation leading the cruisers, Howard S. Vanderbilt's Vagrant, the schooners, and L. F. Crofoot's Virginia, the sloops, the Eastern Yacht Club fleet reached here today after a slow, but enjoyable run of 130 miles across the Gulf of Maine.

The racing honors were won by the Queen Mab, owned and sailed by Vice Commodore Nathaniel F. Ayer, which captured the Commodore's prize for the schooner division; Thomas H. Shepard's 40-footer Katherine which took the Commodore's trophy for single stickers, and Mr. Crofoot's Virginia which gained the prize offered by the Regatta Committee for the yacht making the best corrected time.

The fleet started from Marblehead at noon yesterday, and while the weather held wonderfully clear all night, the breeze was fickle. The Vagrant, well astern at dawn, made a long board off shore and, picking up a few stray zephers, crept round the others and beat the Sonnica, the scratch boat which was ahead at sunrise, by nearly 40 minutes.

The 40-footers had a close race and it was not until the quartette reached the entrance to the Penobscot that the Katherine secured the lead.

The Virginia had no competitor as the Barbara did not leave Marblehead harbor. The fleet will race tomorrow in the Western Penobscot, harboring at Islesboro for the night.

ENTRY BLANKS ISSUED FOR BELMONT MEETING

Twelve Stakes Will Be Run During Autumn Session of Fifteen Days.

Entry blanks were distributed yesterday by the Westchester Racing Association for the stakes for the Autumn meeting at Belmont Park, which will begin on Saturday, Sept. 1, and close on Saturday, Sept. 15, giving fifteen days of racing. Entries for the twelve stakes to be run during the meeting will close on Monday, July 16.

For horses of all ages there will be the Manhattan Handicap at a mile, with $2,500 added, and the Fall Highweight Handicap at six furlongs on the main course with $3,000 in added money. There are two stakes for three-year-olds and upward. The first is the Jockey Club Gold Cup, which is for mares and entire horses, a weight-for-age event at two miles, with $10,000 added and a gold cup, valued at $2,500, presented by the Jockey Club. The other race in this division is the Nassau Selling Stakes at a mile with $2,000 added. The lone event confined to the three-year-olds is the Jerome Handicap at a mile, with $2,500 in added money.

There will be two steeplechase stakes, the Corinthian Handicap at two miles and a half with $2,500 added and the Broadhollow Handicap at two miles with $2,000 added.

All of the other events closing next week are for the juveniles. They include the Matron Stakes for fillies with $3,000 in added money, the Champagne Stakes with $3,500 added, the Nursery Handicap with $3,500 added and the Mineola Selling Stakes with $2,000 added. All of these are at six furlongs over the main course with the exception of the Champagne, which is at seven furlongs. The Tomboy Handicap for fillies with $2,500 added is at five and a half furlongs.

MATHEY TRIUMPHS AND CAUSES UPSET

Former National Doubles Champion Conquers Washburn, 8-6, 6-0 in Nassau Play.

WILLIAMS BEATS VOSHELL

Forced to Three Sets in Order to Gain Semi-Final Bracket—White and Thalheimer Win.

Dean Mathey, former holder of the national doubles championship, caused a big upset in the singles play of the Nassau invitation tennis tournament at Glen Cove, L. I., yesterday, when he advanced to the semi-final round in straight sets at the expense of Watson M. Washburn, ranked tenth on the national list and a member of the United States Davis Cup team. The biggest surprise was not that Mathey beat Washburn nor the fact that he won in straight sets, but that he took the second set at love caused followers of the game scarcely to believe what they saw going on in front of them.

Washburn was on his game in the first set, and seemed to be holding himself in check until Mathey brought the score to six-all by his steady work from back court. Then it was evident that Washburn was really opposed by a strong game from the opposite side of the net. He contrived, with every possible stroke, to gain the next two games, but was unsuccessful, and Mathey captured the first set at 8—6. Both players were forced to keep well back from the net, as the slippery footing on the grass courts after the heavy showers made it dangerous to be drawn up where a shot down the side lines would catch the player flat footed and unable to make a quick start.

Mathey played a defensive game in the second set, and kept returning everything that his opponent sent over so consistently. He was able to wait, therefore, for Washburn to hit out of the court or into the net in order to earn his points. When Mathey's drives were sent to unoccupied corners on the other side of the net they generally came with such speed that Washburn was unable to recover his balance in order to make the get.

Mathey's Game Strong.

Washburn has been ranked in the first ten for the past four seasons while Mathey hasn't occupied a place in the country's select set of tennis players since 1916, the only time he was chosen, although he has been in the second ten consistently. Washburn has lost a great deal in the past two seasons, but it was generally thought until the match yesterday that he still possessed enough of his power of three years ago to withstand Mathey's attack and certainly enough to take at least one game in a set from the former doubles titleholder. Mathey, however, has shown, at least in the present tournament, that his accuracy and ability to get back nearly anything he can reach makes him an opponent to be feared even by the best.

Another upset nearly came to pass in the match between R. Norris Williams 2d, defending titleholder in the Nassau event and twice winner of the National singles title, and S. Howard Voshell, former indoor champion and winner of the Queensborough championship last week in the tournament at the Kew Gardens Club on Long Island. Voshell had his powerful left-handed service working to perfection in the first set and he broke through his opponent's service twice to take the opening frame at 6—3.

However, Williams, who defeated Voshell in the National championships at Germantown, Pa., last year, came back with a steady, well-placed volley game in the next two sets and took the match at 6—2, 6—2, gaining in power as the match progressed. Williams was again forced to rely on his back court game most of the time, seldom coming to the net where he is at his best. His drives in the last two sets of the match, however, were close to the lines and fast enough to pass his opponent several times.

Mathey Faces Anderson.

Williams will meet Dr. George King, holder of the National Clay Court championship, this afternoon in the semi-final round while Mathey faces Frank T. Anderson. Dr. King gained the bracket yesterday by eliminating M. Thomas Ackerland, the only player not seeded in the draw to reach the round before the semi-finals, 6—1, 6—1. Anderson advanced at the expense of H. G. M. Kelleher, veteran member of the New York Church Cup combination, 6—3, 6—1.

Only two matches were contested in the doubles division yesterday. Williams and Washburn found little difficulty in advancing to the semi-finals by beating Walter M. Pate and M. Thomas Ackerland in straight sets at 6—1, 6—3. The Davis Cup players were never extended to their fullest by the losing pair. Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, the University of Texas combination that won the intercollegiate doubles championship at Philadelphia last week, repeated their victory of last Saturday over the Yale representatives, Lucien E. Williams and Arnold W. Jones.

In the intercollegiate final Williams and Jones carried the play to five sets before bowing to the Texas pair, but yesterday, although both sets were closely contested and hard fought, the Yale team relinquished its chance for the semi-final bracket in two straight. The scores were 8—6 and 7—5.

The semi-finals will be completed this afternoon in both the singles and doubles and the finals will be contested tomorrow afternoon.

The summaries:

Singles—Fourth Round—R. Norris Williams 2d, defeated S. Howard Voshell, 3—6, 6—, 6—2; Dr. George King defeated M. Thomas Ackerland, 6—1, 6—1; Dean Mathey defeated Watson M. Washburn, 8—6, 6—0; Frank T. Anderson defeated H. M. Kelleher, 6—3, 6—1.

Doubles—Third Round—Williams and Washburn defeated Walter M. Pate and M. Thomas Ackerland, 6—1, 6—3; Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer defeated Lucien E. Williams and Arnold W. Jones, 10—8, 7—5.

OPENER POSTPONED AT POLO GROUNDS

Giants and Reds to Start Series Today—Rain Halts First Attempt to Play.

The crucial series between the Giants and Reds got along only as far as batting practice yesterday when the skies opened up, the rain fell and the first game was postponed. Several thousand persons were already in the park and several thousand more were streaming along the highways and byways leading to the Polo Grounds when the game was called off while the Reds were at bat in the pre-game practice. It looked as if a big crowd would attend the opening game despite the bad weather, but the downpour damaged the diamond so much that John McGraw decided he wouldn't risk a game under such conditions.

Just when the contest will be played off hadn't been decided at a late hour last night. Probably it will be made part of a double header on the Reds' last trip here in the latter part of August.

In the first game of the series today Pat Moran will call upon one of his two left-handed aces, Eppa Rixey and Rube Benton, while the Giants are likely to have Hugh McQuillan, their most consistent winner, on the firing line.

The Brooklyn-St. Louis tilt at Ebbets Field yesterday met with the same fate as the Giants' game, but Squire Ebbets made immediate plans for playing it off this afternoon in the form of a double-header, starting at 1:30.

JAMIESON'S HOMER WINS FOR INDIANS

Circuit Clout With Two On in Seventh Inning Beats Red Sox, 5 to 3.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—Charlie Jamieson's home run with two on in the seventh drove Howard Ehmke from the box and the Indians defeated Boston, 5 to 3, in the first game of the series here today.

The Red Sox scored all their runs in the eighth when they bunched four hits and a base on balls. Johnny Mitchell was hurt in the seventh and was forced to retire.

YANKS BEAT BROWNS AND WIN 9TH IN ROW

WILLIAMS GETS 13TH HOMER

Hoyt Settles Down After Circuit Drive in First Inning and Outpitches Shocker.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—The New York Yankees recorded their ninth consecutive victory today when they defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2, in the opening game of the present series of four contests. This equaled their own best record for the season, made in the West in May, when they won nine straight from Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago.

It was Battling Bob Shawkey's turn to pitch today, but Manager Huggins stalled Waite Hoyt instead, and the blond boy wonder from Brooklyn vindicated the "hunch" by pitching a brilliant game against the Browns. He was tapped for two runs in the first inning, when Kenneth Williams made his thirteenth home run of the season, but settled down thereafter and never was in serious trouble in the eight ensuing rounds.

Urban Shocker pitched against Hoyt and was nicked for a total of twelve hits. Most of them were bunched in the first, second, eighth and ninth innings, the Yankees scoring in each of these rounds. Ward made three of the Yankees' hits, including a double, which broke a tie in the eighth inning and scored what proved to be the winning runs.

Scott Relieved by McNally.

Despite a painful "charley horse" in his left leg, Everett Scott started the game at his usual position and played an acceptable game until the seventh inning, when Manager Huggins sent Mike McNally to his relief. Bob Meusel also joined the hospital squad with a lame arm and Ernie Johnson reported a badly split hand, which probably will keep him out of the game for at least a week.

George Sisler witnessed the game from the grandstand. Sisler has discarded the heavy smoked glasses which shielded his ailing eyes when the Yankees were here in May, but his right eye still is badly crossed, and it is taken for granted here that he is through for the season. Recent reports to the contrary notwithstanding, he is not practicing with the Browns nor has he any real assurance that he will be able to practice for at least another month.

The Yankees broke away in front by scoring one run in the first inning. Witt led the assault with a double to the right field fence and completed the circuit on Dugan's single past McManus. Ruth struck out, however, and, following Pipp's foul to Schliebner, Meusel rolled to Gerber for a force-out at second which ended the half.

Williams's homer, with Tobin on second base by virtue of a double to the right field wall, canceled the Yankees' lead and put the Browns in front in the Browns' half of the first. Jacobson followed with a single to centre, but Hoyt buzzed a fast one past McManus for a called third strike and Dugan ended the inning with a sparkling play on Gerber's bounder.

Yankees Tie Score.

The Yankees quickly tied the score in the second inning. Ward and Scott singled to left and both advanced on Hoffman's sacrifice. Hoyt singled to centre, scoring Ward, but Scott's bad leg forced him to pull up at third and Witt and Dugan were unable to bring him home.

Only one Yankee batsman reached first base in the next four innigs, and the Browns, although they batted safely in every inning from the third to the sixth, inclusive, could not do a thing with runners on the bases. In the seventh Scott's single to centre, an infield error and Witt's sacrifice put runners on second and third, but Shocker was there in the pinches and Dugan raised an easy fly to Williams for the third out.

With one out in the eighth, Pipp lined a single to left and went to third on Meusel's double to right centre. Ward then bounced a double off the right field bleachers wall for his third hit off Shocker, and Pipp and Meusel scored. McNally, who had succeeded Scott at short, grounded out to Gerber, and Hoffman ended the rally with a towering fly to the Browns' shortstop.

The champions scored again in the ninth. With one out, Witt nudged a triple to the left field bleacher wall and Dugan squeezed him home with a bunt in front of the plate, Shocker tagging the batter after seeing he had no chance to stop the runner. Ruth then ripped a single over second and was left on first when Tobin collared Pipp's long fly.

LEWIS TO REFEREE WILLARD-FIRPO BOUT

Newark Man, Rickard's Second Choice, Is Approved by Jersey Boxing Body.

JIM JEFFRIES MAY ATTEND

Former Champion Probably Will Be Guest of Promoter—Arena Inspection Continues.

The last hope that James J. Jeffries, former heavyweight champion of the world, might referee the twelve-round bout between Jess Willard and Luis Angel Firpo at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday night foundered in yesterday's rainstorm. When Tex Rickard received word on Thursday that the State laws of New Jersey provided that an applicant for a referee's license must have been a resident of that State for at least three years and that the law was not elastic enough to be stretched about the corpulent form of Big Jim, the promoter clung tenaciously to the hope that the matter might be adjusted in some way so that Jeff might crowd himself into the same ring with Willard and Firpo. And what a ringful that would have been. But yesterday Rickard was formally notified by the Jersey Boxing Commission that he would have to agree to some one else as referee.

Harry Lewis of Newark has drawn the assignment. Rickard asserted that Lewis was acceptable to him. Asked if the boxers might interpose an objection, Tex replied: "They can't. The contract reads that they must accept any official who is agreeable to the Jersey Boxing Commission. It doesn't matter to Willard and Firpo who referees the bout. They seem to think that all that is necessary is for the man to be able to count to ten."

Rickard then said that he hoped Jeffries would decide to come East anyway as his guest to attend the fight.

"I will wire him to that effect, and I think the big fellow will accept," said Rickard. "I would like to have him at the ringside. I know he would enjoy seeing these big men in action. Jeff loves a real fight, and I am convinced that this is going to be a real fight."

Still Inspecting Arena.

Commissioner John Saul of the Jersey City Building Department was still busy going over the big arena with six master carpenters yesterday. The inspection had not yet been completed, but Rickard stated that he had been assured everything would be quite all right and that the permit for the bout would be issued not later than Monday. "I am not worrying on that score," said Rickard. "The arena is all right and the fight will be held as scheduled."

According to Frank Coultry, General Manager of Madison Square Garden, the advance sale of seats is expected to reach the $300,000 mark by tonight.

"There has been such a heavy demand," said Coultry, "that we have arranged to keep the box office at the Garden open all day tomorrow from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 at night. The seats being sold now, of course, are the reserved sections at $3, $5, $7, $10 and $15, plus the tax of 10 per cent. The admission tickets will not be placed on sale until the day of the fight. Then the $1 and $2 tickets, of which there will be about 40,000, will be placed on sale at the Garden and in wagons in Jersey City beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. The gates to the arena will be opened at 5 P. M. and the first preliminary will be put on at 8:15. This arrangement will bring the principals in the main bout into the ring at 10 P. M."

Willard Weighs 238 Pounds.

When Willard finished his training at the Columbus Sporting Club in Yonkers yesterday afternoon it was announced that the former heavyweight champion of the world weighed 238 pounds. He expects to enter the ring weighing 237 or a pound or two less. Firpo jumped on the scales after his workout at Long Branch and weighed 214. He expects to enter the ring at that weight.

Both men will continue to work hard today, tomorrow and Monday. Tuesday they will taper off and engage in little but light gymnasium exercise to keep their muscles supple. Wednesday will be a day of the lightest of exercises for the same purpose. Thursday afternoon they will weigh in at the arena in Jersey City in the presence of the representatives of the Jersey Boxing Commission at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Immediately afterward they will be subjected to their last physical examination.

The men who are supervising the training of the rivals, Jack Skelly of Willard and Jimmy DeForest for Firpo, yesterday stated that their charges are so close to the pink that it is difficult to detect any difference in the color of their condition.

Governor Among Those Who Will Welcome Gibbons Home.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 6.—A big parade with several bands, hundreds of automobile and other features is being planned as part of St. Paul's welcome to Tommy Gibbons when the local fighter returns tomorrow from Shelby, where he was defeated by Jack Dempsey. Governor J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul and other high officials have signified their intention of taking part in the welcome. One of those who plans to greet Tommy will be his famous brother, Mike, who taught Tommy much of what he knows about boxing. The two had a quarrel several years ago and have not spoken since. The cause of their dispute never has been made public. Reports from Shelby say that Tommy received a letter from Mike in which the "Phantom" was quoted as expressing his regret at his inability to attend his brother's clash with Dempsey, but declaring "I'll be on my knees praying that you win."

DEMPSEY ARRIVES IN SALT LAKE CITY

GIBBONS DIFFICULT TO HIT

Champion Explains Failure to Score Knockout—Will Spend Short Time With Mother.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 6.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion boxer, reached here today from Shelby, Mont. Hardly a person at the station recognized Jack, and accompanied by his father, he hurried to his mother's home.

"I'm disappointed over not knocking out Tommy Gibbons," Dempsey told reporters, "but I found him a pretty tough boxer. I don't know what I will do next."

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, is said to be making arrangements for a bout in the East, possibly with Harry Wills in New York. Dempsey looked tired. His left eye was black and his face showed the signs of battle.

"Are you hurt anywhere?" he was asked. "Not an injury," he replied. "I wasn't hit real hard after the first two or three rounds."

"What seemed to be the matter, Jack?" he was asked. "Why did all your blows fall short—the kind you usually deliver with telling results?"

"I did miss quite a few of them, I guess, but he is a clever boxer, one of the hardest to hit that I have met," he answered.

Dempsey plans to spend a few days visiting his mother before leaving for California.

DEMPSEY TO MEET HARRY WILLS NEXT

Kearns Declares He Expects to Make Match for New York on Labor Day.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 6 (Associated Press).—Harry Wills, the negro heavyweight, probably will be Jack Dempsey's next opponent, Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, said today. Kearns said he would leave for New York as soon as he had completed his business here to close negotiations for a match with Wills, probably to be held on Labor Day.

"We want to box Wills if for nothing more than to convince the public that Dempsey does not draw the color line and has no fear of him," Kearns said. "The match was red-hot a few months ago, but for some reason it was sidetracked. It is my opinion that it will draw better than a return match with Willard. Dempsey knocked Jess over seven times in one round and could do it again, so I don't see much object in fighting him."

Indian-English Army Fours To Sail July 26 for America

LONDON, July 6.—The Indian Tigers polo team, which is to play a series of matches in America, will sail from England on July 26. The English Army team, which has accepted the invitation of the American Army to play several games in the United States, also will leave on July 26.

GIBBONS IS CHEERED ON HIS WAY HOME

St. Paul Boxer Is Greeted in Manner Customary When President of U. S. Travels.

Special to The New York Times.

MINOT, N. D., July 6.—When the Oriental Limited, carrying Tom Gibbons, who stayed fifteen rounds with Jack Dempsey on July 4, back to his home in St. Paul, arrived there at 6:15 Central time tonight, a crowd of several hundred people had gathered at the station to see him. Gibbons went out on the back platform of the observation car, where the crowd assembled and greeted him with cheers in the manner customary when the President of the United States is on his travels.

There were men, women and children in the crowd, including many infants in arms who were held up over the heads of the adults so that they could get a good look at the contender for the heavyweight championship.

Gibbons himself took the demonstration with calm, good humor, merely smiling and bowing to the crowd and assuring them that he wasn't so badly injured as they might have thought. In view of the feeling through the whole Northwest, where local patriotism regards Gibbons as the sectional hero, there would probably be similar crowds at Devils Lake, Fargo and other points along the line, if the train were going through by daylight. Gibbons is due to arrive in St. Paul at 8:15 tomorrow morning.

BARTFIELD AND GANS DRAW.

Box Twelve Rounds in Wind-Up at Kingsboro Sporting Club.

Those two veterans of the ring, Soldier Bartfield and Italian Joe Gans, boxed twelve rounds to a draw at the Kingsboro Sporting Club, East New York, last night. It was a good bout and, judging by the way the decision was received, there were many in the audience who thought Bartfield had won on points. Bartfield weighed 148¾ pounds and Gans 135½.

In the semi-final of twelve rounds Happy Mahoney gained the decision over Jack Denley. The latter substituted for Charley Pappas and was floored twice in the second round, but managed to weather the storm to the finish. Mahoney weighed 143¼ and Denley 139.

FIRM FRIEND WINS GETAWAY FEATURE

Beats Tangerine in Speculation Handicap Over a Muddy Track at Aqueduct.

SUNFERENCE ALSO VICTOR

Shows Liking for the Going and Takes Union Course Sprint—Favorites Fare Poorly.

Rain and a muddy track cut the number of starters in the Speculation Handicap, the featured event of the getaway card at the Aqueduct track yesterday afternoon, to five, and Sandy McNaughton's four-year-old colt Firm Friend proved the best of the lot by beating R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Tangerine by half a length over the mile route. The gelding was a head in front of Modo, with Ray Jay and Olynthus bringing up the rear. The race was run in 1:38 3-5, fast time under the conditions, and was worth $3,200 to the owner of the winner.

The weather was anything but tempting, despite which a large crowd turned out for the final day of the Queens County Jockey Club's meeting. Rain during the morning and before the racing made the track very muddy and in places decidedly sloppy, and more rain after the first race and during the running of the steeplechase did not make conditions any better. It was not a day for favorites, only two coming home in front.

With the Quincy Stable's All Over scratched, Tangerine looked to be the one which would find the conditions most to his liking in the Speculation and he was made the choice at 9 to 5. Firm Friend, however, had many admirers and they forced his price down from 3 to 1 to 11 to 5 at post time. Ray Jay was the selection to carry the colors of the Quincy Stable, and the winner of the Dwyer last year was much fancied, opening 2 to 1, but receding to 16 to 5.

Ray Jay Rushes Into Lead.

Ray Jay, breaking from the outside position, rushed into the lead at the start and, showing a lot of speed, held command for six furlongs. Firm Friend was rated along behind the pace and after Ray Jay blew up Lang called on Firm Friend and the latter had enough left to hold off Tangerine. Tangerine, which has a tendency to run wide, swung far over around the last turn and lost a lot of ground. But for this he might have been the winner, as he was coming with a rush. Modo ran a much improved race. The fractional times were 0:23, 0:47, 1:12 2-5, 1:38 3-5.

Five also went to the post in the Union Course Handicap at six furlongs, with the Rancocas Stable's Sunference, a good mud runner, installed as the favorite at post time, backed down from 2 to 1 to 13 to 10. The Riviera Stable's Miss Star opened an equal choice, but receded to 3 to 1 and 12 to 5 under the play on the chestnut son of Sun Briar. Sunference proved much the best of the quintet, showing an apparent liking for the going and running away from the others from the start. At one time he had a lead of five lengths on Brainstorm and L. Fator eased the three-year-old to win with ease by a couple of lengths. Brainstorm was four and a half lengths in front of Dry Moon, which took the show money from Miss Starr by a margin of three lengths. Sunference ran the six furlongs in the remarkably good time of 1:11 4-5, four-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Six non-winners at the meeting ran in the mile claiming event, fifth on the card. Excelsis opened at the short odds of 6 to 5. Later he receded to 3 to 1 and closed at 11 to 5. Lucky Antoine, which opened at 3 to 1, closed at the same figure. Samuel Louis's Spinball was backed down from a high of 4 to 1 to a closing of 5 to 2, and altogether there was a decided difference of opinion among the talent as to the relative merits of the sextet in the going.

Excelsis Beaten by a Nose.

Excelsis took the track from the inside position at the start and Mrs. Coburn's gelding appeared likely to be an easy winner after they had gone half the distance, as he had opened up a lead of more than three lengths. He weakened in the stretch drive, however, Spinball coming fast in the whipping finish to gain the verdict by a nose. The rest of the field was well strung out, Excelsis being seven lengths in front of Anniversary, which took the show money by eight lengths from Lucky Antoine.

The Oak Ridge Stable's Black Fox cantered off with the Grandpa Steeplechase of two miles as anticipated. The son of Sea King ran easily behind the Greentree Stable's Connibert for a turn and a half of the field and then came on to win by eight lengths from the Greentree Stable's Irish Sea, which came up to beat his stablemate by three lengths. Sweet Kiss was fourth, twenty lengths in the rear, and Prodigious and Beck fell. The winner was the odds-on favorite at 4 to 5.

Six juveniles splashed over the five-furlong course out of the chute in the opening number, Walter J. Salmon's Jackson winning cleverly under Magnelli's handling, beating W. H. Fizer's Lee Adrin, which has a well-known liking for the mud, by a couple of lengths. Royal Airman took the show money, four lengths back. S. H. Harris's Soubrette, the 8-to-5 favorite, finished fifth. The winner was held at 9 to 2 and Lee Adrin at 13 to 5.

The meeting came to an end with the running of the Belles, a five-furlong dash for the misses. The Riviera Stable's Miss Domino rewarded her backers. The chestnut daughter of Ultimus was in front all the way, beating H. S. Bowns's Baby Lane handily by a length. The latter was two and a half lengths in front of G. D. Widener's Salicia, the favorite at 13 to 10. The winner closed at 9 to 5.

PEARL BENBOE SETS TAVERN STEAK MARK

SOLD LATER FOR $25,000

T. W. Murphy, Syracuse Reinsman, Buys Mare After She Establishes New Figures.

CLEVELAND, July 6 (Associated Press).—Fred Egan, the former Western reinsman, now of Memphis, drove Pearl Benboe to victory and a new record in the Tavern Steak, feature of today's Grand Circuit harness racing program at North Randall. The card contained three stakes, the others being the Fasig Sweepstakes for three-year-old trotters, won by Ethelinda, and the Experiment for three-year-old pacers, which went to Anna Bradford Girl.

Pearl Benboe stepped the first heat in the Tavern event in 2:03 1-5, which lowered the record for the stake of 2:05¾, established last year by The Great Rose. Eighth was the best the mare could do in the second mile, because of a break shortly after the start, but in the third heat Pearl Benboe clipped one and three-fifths seconds off the record she had just set, going the distance in 2:03 3-5.

The time was all the more remarkable because of the condition of the track. Rain yesterday and early today caused a delay in starting the card of nearly two hours.

After Pearl Benboe's victory in the Tavern, she was purchased from John Ryan of Minneapolis, by Thomas W. Murphy, the well-known Syracuse reinsman. The reported price was $25,000. Pearl Benboe is a bay mare by Benboe, her dam being out of Montana Grattan.

Ethelinda was piloted to victory in the Fasig by W. H. Cane of New York, her owner, in straight heats. Her stable companion, Ilo Guy, driven by Walter Cox, the stable's driver, finished third in each heat.

The Experiment Stakes for three-year-old pacers was won by Anna Bradford Girl. It was the inaugural of a stake for three-year-old pacers, a series of similar stakes to be raced at all Grand Circuit tracks.

RACING NOW SHIFTS TO YONKERS TRACK

Empire City Handicap Will Feature the Opening of the Summer Meeting Today.

Thoroughbreds and their followers will shift the scene of their activities this afternoon from Aqueduct to the plant of the Empire City Racing Association on the hill at Yonkers, where the Summer meeting of nineteen days will open with the Empire City Handicap as the feature of the afternoon's sport. Unfortunately, only four have been named over night for the journey of a mile and a quarter, accidents and misfortunes in training having brought the field down to this number from the fine entry of fifty-one. However, it is expected that the quartet named will give a good contest.

The recent form of Hephaistos has been good, and it is recalled that Nedna was running over her field the last time she went to the post when the wire was reached. Picketer gave a fine performance on the occasion of his last start, in the Dwyer Stakes, while Prince James, always a slow horse to come to hand, has had enough racing to put him in shape for a fine effort. It is not always the big fields that gives the spectators the most thrills for their money.

The Empire City Handicap was first run in 1900, and the honor of taking the initial purse went to O. L. Richards's Charentus. The six-year-old carried 106 pounds and galloped the mile and a quarter in 2:04. Since then the race has been won by some of the best-known thoroughbreds in the country. Last year it was carried off by Grey Lag of the Rancocas Stable, which shouldered 132 pounds.

Distance Changed Four Times.

The distance of the Empire City has been changed four times since it was first run. It was inaugurated as a test at the present distance of a mile and a quarter. In 1907 it was cut to a mile, and from 1908 to 1922 the race was held over the mile and a furlong route. This year an extra furlong has been added because of the demand of the patrons for races of longer distances.

Other events on the card this afternoon have filled well. The third race, a condition event for three-year-olds and upward at a mile and seventy yards, is as good as a stake. It has six named to start. It was at Empire last year that Osprey ran his best races. He was one of the best of the two-year-olds that sported silks there and George Odom thought him a first-class colt. Knee trouble kept him from showing his best form late in the season, but since he has been gelded he has returned to form and should be one of the best of his age outside of the stars that will appear at the Empire meeting. Shamrock is another three-year-old with a liking for Empire, his races there last Fall being brilliant. Hobgoblin is another in the third race that should go well over the cushion surface at Yonkers.

Fast Juveniles Entered.

There are a number of two-year-olds with stake pretentions in the last race. Donnelly has the talent confused as to his class; and Sam Louis has had a number of good offers for the son of Spanish Prince since he claimed him from John E. Madden. Reply will be at home at the hilltop, as she prefers a deep and fast course. Bonaparte will have another opportunity to make good in this race.

Among the former idols in the Brevoort Selling Handicap is Tippety Witchet, one of the best horses of his size and a campaigner that races Winter and Summer all over the country. He is one of a field of eighteen named overnight in this event, which should develop a great contest.

Empire City is looking its best for the opening this afternoon. The recent rains have put the track in the best of condition and have freshened up the vegetation. The course is popular with racegoers, who can see the horses at every stage of the racing and the association is looking forward to the best meeting in the history of the track. The completion of the new Bronx River Parkway gives a direct and pleasant route to the Yonkers course.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Commonwealth Sporting Club — Eddie Kelly vs. Paddy Flynn, ten rounds; Archie Walker vs. Sid Buller, ten rounds; Tommy Galston vs. Victor Ritchie, ten rounds.

Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club—Jay Lanahan vs. Wilman Gould, twelve rounds; Jimmy Hutchison vs. Jackie Coburn, six rounds; Patsy Brocco vs. Connie George, six rounds; Willie Miller vs. Eddie Weiss, four rounds; Joe Diana vs. Jimmy Reardon, four rounds.

airplanes, engaged by newspapers, movie corporations and photographic services, were grouped in the small field. The only one heard from last night except the two TIMES planes was that of The Chicago Tribune, which arrived in that city late yesterday afternoon.

The eleven planes took off in a group at 5:30 P. M. (Mountain time), or 8:30 New York daylight time on Wednesday evening. They scattered to the North, South, East and West. Winging ahead, Speers, driving a 220-horsepower Beloit plane, drove on in the van of the Eastward group. As the twilight settled he was a dot ahead in the vision of the other pilots.

Jacobson, to whom had been assigned the somewhat hazardous stretch of night flying between Shelby and Chicago, encountered a stretch of bad luck and came down. Speers held on and at midnight his luck changed. A severe electrical storm swept out of the South and out of the sky of thunder and lightning he dropped down to a field at Glasgow, Mont., where the Chamber of Commerce had flares lighted to guide him. After a two-hour wait, during which the machine was refueled, Speers got away, arriving before noon on Thursday at Williston, N. D.

Forced Down By Storm.

At this point the photographs were unloaded from the airplane and put on a special train that ran to Norfolk, N. D., where another airplane took over the task. This machine sped east for Chicago and came down for delivery to a TIMES Wide World subscriber at St. Paul. Rising from the Minnesota city, the airplane headed for Chicago, but at Janesville, Wis., when about 100 miles short of its goal, was forced to suspend its flight because of a storm.

A quick arrangement brought a special train into the scheme of things at this point. The special rushed on into Chicago, where NEW-YORK TIMES representatives were waiting at the station in automobiles. The pictures were shot to THE TIMES photographing bureau in Chicago, where expert developers transferred some of the plates into negatives. Some of the prints were put on the Twentieth Century Limited and addressed to other representatives scheduled to meet the New York Central train on its arrival here.

Most of the photographic plates, however, were motored out to Checkerboard Field, outside Chicago, where the "last lap" planes were tuned up and ready to start. The first plane, the Curtiss Orole, was in charge of Wesley L. Smith, ace of the Curtiss pilots. Smith, who is a Californian and a former army and United States mail pilot, holds the speed record between Cleveland and Mineola. He covered the 423 miles on Dec. 28, 1920, in 2 hours and 48 minutes, at an average speed of 151 miles an hour.

Start from Checkerboard Field.

The second machine had James W. Ray, a youthful but experienced flier, at the wheel. The plates were wrapped heavily to protect them in the event of a "crash." Fuel tanks brimmed and every inch of the planes had been tested for the homestretch between Chicago and New York. Both pilots were keyed up, for reports had drifted in that competing planes had dodged the storms that THE TIMES fliers had encountered and were far ahead.

At 6:26 o'clock (New York daylight time) the plane piloted by Smith climbed up from Checkerboard Field and took off on the 435-mile stretch to Cleveland. It was decided to defer the departure of Ray in the second plane until the afternoon. Smith had been in the air only a short time when he ran into storms. Extremely heavy rainfall, shifting winds and thunder and lightning combined to make Smith's air path dangerous. Time and again he had to climb or dip down and once he turned his plane far off its direction and skirted a storm. Despite his handicaps, the flier made a perfect landing at Cleveland at 9:25 o'clock (New York daylight time). Plates were hustled off the plane during a fifteen-minute wait and then Smith was off on the last leg to Mineola.

The weather on this stage of the journey proved to be the most difficult of all, with the wind running itself into all types of fluctuation. It would swing steadily for a brief period and would then drop off into eddying puffs. The rain, too, was variable, drizzling down for ten or fifteen minutes and then pouring in deadly earnest so that Smith would get but occasional and dim glimpses of the landmarks that shaped his course.

Motor Track Helps Out.

As soon as Smith circled down to a landing at Mineola the plates were transshipped into a motor car and the machine raced for the train on the Long Island due within a few minutes at Jamaica. The fast car started at a rapid clip, but stalled. Something had gone wrong and there wasn't time to ascertain what. Down the road, however, came an Italian at the wheel of a big motor truck. The machine was "flagged" and the chauffeur listened to a narrative of the situation.

"Sure," he said, "climb in; I'll get them pitchers over to Jamaica quicker than you could yourselves."

His performance was as good as his promise, and when the Long Island train pulled into the Pennsylvania Station at 4:34 o'clock the plates were on board. A fast run from the station to The Times Annex put the plates in the hands of the developers. Then came a few anxious moments. Would they show up clearly? Plate after plate went into the developing fluid and each came out clearly and distinctly.

Meanwhile, a Boston Post representative in an automobile negotiated the trip by road in from Mineola with four prints which had been developed in Chicago and stowed aboard the plane in a special envelope. He managed to catch the 5:02 P. M. (daylight time) train for Boston and reached there at 10:10 o'clock last night. As soon as the complete set of photographs had emerged from the developing tanks and had been fanned into dryness, the second Boston newspaper man boarded the special train.

Second Plane Arrives at 8:30 P. M.

While Smith was racing in ahead, Ray in the second plane was making good time. Ray took off from Checkerboard Field, Chicago, three hours after Smith and, following the air path taken by his colleague, came down at Cleveland. It was not until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon that he took the air at Cleveland, and finding much the same bad weather that Smith had fought his way through, came down at Curtiss Field at 8:30 o'clock last night.

Agents of the Bureau of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice were at the field to meet both planes. They were acting under orders from Chief William J. Burns to see that no motion pictures of the actual prize fight came into this State. When the films for Pathé were removed from the planes agents accompanied the motion picture men into this city, but found that the films that arrived were scenes of the crowd, the arena and Shelby itself and thus were not in violation of the prize fight film law.

Pilot Smith, who brought the pictures in on the last lap of the long jaunt, is 27 years old and was a school teacher at one time. He served throughout the war, first as a machine gun instructor at Camp Mack, Dallas, Texas, and then as a flying instructor at Payne Field, West Point, Miss., with the rank of Second Lieutenant. In addition to his record for speed between New York and Cleveland, Smith is the only pilot who has completed a round trip between these points in one day.

Special Train With Pictures Got There in 4 Hours and 5 Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 6.—THE TIMES Wide World pictures reached the Boston Post in record-breaking time.

The special train taking the pictures established a record for speed which railroad officials say is unprecedented in the history of the New Haven road. The actual running time of the train—a locomotive and two coaches—was 4 hours and 5 minutes.

The Boston Post this morning is the only newspaper in New England to print genuine pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

SWEETSER BREAKS GOLF COURSE MARK

Turns In Card of 68 at Wykagyl in First Round of Victory Cup Tourney.

HAS CLOSE ESCAPE LATER

Is Two Down With Five to Play Against McMahon, but Wins Through Brilliant Recovery.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 6.—Dangerous business this daily breaking of course records; gratifying but dangerous, as Jess Sweetser will admit. It's a nice thing to cheat par, to evade traps and pitfalls laid by the diabolical course-builders, but it has its drawbacks. For one thing it inspires others to attempt it and when it is your opponent who receives the divine spark then it's bad business.

That's exactly what happened during the progress of play in the annual Victory Cup tournament at the Wykagyl Country Club here today. In the morning Sweetser, feeling the urge to create a new record, went around Bob White's skillfully laid-out and wonderfully-kept course in 68 strokes, bettering by three shots the best mark ever made there. And that with 6s at the par 5 ninth and eighteenth and a 4 at the par 3 tenth.

All this was done at the expense of young Leonard Martin of Apawamis, who happened to draw the champion in the first round. The result was that after the first few holes, the youngster was merely a part of the awestruck gallery who followed and marveled. But in the afternoon Sweetser tackled his old college chum, J. Frank (Laddie) McMahon and the latter, still smarting over the way Knepper beat him in the intercollegiates, proceeded to give his illustrious opponent one of the most nerve-racking experiences that he has had in some time.

Sweetser Is Nervous.

By virtue of some uncanny golf, mixed in with some that was decidedly steady and brilliant, McMahon came up to the tenth tee leading Sweetser by two holes. At one time he had been 3 up. Sweetser was decidedly nervous, so nervous that he fuddled up the tenth and got only a half where he should have had a win. McMahon got back to 3 up by winning the eleventh when Sweetser putted three times before sinking his ball, and so it remained after the twelfth was played.

At that point it looked very much as if there was a story in the making. Three down and six to play is not an enviable predicament for even a champion to be in. But if there is any one golf asset that Sweetser has above another it is the ability to put on a gaining sprint at the finish. A good approach and a fair-sized putt gave Sweetser a 3 at the thirteenth, leaving him only 2 down with five holes left. An old Scottish tradition has it that two up and five to play never won a match," and it didn't today.

Playing to the fourteenth, Sweetser, refusing the opening that Laddie gave him when he hooked his approach into a trap at the left of the green, followed suit. He was away some twenty yards from the hole. Taking out his trusty niblick and muttering some strange invocation, Sweetser scooped his ball out of the sand and watched it roll straight into the hole. That was too much for McMahon. He tried it from a shorter distance, but addressed the wrong gods. It was the same trick that Sweetser had pulled on Bobbie Jones in the national championship at Brookline last Fall. And it had the same effect.

From that point Sweetser traveled the straight and narrow par path, while McMahon deviated slightly—not much, but enough to allow Jess to get even at the fifteenth and take the lead at the next. It looked very much as if Sweetser's long hitting would lose the seventeenth hole for him when he drove into the trap a short way from the green, but after getting out he played a superb run-up shot to within a couple of feet of the hole and got his half Then at the home hole, where Sweetser was on the green in three, McMahon, after barely failing to hole his fourth from just off the edge, magnanimously conceded Sweetser a thoroughly missable putt and the match.

So Sweetser will not play in the East and West grand opening of the national open championship at Inwood tomorrow but will remain here to make his attempt to gain his third and last leg on the trophy. It is by no means certain that he will carry off the cup, however, for in the morning he will tackle his old-time rival, John G. Anderson, and in the event of his winning he will have to meet the winner of the Armour-Scharff match. Anderson has been playing steady golf during the present tournament and is always sure to give Sweetser a stiff game, while Armour, should he succeed in disposing of the Scottish-American star, is likewise an extremely capable linksman.

Wins Four Holes Running.

Anderson, after trailing C. E. Bryant Jr., one of the home club players, after the eighth hole had been passed, squared the match at the ninth, and after halving the next two, won four holes running. He had an approximated 74. In the afternoon session he defeated George Lawyer of Montclair by 5 and 4, losing only one hole, the eleventh. Up to that point he was only one over 4s, proving that he is in a dangerous mood.

The Scot, Armour, had two comparatively easy matches. In the morning he caught Dr. A. T. Haight when the doctor was off his game and the result was set down as being 2 and 1, which it wasn't. Kenneth Reid, son of the Ardsley pro, and a youngster of considerable promise, was Armour's opponent in the afternoon. Once more Armour was more considerable in making his report to Scorekeeper Potts than he was on the links. It went down in the records as 5 and 4, but it was more than that. And well it might be, since Sandy went around in something like 70, with a 34 for the last nine holes. Incidentally he made the ninth in 5. Had he accomplished that yesterday he would have defeated Sweetser for the medal.

There was one nip-and-tuck match in the morning. That was between McMahon and young Richard A. Jones of Westchester Hills, the district junior champion. In this encounter McMahon was doing amazing things with his putter, and on the first nine holes he used it only eleven times. Even at that Jones was only 2 down at the turn. He squared the match by winning the eleventh and twelfth with birdies and the thirteenth with a par, but in the seventeenth McMahon holed a 40-footer for a birdie 4, which gave him the match.

In establishing a new record for the course, Sweetser had seven birdies, eight par holes and was over the par figures one stroke at only three. Despite his 6 at the ninth hole he was out in 33, against the par of 36, and he had another stroke on par coming home. This mark not only shattered Sweetser's amateur record of 72, which he made in the qualifying round yesterday, but it also clipped three strokes off the professional record hung up by Frank McNamara and made on the course when it was less exacting than it is at the present time.

Against Sweetser, McMahon jumped the gun by winning the second and third holes. He dropped a fifteen-foot putt down for a birdie 3 at the second and did an extraordinary thing at the next. His second shot dropped into the water and, with the ball half covered, McMahon waded in and made a beautiful recovery to within fifteen feet of the pin. He sank it for a par 4. The combination of recovery and putt seemed to disturb Sweetser so much that the champion took three putts. He got back a hole by winning the fourth, where McMahon was short on his second, but Laddie restored his margin by winning the sixth on a stymie.

Sweetser's Par Useless.

McMahon had a break of luck at the seventh, when his ball hit on the side of a mound and, instead of taking the usual kick to the left of the green, scrambled on to within twelve feet of the hole. He got this 1 down for a birdie 2, and Sweetser's par was useless. McMahon lost the ninth by taking four to get the green, whereas Sweetser required only three.

GOLLAN IS FINALIST IN DIAMOND SCULLS

English Mute Beats Belyea and Will Row Against Morris on Thames Today.

MELLEN'S CREW DEFEATED

With New Yorker at Stroke, Oxonians Eliminated From Grand Challenge Cup Competition.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, July 6 (Associated Press).—M. K. Morris of London today eliminated J. Beresford Jr. from the competition for the Diamond Sculls and tomorrow in the final will meet D. H. L. Gollan, the deaf and dumb oarsman who today eliminated Hilton Belyea of Canada. Morris defeated Beresford, who won the event in 1920 by three lengths. His time was 8 minutes 5 seconds.

The fight for the Grand Challenge Cup, premier trophy of the Henley Regatta, was resumed today with the rowing of a heat in which Brasenose College, Oxford, stroked by W. P. Mellen of New York City, was eliminated from the contest. The Thames Rowing Club put the Oxonians out of the competition after a hard struggle, finishing three-quarters of a length ahead in the fast time of 6 minutes 58 seconds.

Regatta followers are still discussing the race in which Walter Hoover of Duluth, winner of the Diamond Sculls last year, was knocked out at the start this year of his attempt to retain the trophy. While the handicap of a broken scull, with which the American oarsman rowed most of the course Wednesday, was well known to close followers of the races it has not yet been discovered by the English press generally. The Westminster Gazette and The Pall Mall Gazette and Globe took notice today of the unfortunate luck which Hoover had experienced, the latter newspaper saying:

"There was a strip quite two inches wide broken off the blade, yet practically nobody realized the disability under which last year's Diamond Sculls winner made his sporting effort, for he went over the greater part of the course with the broken blade. It is characteristic of Hoover's sportsmanship that he didn't so much as mention the fact to anybody, and to this day only a few know about it. In common fairness to Hoover, however, the fact should be widely known."

MACIEL HAS TRIAL SWIM.

Will Attempt to Cross Channel About Aug. 1—Sullivan Sails.

DOVER, England, July 6.—Romeo Maciel, the Argentine swimer, accompanied by his trainer in a boat, swam two miles against a heavy Channel tide this morning. He was able to make good time. Maciel expects to make his first attempt across the Channel about August 1 which will enable him to precede Charley Toth and Henry Sullivan, the Americans who are expected to arrive here about the end of this month.

BOSTON, July 6.—Henry F. Sullivan of Lowell, distance swimmer, sailed today on the President Adams, for England, to make his fourth attempt to swim the English Channel.

THOMPSON REACHES FINAL.

Meets Mackenzie for Canadian Amateur Golf Title Today.

KANAWAKI, Quebec, July 6.—W. J. Thompson of Mississauga and Redvers Mackenzie, Montreal Country Club, won their semi-final matches today and will meet tomorrow for the Canadian amateur golf championship.

Thompson today defeated J. T. Cuthbert, Winnipeg, 6 up and 5 to play, while Mackenzie won from C. C. Fraser, Kanawaki, 3 and 2.

GOLF TITLE ASPIRANTS IN TEAM PLAY TODAY

East Will Meet West in Preliminary to National Open Tourney at Inwood.

Special to The New York Times.

FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I., July 6.—The first gun of the 1923 national open championship will be fired tomorrow afternoon, when East and West are scheduled to meet despite Rudyard Kipling.

Twelve of the leading golfers from each section of the United States, two of them amateurs, have been selected for each team and will play best-ball foursomes over the Inwood Country Club course in the afternoon, the matches starting at 1 o'clock.

On the amateur side Francis Ouimet of Boston and Bobby Jones of Atlanta will represent the East against the Western pair, Chick Evans and Rudy Knepper. Both Ouimet and Evans have won the national open title, while in last year's event Jones finished in a tie with John L. Black for second place, a stroke in arrears of the winner, Gene Sarazen.

The pros who will represent the East are: Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Bobby Cruikshank of Shackamaxon, Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass.; Jim Barnes of Pelham, Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge, Leo Diegel and Freddie McLeod of Washington, Cyril Walker of Englewood and Charley Hoffner of Philadelphia. Wielding the mashie on behalf of the West will be Billy Mehlhorn, Jack Burke, MacDonald Smith of California, Mike Brady of Detroit, Jock Hutchison of Chicago, Black, Laurie Ayton of Evanston and Harry Hampton. In addition to the team match, Joe Kirkwood, former Australasian champion, will give an exhibition of his fancy trick shots.

Many of the stars who will strive for the national title next week put in a few hours of practice here today. The best score turned in during the day was a 72 by Mehlhorn. The two Californians, Smith and Black, registered 73s. Abe Espinosa of San Francisco had a 75 and Sarazen, Knepper and George Sargent of Columbus, Ohio, President of the P. G. A., had 76s. Hagen also played over the course, as did Jones and Ouimet, who arrived here at noon. The rain has helped the course considerably and experts agree that by siowing up the fairways has added at least two strokes.

COLGATE ADOPTS RULINGS.

Alumni Council Formally Accepts One and Three Year Laws.

HAMILTON, N. Y., July 6.—The one-year-resident ruling, effective since last December, and a three-year party participation clause for varsity intercollegiate sport competition to become effective September, 1924, formally have been adopted by the Alumni Athletic Council of Colgate University, according to announcement.

The three-year party clause prevents Colgate students from representing one or more universities or colleges on the Carnegie list in varsity intercollegiates for more than three years.

135 ENTER GOLF TOURNEY.

Qualifying Play for Connecticut Title Starts Monday.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 6.—A field of 135 golfers, the pick of the clubs in the Connecticut Golf Association, will make the start in the qualifying round of the annual tournament for the State Championship on the Shenecossett Country Club course on Monday.

The pairings for the round were completed tonight. The first pair will drive off at 7:45 A. M., daylight saving time, and should every entrant appear the last players will start at 1:15 in the afternoon.

LIGHTS TO GUIDE FANS AFTER STADIUM MATCH

Various Colors Will Direct Spectators to Proper Exits at Leonard-Tendler Bout.

The fact that the world's lightweight championship debate between Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler is to be held at night at the Yankee Stadium on July 23 and that between sixty and seventy thousand persons are expected to assemble to witness the arguments pro and con offers a problem that until yesterday had not been listed for solution. It is the task of getting the fans out of the park when the fight is over with the least possible congestion and confusion and with the greatest dispatch.

"Entering the stadium by daylight and leaving by artificial light are two different things," said Jimmy Johnston, the matchmaker of the Cromwell Athletic Club. "A spectator is apt to lose his sense of direction. This would lead to confusion. So we have decided to hold a conference next week among representatives of the various transit lines that touch the stadium. I am going to suggest that different colored searchlights be employed just as soon as the bout is over. For instance, a red light to show where the subway station is, a green one the elevated station, &c. This I am sure will facilitate matters and will prove of great assistance to the fans."

Johnston said that he had just returned from Tannersville, N. Y., where Leonard is priming himself for the test. "The champion looks fine," declared Johnston. "He is down to 138 pounds and will not have the least trouble making the lightweight limit of 135 pounds for Tendler. It isn't often that Leonard talks in advance of a fight—that is, talks about his hopes and expectations—but Benny told me that he expects to knock out Tendler. So much for Leonard's condition. The condition of the advance sale is just as healthy. The orders are rolling in. That's what makes a promoter happy, and if smiles could be liquidated for ten dollars each I could collect a million dollars." And Johnston smiled his best promotional smile to show what he meant.

SARAZEN WINS TWICE.

Captures Morning and Afternoon Matches at Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 6.—Gene Sarazen, American open golf champion, scored a double victory on the Brooklawn Country Club links here today. In the morning match, paired with T. T. L. Hubbard, a Brooklawn golfer, he defeated W. P. Seeley, State amateur champion, and George Sparling, Brooklawn professional, 1 up.

Jock Hutchison, paired with Sarazen, scored over Sparling and Walsh, assistant pro at Brooklawn, 3 up in the afternoon. Hutchison made 71, par for the course, while Sarazen covered both eighteen holes in 73.

Gene was formerly a caddie at the Brooklawn club and credits Sparling with teaching him the rudiments of golf.

MISS EDITH LEITCH SAILS.

Leaves England to Play in Canadian and American Golf Tcurneys.

LONDON, July 6.—Miss Edith Leitch, who probably will be the only British representative in the Canadian and American women's golf championships, left London today for Canada.

Lynch to Box Patsy Johnson.

Joe Lynch, the bantamweight champion, yesterday signed to box twelve rounds with Patsy Johnson of Trenton at Erie, Pa., on July 13. His manager, Eddie Mead, also is considering an offer for Lynch to box Jabez White of Albany at the Oakland A. A. of Jersey City on July 19.

AMATEUR CYCLING TITLE WON BY FENN

Eighteen-Year-Old Rider Takes Mile Race and Clinches Championship.

PARENTS CHEER HIM ON

Willie Spencer Defeats Piani in Straight Heats in One-Mile Event Before 14,000 Here.

Willie Fenn Jr., eighteen-year-old youngster of East Orange, who rides for the Bayview Wheelmen of Newark, clinched the amateur bicycle championship of America when he won the one-mile titular race, the fourth of a series of six races to decide the amateur title, at the New York Velodrome last night before a crowd of 14,000 fans.

There are still two championship races to be decided, one at two miles and the other at five. Fenn can lose both of these races and still cannot be beaten for the championship. He has won the quarter, one-third, half and one mile races. In the mile last night he easily defeated Ed Bendi of the Unione Sportiva Italiana, Gus Merkel of Newark and Dan Costello of the Unione Sportiva Italiana.

The proudest man in the crowd was Willie Fenn's father, who was one of the best riders in America fifteen years ago. Fenn's mother also was at the track last night and rejoiced over her son's victory.

The standing in the amateur championship reads as follows:

Fenn, 20; Merkel, 5; Hambacher and Bundt, 4; Benezatti and Bendi, 3; Seuffert, 2; Adams, Lane and Costello, 1.

Spencer Shows Speed.

Willie Spencer, American professional champion, defeated Orlando Piani of Italy in two straight heats of a mile match race. Spencer rode around Piani in the first heat, nipping him at the tape and winning by inches. Spencer took a flier in the second heat, catching Piani napping, and won by two lengths.

Phillip Gries of the Bronx, better known as "Spark Plug," got more applause than any rider has received at the uptown saucer this season when he won the half-mile handicap from the 150-yard mark. It was his first victory since the New York track has been built.

Ray Eaton won the alternance race, a four-cornered French point race, from Willie Lorenz, Alf Goullet and Mario Bergamini. Eaton scored 23 points, Lorenz 20, Goullet 16 and Bergamini 13. The race was run in four heats, with three riders competing in each, one being left out each time. Goullet took the first heat, after a hard ride, from Lorenz and Bergamini; Lorenz won the second, beating Bergamini and Eaton; Eaton took the third from Lorenz and Goullet, and Eaton won the race by getting the fourth heat, in which he defeated Bergamini and Goullet.

Walthour Is Victor.

Bobby Walthour Jr. defeated Lucien Louet of France and Eddie Madden of Newark in two straight heats of a two-thirds-of-a-mile match. Walthour nipped Louet at the tape in the first heat, while in the second he rode around both Madden and Louet while they were going at top speed and just beat Louet to the tape.

Clarence Carman of Jamaica won the ten-mile motor-paced match race from Vincent Madonna of Italy. Madonna won the first heat, but Carman came back strong and took the second and third. Carman was paced by Otto Miller of Brooklyn, while Jimmy Hunter of Newark paced Madonna.

The summaries:

Two-thirds Mile Match Race (Professional)—Robert H. Walthour Jr., Newark; Eddie Madden, Newark; Lucien Louet, France. Won by Walthour. First heat—Won by Walthour; Louet, second; Madden, third. Time—2:14 4-5. Last eighth, 0:12 2-5.

Second heat—Won by Walthour, Louet, second; Madden, third. Time—2:15 1-5. Last eighth, 0:12 1-5.

One-Mile Match Race (Professional)—Willie Spencer, Newark, vs. Orlando Piani, Italy; won by Willie Spencer. First heat—Won by Spencer. Time—4:24 4-5. Last eighth, 0:12 1-5. Second heat—Won by Spencer. Time—4:24 1-5. Last eighth, 0:12.

One-Mile National Championship (Amateur)—Won by Willie S. Fenn, Bayview Wheelmen; Edward Botdi, Unione Sportiva Italiana, second; Gus Merkel, Newark, third; Dan Costello, Unione Sportiva Italiana, fourth. Time—2:35.

Half-Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Phillip Gries, New York City (150 yards); Paul Croley, New Crescent Wheelmen (50 yards), second; A. Travani, Unione Sportiva Italiana (75 yards), third; Eugene Aickelin, Bronx Wheelmen (35 yards), fourth; Willie Heinsberg, North Hudson Wheelmen (40 yards), fifth. Time—0:54 3-5.

Alternance Match Race (Professional)—Won by Ray Eaton, East Orange, 23 points; Willie Lorenz, Germany, 20 points, second; Alfred Goullet, Newark, 16 points, third; Mario Bergamini, Italy, 13 points, fourth.

Australian Pursuit Race (Professional)—Reggie McNamara, Newark vs. Pete Van Kempen, Holland. Won by Van Kempen. Time—6:39 3-5. Distance—3 miles, 1 lap.

10-mile Motor-paced Matched Race (Professional)—Vincent Madonna, Italy, paced by Jimmy Hunter, Philadelphia, vs. Clarence Carman, Jamaica, paced by Otto Miller, Brooklyn. Won by Carman. First heat won by Madonna. Time—14:00 4-5. Second heat won by Carman. Time—14:05 3-5. Third heat won by Carman. Time—14.13 4-5.

SEMI-FINAL MATCH SIGNED BY O'ROURKE

Curtin and Edwards to Meet Before the Criqui-Dundee Bout at Polo Grounds.

"Arranging the preliminary program for a championship bout entails almost as much work as making the championship match itself," said Tom O'Rourke yesterday as he was cornered in the headquarters of the Polo Grounds Athletic Club. Tom was surrounded by a troupe of managers and their charges. He was "looking over the field," as he expressed it, to make the best selections possible to precede the fifteen-round battle between Eugene Criqui and Johnny Dundee for the world's featherweight championship to be held at the Polo Grounds on the night of July 26

When O'Rourke had finished for the day he announced that he had clinched a semi-final match. "I have signed Irish Johnny Curtin of Jersey and Danny Edwards, the little negro from California. That should be a good scrap. I intend to arrange three other preliminaries."

Criqui and Dundee both started serious training for the match yesterday. Criqui unlimbered his heavy guns at his training quarters at Manhasset, L. I., where he trained for his bout with Johnny Kilbane that led him to the world's championship. Dundee began operations at his home in Orange, N. J. Early next week Dundee will go to John Collins's health farm at Summit, N. J., where he will train with Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion, who will begin light work for his bout with Harry Greb at the Polo Grounds on Aug. 31.

McTIGUE TO BOX LOUGHRAN.

Return Bout of Twelve Rounds Set for July 19 in Jersey.

Mike McTigue has a grievance. He is not peeved with anyone but himself. It will be recalled that two weeks ago Mike boxed eight rounds with Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia. Tommy received the popular decision. It was the first bout Mike had had since he won the world's light heavyweight championship from Battling Siki in Dublin last St. Patrick's Day. Mike has contended ever since that inactivity prevented him from doing justice.

He has been anxious to wipe out the blot. For this reason Joe Jacobs, his manager, yesterday signed for a return bout with Loughran. They will box twelve rounds at Harrison, N. J., on July 19. The bout will be staged by the All-Stars Alliance of which John M. Tenney is the matchmaker.

CORNELL RIFLEMEN WIN COLLEGE SHOOT

Take First Honors at Plattsburg —Murray of C. C. N. Y. Is Individual Star.

SYRACUSE TEAM IS SECOND

Seven Best Shots to Represent Second Army Corps in National Matches at Camp Perry.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 6.—Cornell University's riflemen carried off the honors in the annual intercollegiate team rifle shoot held this week at the Plattsburg R. O. T. C. Camp for college men, according to the scores announced today, with a total of 939 points, Syracuse University, which won the plaque offered last year as prize to the highest college team, took second honors this year with 915 points.

The teams were composed of six men each now attending the six-weeks' training camp for college men as part of their requirement for gaining second lieutenancies in the Officers' Reserve Corps upon graduation. Last week all men in the Plattsburg R. O. T. C. Camp fired the regulation United States Army qualification record practice, known as "Course A," for which the regular army silver badges for excellence were awarded, and were grouped into teams this week for the intercollegiate competitions.

From among the highest individual point scorers a team of seven college men will be selected from among these students enrolled in the Plattsburg R. O. T. C. Camp to compete in the National Rifle matches held in September at Camp Perry, Ohio. There this team, which will represent the 2d Corps Area, comprising New York, New Jersey and Delaware, will compete against the college teams from the eight other army corps areas, into which the United States is divided, for the National R. O. T. C. Rifle team championship.

The high man in this week's shoot at Plattsburg was Irwin Murray, a student at College of the City of New York. Murray scored 173 points out of a possible 200, although the C. C. N. Y. team finished in fifth place. Incidentally, Murray tied with Robert F. Moore, cross-country captain at Columbia University and metropolitan two-mile champion, at 307 in the qualification shoot here last week. This is one of the highest scores ever made by a college man, a total of 293 being enough to qualify as an "expert rifleman," the highest grade established by Army Standards.

Third place behind Syracuse in the intercollegiate competition here went to a composite team composed of students from Columbia, Staunton Military Academy, Bordentown Military Academy and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, with a total of 887. Rutgers College finished fourth with 872 points; C. C. N. Y. fifth with 863; Delaware University, sixth, with 848; Clason Military Academy, seventh, with 845; St. John's Manlius School, eighth, with 825; New York Military Academy, ninth, with 760, and New York University, tenth, with 712.

300 DOGS TO OPEN RACE MEET TODAY

Will Pursue Electrically Operated Rabbit at New Atlantic Park in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—More than 300 racing dogs, the best in this country, will be started tomorrow in the first day's races of a two months' meet to be conducted by the Atlantic City Kennel Club, of which Dr. I. N. Griscom is President, on the new track at Atlantic Park.

Alabama Joe, winner of the $5,000 Derby at Miami, Fla., last year, will be one of the starters among some of the fleetest hounds in the United States.

Seven races will be run each day. For each race first will receive a purse of $60, second $40 and third $10.

To those who have never witnessed a dog race the meet undoubtedly will prove most interesting. The lean greyhounds and other fast dogs foot a circular, hard-earth track in pursuit of an electrically operated rabbit, which sets the pace. Most of the events are one-third and one-quarter mile sprints.

AQUATIC STARS TO MEET.

Leading Women Swimmers Entered for Inaugural Events Today.

Many of the leading women swimming champions will compete today in the aquatic carnival which will serve to dedicate the new Olympia Pool, located on the Long Beach Boardwalk at Lindell Boulevard, and several efforts will be made to shatter existing records for various distances. Miss Gertrude Ederle, record holder; Miss Sybil Bauer of Chicago, who has specialized in the back stroke, and Miss Aileen Riggin, the Olympic diving champion, are among those entered.

Miss Ederle will endeavor to regain the international record for 100 yards in a sixty-foot pool which is now held by Miss Minnie de Vry of Chicago. Miss Bauer, who will make her first appearance of the year in the East, will attempt to better the world's mark for 220 yards and intermediate distances at back stroke. Miss Riggin is scheduled to compete from scratch in the fancy dive handicap, and numerous other champions from the Women's Swimming Association of New York are entered for the various events.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1923.

MR. UNDERWOOD'S ATTACK.

The statement just issued at Washington by Senator UNDERWOOD is taken by all as merely a preliminary to his Presidential candidacy. It is expected that the formal announcement will be made soon in an address to the Alabama Legislature. There is no great surprise in this, since it has for some time been known that Mr. UNDERWOOD was willing, as the sacred phrase is, to "allow his name to be used." Probably neither he nor any of his friends is under a serious illusion regarding the probability of his nomination for the Presidency next year. Rightly or wrongly, a candidate from a Southern State must still labor under an inveterate prejudice in a National Convention. It is this aspect of the affair which lends a certain bitterness to the charges made by the supporters of Mr. MCADOO. They insinuate that Senator UNDERWOOD is entering the race, not in the hope of winning, but for the unavowed purpose of preventing Mr. MCADOO from getting a large proportion of the Southern delegates. That these things are whispered or asserted shows how near we are drawing to the period when plots and counterplots will be alleged in the great political drama of the next Presidential election.

If the Alabama Senator's words are to be taken as an intention to throw his hat into the ring, at least he does not talk through it. He at once assumes the aggressive. There has been no sharper attack than his upon the foreign policy of the Administration. Senator UNDERWOOD has studied it both abroad and at home, and retorts with vigor upon the Republicans their favorite taunt of three years ago that the Democratic Administration was a painful example of "wiggle and wabble." Mr. UNDERWOOD declares that neither in Europe nor in this country has he been able to find anybody who could state exactly what are the plans of the Harding Administration respecting Europe. During his observations abroad, he found a number of separate and pressing problems, each one with unescapable relations to the United States, yet there was no indication that the Administration was dealing with them in a concrete and well-studied and definite manner. Senator UNDERWOOD does not deceive himself into thinking that there is any one short and easy method of doing what ought to be done. He knows of no "magic wand" which the American Government could wave over Europe to bring about at once recovery and contentment. But he argues forcibly that we have in a frightened or in a mulish way held back from entering doors of opportunity wide open to us.

Mr. UNDERWOOD does not directly oppose the World Court. All that he does is to rate it as of minor importance. Probably his attitude foreshadows that of the Democrats in the Senate, who will approve the principle of the court but will withstand the various dilutions of it which the President has been led to propose. About the League of Nations Senator UNDERWOOD is silent, except by implication. He assails the Republicans for having, through partisan motives, defeated ratification of the Treaty of Versailles. The Senator was himself ready to vote to ratify it, either with or without reservations; and there is no reason to suppose that he has changed his mind. The probability is that he will enlarge upon this subject when he addresses the Legislature of Alabama. Even as it is, his appearance in the lists is a timely reminder to the Republican managers that they will not lack next year opponents of vigor and weight ready to carry the war into Africa.

MR. FOSTER'S SHOW.

"Instead of ten minorities in the next Presidential election," said Mr. JAY BROWN, Secretary of the Farmer-Labor Party, looking expectantly toward the conference of representatives of farmers' organizations, labor unions, minority parties, co-operative societies, and what not, "we hope to have a single ticket which will command support of all elements not satisfied with the two old parties." Mr. BROWN didn't count well, for he left out that most active of Communist moles, Mr. WILLIAM Z. FOSTER. He and Mr. RUTHENBERG and other lights of the Reds, temporarily calling themselves the Workers' Party, got control of the conference, gave it a Workers' Party platform, formed the Federated Farmer-Labor Party, thus adding a new minority party instead of doing anything to consolidate the large number of those associations already in existence.

Mr. VICTOR BERGER was wiser. The Socialist Party was invited to the show which Mr. FOSTER was to run. The invitation was declined without thanks. As Mr. BERGER'S Milwaukee Leader said on the day before the conference met:

> The Socialists know by bitter world-wide experience that Communists are disrupters and disorganisers—that they do not believe in political action, but use it merely as a blind to prepare for a violent revolution. * * * The Communists have been mowing heaven and earth to get lots of delegates to the Chicago conference, in order to control the organization that may come out of it.

They got 'em. Last December, when the Conference for Progressive Political Action had its second session in Cleveland, Mr. FOSTER, who had been permitted to sit in the first session, was thrown out, as were all representatives of the Workers' Party. At Chicago it was touching to hear Mr. JOHN FITZPATRICK, so long a faithful follower of Mr. FOSTER'S, plead for moderation: "The farmers know what you have in mind and do not like it. 'Don't 'kid' yourself that you can fool the farmer.'" Mighty few farmers can endure the smell of Bolshevism. Mr. FOSTER throws away the farmers. He long ago threw away the labor unions. Mr. GOMPERS and the American Federation of Labor know him of old and hate him as he hates them.

One of the saddest things about this bit of Fosterization is the woe it causes in Wisconsin. The Lieutenant Governor of that State was on the spot. The pockets of Wisconsin and Iowa delegates bulged with resolutions of good wishes to Mr. LA FOLLETTE. A Non-Partisan League delegate from Wisconsin almost wept:

> If we put the label of communism on this convention, the people of Wisconsin, which is the most radical State in the Union, will not touch this movement. We are radical there, but we are not Communists—yet.

It is hard enough, perhaps impossible, to induce farmers and laborers to "get together." This stroke of the Communists at Chicago, while not in itself important, is not likely to do the more conservative Farmer-Labor Party any good.

NEW YORK'S "COMMUNITY TRUST."

There are great opportunities for the Community Trust which opened its headquarters at 120 Broadway last week. Its organization was first proposed three years ago, and in April of the current year RALPH HAYES was named director and plans for effective work were laid. Such are the diversities of charitable interests in New York, and so many the sources of philanthropic bequests, that it has not been easy heretofore to put into practice the centralizing principle of supervision which is at the basis of the community fund idea. New York has never had a full measure of the community spirit. It has been divided into too many lesser cities, each of which has been too fluid to encourage effective co-operation in charitable work. Too often there has been rivalry instead of joint action, with resultant loss of efficiency. This has been particularly true in the case of small sums left by persons of moderate wealth to charities of limited purposes. Frequently they have been left to obsolescent institutions, or have been too circumscribed by the terms of the will. In England during the last three or four centuries more than 40,000 trusts were created for charitable purposes, nearly all of which have become obsolete because the objects which the donors had in mind no longer have any social value. One of these bequests, for example, provided a fund for redeeming captives from pirates.

Here in New York the Community Trust will co-operate with the trust companies and banks. Gifts made for any purpose, whether during the lifetime of an individual or in a will, can be turned over to a trust company which will become responsible for their safekeeping. So long as possible, the specified purposes of these bequests will be carried out. The Community Trust may exercise supervision over the disbursement of these funds, and, in particular, if no specific purpose be named, may see to it that they are distributed to the best interests of the community.

One of the principal services of the Community Trust will be in insuring that money given for purposes which later lose their value may be put to profitable use. The Distribution Committee has been granted especial powers to devote such funds to objects as nearly in line with the spirit of the gifts as possible, and thus to perpetuate the wishes of the donor in spite of changed conditions. In this way much waste can be avoided.

Upon the success of the Community Trust will depend in a measure the prospects of a still further extension of the co-operative movement in the administration of welfare work. The so-called "community chests" have been found to work well in smaller cities in handling annual contributions for charitable purposes. The control exercised by those who administer the funds from these "chests" has done much to eliminate the high costs of "drives" and unnecessary costs growing out of overlapping interests. Whether this system can be effective in a place as large as New York is still an open question. The city, however, is sorely in need of closer co-ordination of its various welfare organizations.

THE IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE'S PLEDGE.

In their letter to President HARDING Judge GARY and his fellow-Directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute repeat their intention to abolish the twelve-hour day in the steel industry, and they do it in a form that leaves no doubt of their good faith. "We are determined," they say, "to exert every effort at our command to secure in the iron and steel industry of this country a total abolition of the twelve-hour day at the earliest time practicable." But again the Directors make it plain that the change to shorter hours cannot be effected until the supply of labor increases; in fact, until "there is a surplus of labor available," words used by President HARDING in his letter of June 18 asking the Institute to pledge itself to act when conditions of labor were favorable. In his speech at Tacoma on Thursday the President, who gave out the letter there, said, alluding to the pledge he had obtained:

> I wish to congratulate the steel industry on this important step. It will heal a sore in American industrial life which has been the cause of infinite struggle and bitterness for over a generation, and it marks an accomplishment from the conscience of industry itself, a recognition of responsibility from employer to employé, that gives us faith in rightful solutions of the many tangled problems that are the concomitant of the rapid growth of America.

In this statement the President hardly does justice to the Iron and Steel Institute. It was already on record as committed to the shorter day, and the "pledge" is a reaffirmation of a promise already given. As a matter of fact, the Institute has not altered its position, which was that the twelve-hour day would be abolished in a labor market that made it practicable. It points out again that the change will "involve many adjustments, some of them complicated and difficult."

In an interview yesterday Judge GARY stated that 60,000 additional workers would be needed before the pledge could be carried out, and that the cost of steel production would be increased 15 per cent. when there was an eight-hour day in all departments where continuous operation is necessary. He promised that "efforts to get rid of the twelve-hour day will be promptly made," but he was careful to add that success would have to wait upon an increase in the number of workmen. He looks for reinforcements from the South, Mexico, the Philippines and Canada. The bulk of the increase seems to be coming from the South. From some States, like Georgia, there is an exodus of negro laborers. Judge GARY'S tone and attitude are certainly auspicious, whatever Mr. GOMPERS may say about "bluff and insincerity." Judge GARY is well aware that public opinion is behind the President, and he knows that it is only a question of time when the twelve-hour day will be eliminated altogether. The consumers may have to pay the cost of the change, yet there is a hope of cheaper production in the establishment of the working day of three eight-hour shifts when it is running smoothly.

MACHINE AND MIND.

An explanation of the contrast between HENRY FORD'S popularity and the fate that has made it impossible for Mr. ROCKEFELLER to aspire to the humblest office is offered by a political writer. Mr. FORD "makes machines," whereas Mr. ROCKEFELLER only "makes money." Traditionally the American people have understood and liked mechanics and distrusted moneybags. And there you are! But this overlooks one vital element.

There was once a widespread belief that Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S millions are "tainted." There has never been any question that they were acquired largely at the expense of weaker competitors. It is otherwise with Mr. FORD. He has ruined nobody except unskillful manufacturers of more expensive cars. To all workmen he is endeared by the wages he pays. To the moderately well-to-do he has given the privilege of easy and cheap locomotion. Among the liberators of mankind he is by no means the humblest.

Yet history, which Mr. FORD despises, may conceivably show a certain preference for Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Born in an age of small business abounding in waste, he conceived a new era, an era of greater wealth for all achieved through large combinations. As truly as our forefathers who struck boldly into the Western wilderness, he was a pioneer and an empire builder. And whereas Mr. FORD is said not to give a dollar to anything, the Rockefeller millions are poured out to the American people in a manner equally notable for liberality and wisdom. The Rockefeller Institute and the Rockefeller Foundation bid fair to mark an era in philanthropy. Whether as a mechanic or as a human being, Mr. FORD is by far the more sympathetic to the general run of voters. But this fact lends point to Lord BRYCE'S disillusioned comment that, when choosing its rulers, democracy shows small regard to originality in intellect.

POSTMASTER OF TENAFLY.

Our heart goes out to the Hon. RANDOLPH PERKINS, sometime Mayor of Westfield and now Representative in Congress of the Sixth New Jersey District. There is Republican sorrow in Tenafly of Bergen County. In 1914 Mr. WILLIAM F. BODECKER became Postmaster of Tenafly. His second four-year commission ended last October. Mr. HARDING'S convenient Executive order provides that Postmasters shall be chosen from the three highest eligibles. Last year Mr. BODECKER took the examination; was the only man to take it; passed it; was pronounced eligible for reappointment. This would never do. There was anger in the celestial minds of Tenafly Republicanism. Postmasters must be Republican. Mr. PERKINS induced the Post Office Department to hold another examination.

This was well and duly held last Spring. Mr. BODECKER and three other applicants were examined. The persistent BODECKER again behaved most improperly. He was the only one of the four to get a rating as eligible. Again his name was certified to the reluctant department, which has asked Mr. PERKINS for his recommendation. Civil service appointments are made, of course, not on account of merit, but on account of political endorsement. What will Mr. PERKINS do? In despair will he consent to four years more of BODECKER? Or will he ask the friendly Postmaster General, a lover of old-style politics and patronage, for a third examination?

What is the matter with Tenafly, anyway? Are its Republicans incapable of supplying two names of highest eligibility, from which a good Republican Postmaster can be selected? A Republican Administration has been in power for more than two years, and yet this man BODECKER, notoriously a Democrat and a capable, still holds the fort and the Post Office at Tenafly. This must be looked to.

THEY HAVEN'T COME.

Mr. WAYNE B. WHEELER, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, is more than a little unjust when he declares that Governor SMITH "has extended a gilt-edged invitation to rum-runners and bootleggers all over the country to come and make their home in New York." It has not been observed that the Federal prohibition enforcement agents have become excited over the situation in New York since the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. The silly rejoicings of some of the Wets over that repeal made many fear that a more "open" period was beginning for this town. Have those fears been realized? Not so far as the ordinary citizen can see. Things seem to be much the same as they were before. The police continue to keep their eye on violators of the Volstead act. They have just cleaned up the Bowery, where a peculiarly nefarious concoction called "smoke" has been making trouble.

If any restaurants or saloons become too bold, they are dealt with. After all, New York is a village, a collection of little neighborhoods, which have their own public spirit; and illicit selling of liquor, like bookmaking or disorder of any kind, has to be done carefully. If it attract much notice, there will be complaints to the police, or the police themselves will attend to it. Bootlegging and the cautious sale of intoxicants to known customers are likely to be with us for a long time yet; but this hue and cry against Governor SMITH seems superfluous; and much or most of it is political. Of course the $9,000,000 to be spent for enforcement in the new fiscal year incites the longing of politicians. Clearly, in this State, a lot of it ought to go to Republican enforcement officers, of whom there can't be too many; but Washington has the whole country to look after, and as yet doesn't seem to be much perturbed over the wickedness of "nullifying" New York.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Was "Paging" New Style.

A new possibility and another utility of the radio was disclosed at Boston this week when it became desirable for a young man who was away on his honeymoon to return home at once. His mother had been taken desperately ill, and was pathetically eager to see him, perhaps for the last time. All that was known about the young couple was that they were "somewhere in New England," for, after the manner of their kind, they had veiled in deep secrecy the destination of their nuptial journey. They went away in an automobile and purposed to do all their traveling in it, stopping wherever fancy decided and staying there only as long as they pleased.

With no fixed address, even in their own minds, the prompt finding of the honeymooners would have been, until recently, impossible. Now it could be done simply and easily, and was. Nothing more was required than the "broadcasting" of a message to the bridegroom, telling him the facts. It reached without delay the secluded inn at Lost River, N. H., where he happened to be, not because it was sent there, but because it was sent out of Boston in every direction.

This is "paging" of a sort not even imaginable a few years ago, and obviously in the same way practically anybody in the more civilised parts of the world who wants or is willing to be found can be told without much loss of time that somebody desires to see him. Such calls will reach the far expanses of the ocean as well as of the land, for there are few of either, nowadays, that do not contain at least one instrument for receiving radio dispatches.

And before long, probably, the paging message can be an audible summons—one of spoken words, directly understandable and with the speaker's voice recognizable by the receiver. Then will the once all-conquering element of distance receive a stunning blow and give up the fight.

Anybody Now Can Talk to Everybody.

Already it is possible to get into direct oral communication with a considerably larger fraction of the earth's inhabitants than commonly is realized. Probably there are not more than 1,000,000, if as many, of the 100,000,000-plus people in the United States who cannot be summoned to a telephone, their own or that of somebody else willing in case of need to take the trouble to serve a neighbor. In some cases it might take an hour, or even a day, to "get" the person wanted "on the wire." It would cost money if the distance approached the transcontinental, but the price would not be prohibitive when a serious emergency was to be met or important business was to be done.

There seems to be no present probability that the radio wholly will replace or diminish materially the use of either the telegraphy or the telephony that is done over wires, but radio certainly will supplement both to an extent constantly broadening as the years go on. The prospect is not wholly pleasant to those who cherish the privileges and rights of privacy—of getting completely away, now and then, from their fellow men and women—but on the whole the balance is in favor of progress and change. That is fortunate, for neither can be prevented, and we must make the best of both.

Their Words Have Significance.

Statements by union leaders that they will, or may, if necessary, "conscript" or "draft" bricklayers for work on the city's new schoolhouses probably are not to be taken as exactly descriptive of what the speakers have in mind. Behind a conscription or a draft, as known in time of war, there is always compulsion. The orders issued must be obeyed under serious penalties for resistance or refusal. And the bricklayers cannot be made to work on schoolhouses or elsewhere unless they choose to do so, and whether one of them will obey who is told to quit a job where he is getting big wages and go to one where he will get less—that remains to be seen.

Even the suggestion, however, of bringing union discipline to bear by union officials to assure the carrying out by union members of a contract made in the exercise of the discretion and power entrusted to those officials is of much significance.

The terms offered by the city involved agreements relating to the future as well as to immediate rates of wages. There was "consideration" on both sides, and there were formal promises, authoritatively signed. Only a misguided magnifying of the dollar in hand can explain the failure of the bricklayers to keep the contract, and the realization of this fact by the union officials may lead to highly interesting developments. While they cannot conscript or draft, they can make recalcitrance expensive.

Contradicts a Common Impression.

We all have heard so much and so often about the heterogeneity of our population that it is somewhat startling to note that in his introduction to Lord SHAW'S book, "The Law of the Kinsmen," Chief Justice and ex-President TAFT declares that instead of being of many kinds we are to a remarkable degree of only one.

This peculiarity, he writes, will strike anybody who has had occasion, as he had, to make "a progress from one end of the country to the other," for in such a journey "the language, the appearance, the dress, the humor, the manners, the bearing are the same, with only local variations that it takes an expert to detect."

If that is what most impressed the Chief Justice in the course of the travels he was so fond of making while President, then of course it exists; but perhaps something of the homogeneity he saw was due to the fact that Americans of the more recent date—the members of "colonies" and dwellers in Little this, that and the other—are not those whom the maker of the "progress" is likely to meet.

The truth may be that we are homogeneous in some ways and heterogeneous in others, and which of the two we are to be called depends on the point of view. A man does not reveal what and all he is while he is watching a procession or attending a reception.

LEARNING TO FLY.

Out in the gray old barn, on a sunbright sill,
High on a tossing bough, that shall test their skill,
Far on a crag, where the venturesome waves dash high—
They are learning to fly!

Father and mother, with eager and happy stir,
Urging and coaxing each little adventurer,
Make swift, glad flights, that shall show them the how and the why—
Now they're learning to fly!

Up in grand mansions, aloof in their lordliness,
Under brown cottage roofs, where the green boughs press
Out in low prairie homes, where the winds sweep by—
They are learning to fly!

And the fathers and mothers are watching, with hope and fear—
Heaven send them the patience of love, and the faith so clear,
Of these who are close to their own, under God's wide sky—
When they're learning to fly!

M. L. UPTON.

OLD SPUYTEN DUYVIL.

History of the Johnson Mansion, Going Back 175 Years.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the account last Saturday of the demolishment of the Johnson Iron Works to widen the waterway, you mention that on the bluff above stands the old gray stone house that is 175 years old and has always been the Johnson home, which is an error. The Johnsons have only lived there since they built the foundry after 1852. It was the home of the Berriens over one hundred years, and before that the land at least belonged to the Tippetts and William Betts.

"The Story of the Bronx, 1639-1912," by Stephan Jenkins, says on page 339:

"The southern end of the neck was formerly the home tract of George Tippett and his descendants, the Berriens. The old Berrien homestead, though modernized, still stands near the end of the neck, commanding a magnificent view of the Hudson. * * * In 1852 it was sold to three men from Troy, who laid out a village called Fort Independence, later changed to Spuyten Duyvil, and a foundry was established at the base of the bluff, and a small village has grown up near the Johnson mill."

Samuel Berrien married Dorcas, daughter of the third George Tippett, and bought these lands the time of the Revolution, as the Tippetts were Tories, but he lived in the Berrien-Johnson house from 1765, or before another daughter of George Tippett married the famous James De Lancey, Sheriff and leader of the Westchester Light Horse.

The Van Cortlandt estate is a part of the original Betts and Tippett grant.

The Rev. William Berrien, for many years rector of old Trinity, grandson of Samuel, sold the estate. I am his great-granddaughter and always understood that part of the Berrien-Johnson mansion was the old house of William Betts, whose only child married George Tippett. He had a grant of 2,000 acres with Tippett in 1668 and was patentee in the English patent of Westchester, 1668-69. He came from Barnstable, Mass., and was at Oost Dorp, 1662, being appointed Magistrate there by Peter Stuyvesant. Spuyten Duyvil Neck was Berrien's Neck until after 1852, and in the early days of the Bronx, Tippett's Neck.

PEACE PRIZE QUESTIONS.

Doubt as to How the Bok Offer Will Work Out.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At last Mr. Bok has found the way to world peace. Get the best idea that $100,000 can buy. All that remains is to get it adopted by the nations of the world—and "that's that."

Now that the obvious is done and universal peace is almost an accomplished fact, may I not, for my further enlightenment as to this $100,000 offer, ask your kind readers these three questions:

1. Isn't it possible that after the $100,000 prize is awarded some jealous or disgruntled millionaire may offer $200,000 and produce a better best plan?

2. Supposing that, following Mr. Bok's example, awards should be offered in, say, England, France and Germany, and these should result in three best European plans at variance with the one that attained the highest awards in this country—what are we going to do about it?

3. Supposing—just supposing—Mr. Bok turns over that $100,000 to ex-President Woodrow Wilson and our country could lay aside its partisanship and selfish isolation by entering whole-heartedly in the League of Nations—wouldn't that be the best solution of this world problem?

The League the Ideal Plan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The endeavor to kill the League of Nations by those who oppose it knows no limit. Their efforts to concoct "something" to take its place are a farce and always will be. They can ignore it, but they cannot kill it. It lives, the best-known plan and probably the best that will ever be conceived in the mind of man, for keeping the world at peace. It is the product of a great intellect; inspired by the circumstances existing at the time of its conception—the plan of a great mind born to meet just these conditions. Such conditions and such a mind we shall not find again in this century. We can feel quite confident that sooner or later the League of Nations will come into its own. Mr. Bok and others will discover that $100,000 or $100,000,000 cannot buy or create a master mind—the mind of Woodrow Wilson.

Ford's Peace Ship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit a citizen to express his pleasure with the generous offer made by Mr. Bok for a practical peace plan. The offer well reflects the noble aims and high purposes of the donor.

I cannot avoid feeling regret, however, that the offer was not made several years earlier; for, with Mr. Bok's peace plan in his pocket Mr. Ford and his peace ship could not have failed to pacify the world.

The remuneration, too, seems inadequate; the gentleman who will evolve a peace plan which will be accepted by our Senate and the other Senates of the world will merit not only $100,000, but a thousand times the sum.

Prohibition and the Farmers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It appears that the real authors of the Prohibition laws, namely, the farmers, are now incurring heavy annual losses as a result thereof. In peace times, the production of grains was great enough for every need of foodstuffs and also to furnish the base for the production of malt and distilled liquors. This latter market is gone.

Another market which has greatly diminished is that of the European Continent. The heavy and valuable crops of France, Germany, Italy and Spain are the wines. Before prohibition these were largely exported to America, where they were bought by the urban population. The money thus derived was used to purchase grain. This means of exchange, having been destroyed, the European countries are now raising as much grain as they can and making up the deficit, between the amount raised and that needed for food, by eating something else.

With these two heavy consumers of grain eliminated, it is obvious that either an excess is produced or the acreage under cultivation must be diminished. In either case, the farmer obtains a less net income than he would under pre-prohibition conditions, and the "farm bloc" is really paying a vast yearly sum to keep alive the prohibition laws.

This explains why the agricultural class is not obtaining its share of the present-day prosperity, and the reason for the failure of grain prices to keep pace with the phenomenal advance in cost of all other commodities.

SURPLUS WHEAT.

A Proposal to Withhold 200,000,000 Bushels From the Market.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your paper of Tuesday, July 3, an editorial headed "The Privileged Farmer" causes me to write to you, since my very high regard for your publication makes me feel that you would rather co-operate in a great national emergency.

The Johnstown or the Galveston flood, the San Francisco earthquake of 1906, or any other national calamity, in a property way, is not comparable to the present calamity brought about by the failure to properly handle an abnormally large supply of wheat. It is idle to talk about curtailing acreage, for the time for that, so far as this crop is concerned, is past. It is equally idle to talk about the privileged farmer, for the farmer is enjoying no privilege in the matter. The only thing he gets out of it is feeding the other groups at less than the cost of production. Nor has the farmer asked for and got a single class privilege or favor in a legislative or business way from our Government. He has simply been asking for such authorization as would give him privileges comparable to those already enjoyed by other groups. The basis of the editorial referred to takes the attitude that the farmer believes he is privileged and consequently can do no wrong and that his activities at this time are all against the public welfare, whereas exactly the reverse, to my mind, is true. The farmer is a victim of the privileges granted other groups rather than a beneficiary of special governmental help.

The Brazilian valorization scheme, which you mention in this connection, was purely a governmental undertaking at governmental risk, and no suggestion in the suggested wheat plan provides for governmental aid of any kind or anything of a subsidy nature. It simply requires financing through existing channels in the farmers' hands of the wheat crop for the needed period of time for orderly marketing in response to consumptive demand. It takes no more money to finance it in the farmers' hands than it does in the possession of the speculator.

Neither the farmer nor the consumer is benefited by forcing on the market more than the consumer can use. After allowing for all the wheat we can consume in this country, namely, five bushels per capita, then adding to it the seed and the amount we can export, plus a normal carry-over, or a total of 800,000,000 bushels, every need of the whole public, domestic and abroad, has been supplied. Then, if 200,000,000 bushels more are forced on the market, it means that it must go into the hands of the speculators, who will use it to the disadvantage of both the producer and the consumer. And, further, to dump on the market a large amount of foodstuffs which cannot be consumed not only demoralizes the wheat market but the market for other foodstuffs as well. This is not only wasteful but worse, for if we take from our soil the plant food necessary to produce that amount of wheat and destroy the possibility of the farmer's getting the cost of production by breaking the market below that point we have given away the 200,000,000 bushels. Then, to make matters worse, we send to Chile and buy from them nitrogen to produce additional wheat. For this fertility the farmer gives his note, as the cash returns from the fertilizer in the form of wheat sold does not supply him with ready cash.

Keep in mind that we, the farmers, have already paid more than $1,000,000,000 for Chilean nitrates for producing foodstuffs in this country.

In the next place, the deliberate breaking of the price on wheat is not helpful to the consumer, as is illustrated not only in Washington and Baltimore, but throughout the country, by the fact that during the breaking of the price to the farmers of from around $1.40 to 80 cents a bushel the sellers of bread increased the price 1 cent per loaf, or around 10 per cent., which goes to show that the cost of wheat or flour to the baker has but little to do with the cost of bread.

As was shown before the committee of Congress which investigated that subject during the Fall of 1920, it was found (although wheat at that time was twice the price it now is) that a 10-cent loaf of bread would still sell for 8 cents or more if the flour and all the ingredients necessary to the making of bread were contributed without cost. Further, $4.20 worth of wheat to the farmer costs the consumer in the form of bread approximately $40. By another way of stating it, it makes but little if any difference in the price of a loaf of bread whether the farmer gets $1 a bushel or $3 a bushel, for bread made from wheat costing $3 a bushel, if baked in the home, would cost the average consumer only $15 per year, or $1.25 per month. So bread, the staff of life, can be put on the table cheaper than the fruits, vegetables, butter, meats or anything that enters into the daily life, and it is beyond a doubt the more essential.

The premise in the mind of the writer of the editorial that the suggested orderly marketing of this surplus is a method of raising the price is all wrong. The suggested restoring of the normal market price would only mean bringing it up to about the cost of production. The basic thing involved is not a favor to anybody—it is just a square deal for the farmer who is in distress. His welfare is of major importance to the nation, for people in other vocations do not wish to take his place in producing foodstuffs and raw material for clothing. In fact, the farmer is so unhappy that he is leaving the farm as fast as he can find other employment, so that it may not be long until the nation as a whole will be going very much further than any one thinks about today in order to keep a sufficient population on the farm to supply the needed foodstuffs and raw material for clothing.

Simply because we have a surplus of wheat much greater than can be consumed during this consumptive year is no reason for wasting it. No one contends that all the coal stored in nature's warehouses should be taken out and marketed at once, but rather should be taken out as consumptive demand requires. No one contends that all the gas and oil stored in nature's warehouses should be taken out and marketed at once, but should also be taken out as consumptive demand requires, as is shown at present by the fact that we have many thousands of wells plugged, others not flowing because high pressure in the pipe lines prevents them from flowing. In addition, there are a billion gallons of oil warehoused for future use. And so through all lines it is usual to distribute in response to the consumptive demand, and any surplus over that is conserved for the future use of society.

Crusade Against Summer Furs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be that women cannot resist the outreness of wearing furs when there is no occasion for them, but when it comes to wearing them when the thermometer is at 90 degrees, as it is today, how can they fail to realize that they make themselves look supremely ridiculous?

An organization has been formed to combat this silly fashion of Summer furs "as contrary to good taste and to good sense."

COLLEGE STUDENTS GO ABROAD TO STUDY

Delaware Undergraduates to Spend Year in France as Part of Course.

INNOVATION IS PRAISED

Plan Expected to Result Eventually in Advancement of America's Foreign Trade.

The beginning of a collegiate movement which its sponsors believe may result eventually in better international understanding will be launched this morning when the steamship Rochambeau sails with a group of eight undergraduates in charge of a member of the Modern Language staff of the University of Delaware. The students will spend a year in study at French universities and their work will be credited to their junior year of work for a degree.

The group will be the first to go abroad under such a plan and the arrangements, made during the past two years by Walter Hullihen, President of the university, and other officials, have been approved by Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce; M. Capen, French Minister of Instruction; Ambassador Jules J. Jusserand and others.

The announcement of the sending of the party was made at the commencement exercises at the university, when Dr. Hullihen said that the university was greatly interested in the outcome. He expressed the hope that other institutions of learning would follow Delaware's lead.

Foreign-Trained Men Needed.

"The need of America for men who have had such training as this plan proposes," said Dr. Hullihen, "was strikingly illustrated by a statement made by Mr. Hoover only a few days before the plan was brought to his attention. He said that he knew of no greater need of the United States at this very time than that of 5,000 young men with training which would fit them for positions with firms engaged in foreign commerce. This opinion was echoed by Mr. Carr, Director of Consular Service, in regard to this Government's relations with foreign countries. Only yesterday a letter was received from James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, stating that he considered our undertaking destined to be of vital importance to the nation's business.

"America cannot hope," he said, "to gain the markets of the world through commercial organizations or even through superior methods, if the men to carry on the work are lacking. We shall always be at a disadvantage in our foreign relations of every kind until there is a much larger number of Americans who know the language and in some measure the customs and methods of the people with whom we have to deal."

Dr. Hullihen paid tribute to the organizations that are promoting somewhat the same thing through the exchange of fellowships and scholarships, but, he pointed out, this work does not reach the group which the University of Delaware is interested in aiding.

Different Type Reached.

"Their plan," he explained, "aims to reach those who will become scientific investigators, scholars and teachers; in the very nature of things a limited number. Our plan aims to reach a different type, the type of man who is going into business, the type that embraces two-thirds of our college graduates of today.

"The first essential feature of the plan is that it is part of the undergraduate course, counting toward the baccalaureate degree. Another characteristic is that each student pays all his own expenses. It fits into the normal four-year college system and almost any student who can afford a college education can take one year of it abroad.

"The third feature that differentiates it from other existing forms of foreign study is that each group of students will be under the supervision and guidance throughout the year abroad of a member of the staff of his own college.

"And, finally, the last and most important detail of the plan is that the three months will be spent in the foreign country in intensive tutoring work in hearing and speaking the language before entering the university, so that there may be no doubt as to ability to profit by the courses given in so far as familiarity with the language is concerned."

WISCONSIN ASKS NEW LAWS.

Twenty Proposals Are Sent to Coolidge for Submission to Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Two resolutions received today by Vice President Coolidge from the Legislature of Wisconsin for presentation to the Senate when it meets in December brought the total submitted to him by that State to twenty, of which nineteen propose amendment of the Constitution or the enactment of Federal laws. Those received today advocated a Soldiers' Compensation act and urged Congress to prohibit the drafting of troops for military service abroad.

The single resolution not seeking the enactment of Federal legislation extended the congratulations of the Legislature to Senator La Follette on his re-election and reaffirmed faith in his leadership "in the cause of real democracy and human progress."

One of the laws proposed by the Legislature would require shipments of coal to be accompanied by statements showing quality. Others call for repeal of the secrecy clause in the Federal Income Tax law, a vigorous forestry policy, popular election of Federal Judges for terms not exceeding ten years, the assembling of Congress on Jan. 1 after each Congressional election, repeal of the Esch-Cummins Railroad act, re-enactment of the 1918 surtaxes on large incomes and the inheritance and excess profits taxes of that year, a Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, Government ownership and operation of coal mines, celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, amnesty of all persons sentenced or indicted for violating war-time laws, and repeal of the Espionage act.

Constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature would require all such amendments to be submitted to the people for approval, permit farmers and laborers to b

GEO. B. FRENCH HOST AT SOUTHAMPTON

With Mrs. French, He Gives a Dinner for Miss Betty Thompson and Roger Tuckerman.

MISS TILFORD TO WED AMORY L. HASKELL

Engagement of Mrs. Henry M. Tilford's Daughter Announced at Tuxedo—Other Betrothals.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Annette Tilford, daughter of Mrs. Henry M. Tilford, to Amory Lawrence Haskell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Amory Haskell of this city and Red Bank, N. J. Mrs. Tilford made the announcement at her home at Tuxedo Par, and there was no entertainment given to announce the betrothal owing to the illness of Mr. Haskell's father at his country home at Red Bank.

Miss Tilford's father died four years ago. He had long been associated with the Standard Oil Company. She is the sister of Mrs. David Wagstaff and Mrs. Stanley G. Mortimer.

Mr. Haskell is a brother of Mrs. Howland B. Jones and Mrs. Henry M. Post, and he is a nephew of Mrs. James Remsen Strong, Mrs. James Howe Proctor, Samuel John Jackson and Charles Lawrence Baker. He graduated from Princeton, class of 1917, and in the naval air service during the war. He belongs to the Brook, University, Racquet and Tennis, and Rumson Country Clubs.

The wedding is to take place in the Autumn.

Cumming—Cecil.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cumming of 480 Park Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eileen Cumming, to Dr. Russell L. Cecil of 33 East Sixty-first Street.

Miss Cumming is an Australian, and is a writer. Dr. Cecil is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Russell Cecil of Richmond, Va. He is Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine at Cornell University Medical School. During the war he served as a Major, and was appointed head of the commission for the study of pneumonia in the army camps. He is a graduate of Princeton, class of '02.

Pritchard—Collins.

Mrs. Emilio Pritchard of Brooklyn announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marguerite Pritchard to William E. Collins of this city, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pell T. Collins of Livingston, N. J.

Miss Pritchard is a graduate of Packer Institute and was active during the war with the National League for Women's Service and with the New York Red Cross Hospital.

Mr. Collins was graduated from Yale and is engaged in the practice of law in this city. He is on the legal staff of the Shipping Board, and served during part of the war with the legal division of the Air Service.

Houston—Hale.

Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan Houston of Ossining-on-Hudson, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Tacie Belle Houston, to Rufus Frost Hale of Boston.

Miss Houston is a graduate of Miss Fuller's School at Ossining and also of the National Cathedral School of Washington, D. C. Mr. Hale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hale of Marlborough, N. H. During the war he served overseas with the 302d Field Artillery.

Eleanor Uhl, Swimmer, Marries.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—The marriage last Saturday of Miss Eleanor Uhl, a member of the American women's Olympic swimming team in 1920, and W. Harvey Gash of this city was announced today. Mr. Gash also is an expert swimmer, and is the holder of a number of medals.

Fleitman at their cottage in High Street for the last week, left for New York and will sail on the Nieuw Amsterdam for Europe today to spend the remainder of the season there. Many dinner parties are to be given tonight at villas, and also at the Meadow Club, preceding the weekly dance there. Among those who will entertain are Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Stewart Ellsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Warwick E. Montgomery and Mrs. Charles R. Henderson.

Princess Rospigliosi has taken the Newell Tilton studio cottage in Little Plains Road, and will arrive today for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings Barr arrived at the Irving House yesterday to remain over Sunday.

Also arriving at the Irving House yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tuckerman, who came for the wedding of their son, Roger Tuckerman, to Miss Betty Hare Thompson.

Others arriving were Ellery O. Anderson and Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. Frederick G. Pyne, and Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, the latter coming by motor.

White Mountains.

The annual banquet of the White Mountain Trapshooters' Association was held last evening at the Maplewood Club, Bethlehem, with the President, Henry C. Vogel of New York, presiding. Prizes were awarded winners of the various divisions. There is a special program for this morning, terminating the events of the tournament.

Alvin W. Ivie of New York has opened his Summer home at Bethlehem for the season. Lawrence Gilman, music critic, with Mrs. Gilman and Miss Betty Gilman, is expected from New York shortly to spend the Summer at the Lookoff, Sugar Hill.

J. William Fosdick of New York has leased the Nutshell at Sugar Hill to John Izzard of Hartford, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Jenks will spend the early Summer at Chocorun, at Willowgate, with John Sumner Runnels of Chicago before going to the Washington at Bretton Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Jared A. Baldwin of New York will spend the season at the new Profile House.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Everett Thompson of New York will arrive at the Crawford House today after spending a few days at Bangor, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Woodcock have arrived from Montreal at the Sinclair House, Bethlehem, to spend the season.

Walter McGuire of Harrisburg, Pa., has taken one of the cottages at Pickett's on Sugar Hill.

Arrivals by automobile at the Mt. Pleasant, Bretton Woods, yesterday included Mr. E. H. Bronson and party, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Reed, Chicago; Misses Falwer, Middletown, Conn.

MRS. STETSON STOPS CHURCH 'SPITE FENCE'

Court Enjoins Christian Science Trustees From Erecting View-Obstructing Garage.

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson was victorious yesterday in her suit against the First Church of Christ, Scientist, which she established, to restrain the church from building what she characterized as a spite fence between the church and her residence at 7 West Ninety-sixth street. The trustees contended that the building was only a garage which they had a right to construct.

Justice Burr, who heard the suit three months ago, in which Mrs. Stetson applied for an injunction against the trustees, handed down a decision in which he said that the proposed structure "would deprive her of light, air, view and access, and would be in derogation and disregard of the rights the plaintiff acquired and still retains, and in fairness and equity should be enjoined."

"I am convinced," he added, "from a careful consideration of all the facts and circumstnces disclosed by the evidence surrounding the erection of the plaintiff's house, 7 West Ninety-sixth Street, in juxtaposition to the church of the defendant, that it was the intention and understanding of the plaintiff, Mrs. Stetson, and the defendant that the plot, lying east of the plaintiff's line, as well as the vacant space immediately adjoining on the plaintiff's plot, would both remain open."

Justice Burr said that the open spaces were shown on the plans prepared by the architects which were approved by the church, and the plaintiff would not take title until the church had approved of the plans. Relying on such intent and understanding, says the Court, Mrs. Stetson took title from the church to the site of her residence, "and in consideration for its approval of the plans and specifications she gave to the defendant an exclusive and binding option to purchase her house, and, furthermore, the plaintiff at once proceeded to and did construct and lay out her house in the unique and unusual manner required by the plans and specifications, so that the plaintiff and defendant would have the benefit of the double open space shown on said plans and specifications.

FATHER DEFENDS ARTIST.

Adelbert Lange Says Daughter Never Knew of Another "Lament."

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 6.—Adelbert Lange, father of Miss Erna Lange, painter of the canvas "Lament," the originality of which was questioned by the trustees of the $6,000 Chaloner prize after an artists' jury had awarded it first place in a recent contest for a year's study abroad, declared today that his daughter never had seen the painting by James Williams, also called "Lament," which the trustees say Miss Lange's resembles.

"In fact my daughter never had heard of the Williams painting until this controversy arose," Mr. Lange added. He refused to allow his daughter to be questioned by reporters.

Woman on Jersey G. O. P. Committee

Hamilton F. Kean of Newark, Republican National Committeeman, yesterday announced the appointment of the first woman ever named to the National Committee from New Jersey. She is Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson of Red Bank. The appointment ends a spirited contest for the appointment between herself and Mrs. Everett Colby.

EDUCATORS ASSAIL POLITICAL 'SNIPING'

National Association Specifically Criticises Pinchot's Course in Pennsylvania.

HITS AT ECONOMY PROGRAMS

Miss Olive M. Jones, New York School Principal, Is Elected President of Body.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 6.—Criticism of State Governors whose economy programs curtailed educational activities was expressed in a resolution adopted today at the final business session of the National Education Association convention. Specific mention was made of the State of Pennsylvania, where there has been a controversy between Governor Pinchot and the State Commission of Education.

The resolution denounced "political sniping" and said that "for more than half a century the National Education Association has advocated sound, professional leadership from all educational offices. From long experience we have a right to assume the universal acceptance of this principle. Therefore, friends of public education deplore the recent flagrant violation of this principle in Pennsylvania.

"Such an act in a leading State affects education throughout the nation, and the association believes it must record its disapproval of so unworthy an executive act. We regret that a few Governors and Legislatures this year have been for curtailment of financial support of schools, but we are convinced that new advances will be made when the people have had an opportunity to act."

Other resolutions criticised attacks on public schools, especially a statement attributed to a representative of the Carnegie Foundation, who "erroneously concluded that the cost of public schools was too high and that schools were wasteful."

The educators endorsed the Towner-Sterling Education bill, advocating equality in educational opportunity for all children, and urged adequate financing of education.

Improvement in the status of teachers, better training schools, higher pay and pensions and a child labor amendment to the Constitution also were favored in resolutions. Still another urged that American history be taught in schools to inculcate a lasting devotion to America and her institutions.

Miss Olive M. Jones, New York City public school principal, was elected President of the association. The name of Miss Jones headed the list of officers presented to the convention July 4 by its nominating committee. All of these officers were elected today without opposition.

TEACHERS UNITE FOR PEACE

Form Federation for International Co-operation in Education.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Organization of the World Federation of Educational Associations, whose principal aim is to promote universal peace through educational methods, was effected at a meeting yesterday of delegates from about forty countries who are attending the National Education Association convention here.

Augustus Thomas, State Commissioner of Education of Maine, was elected President.

Dr. P. W. Kuo, head of the Southeastern College of Nanking, China, and E. J. Sainsbury, President of the National Union of Teachers of England, were chosen Vice Presidents.

C. H. Williams, director of education of the University of Missouri, was appointed Secretary.

Resolutions adopted provided, among other things, for:

Observance of May 18 as "Good Will Day" in schools of all lands.

Co-operation to improve the school systems of all countries.

A general exchange of teachers and of education information among nations.

Establishment of an international university whose chief function will be the study of inter-racial questions and the relation of education to these questions.

Establishment of a universal library service.

2,222 ELIGIBLE AS FIREMEN.

Record List Sent to Drennan by Civil Service Commission.

The largest list of men eligible for appointment as firemen ever promulgated by the Municipal Civil Service Comsion—a total of 2,222—was sent to Fire Commissioner Drennan yesterday. The examination was held in April, 1921, when 3,200 men were examined. John H. Wessler of 62 Lawrence Street, with a rating of 96.70 per cent., headed the list.

The list is the last which contains the names of men who at the time of the examination were 35 years old. The maximum age was 35 years and the minimum 21, so that some of the men to be appointed may now be 37. Commissioner Drennan said it was likely that men at the end of the list would be 40 or 41 before they are appointed. Men at that age, he said, are too old to begin as firemen and probably will have considerable difficulty in passing the physical examination.

"SPOON ON TERRA FIRMA."

Court's Advice to Youthful Motorist Who Ran Into Street Lamp.

"My attention was occupied," said Harold McSherry, 19, of 1,247 Holland Avenue, the Bronx, to Magistrate Bijur in the New Rochelle Court yesterday when he was arraigned on a charge of knocking down a street light Thursday night with his automobile.

"I'll say it was," interjected Policeman MacMillen, who arrested him. "One of his arms was around a pretty girl."

"If you must spoon," the Magistrate advised the youth, as he fined him $4.50, "do it on terra firma."

In paying the fine McSherry said he was employed as a clerk in a brokerage office in the financial district.

Jersey Ex-Judge Seeks Divorce.

TRENTON, N. J., July 6.—Former Judge William Howard Jefferies of Toms River, N. J., today filed suit in the Chancery Court here, for divorce. He charges his wife with desertion. He stated that he was married in 1911 and that his wife left him in February, 1921.

STARVING LESS FATAL THAN FRIGHT, HE SAYS

Dr. Conklin Tells Osteopaths of Treatments by Method of Long Fasting.

Persons lost in the woods or imprisoned in mines die of fright instead of starvation, when there are no other causes of death, such as accident or suffocation, said Dr. Hugh W. Conklin of Battle Creek, Mich., yesterday at the convention of the American Osteopathic Association at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dr. Conklin said he reached this conclusion because of his experiments in treating epileptics by a method of fasting, in which he found that the human body can go for a long period without food without any sensible diminution of its powers. He said he has caused seventy-three epileptic patients to fast for an average period of thirty-two days, during which time the patients walked an average of two miles a day without overtaxing their strength.

Hay fever also may be cured by osteopathy, said Dr. T. L. Ray of Fort Worth, Texas. He said he never has been able to estimate how many times a hay fever patient sneezes.

"As to the number of square feet of misery involved in one single case of hay fever, there isn't any doubt at all," he said. "You can measure it. The congested membranes in a well developed case of hay fever would, if spread out flat, cover an area equal to a bedspread."

The delegates went on an excursion trip up the Hudson to West Point yesterday. The sessions will be resumed this morning.

ADMIRAL DE BON DIES IN PARIS AT 68 YEARS

He Was Chief Technical Adviser of the French Delegation at the Washington Naval Conference.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—Admiral de Bon, who was chief technical adviser of the French delegation at the Washington naval conference, died here today, after a long illness. Admiral de Bon had a distinguished career in the French Navy, and during the war held important commands in the Mediterranean. At the Washington conference his advice had a very considerable weight with the French delegation. He was 68 years old.

In 1916 Admiral Ferdinand Jean Jacques de Bon succeeded Vice Admiral de Jonquieres as Chief of the Naval General Staff. At the Washington conference he made several important addresses, notably that in which France accepted the American proposal for limitation of capital ships.

The Admiral made a pleasing impression on his associates at the Washington councils. His fellow-delegates described him as a bluff, open-hearted, high-spirited sailor, always in good humor. He spoke English easily, but delivered his arguments in French. He would have been retired this week.

TWO YOUNG SISTERS DIE, ATE FIREWORKS ON DARE

Coroner's Jury Will Investigate Sudden Death of Girls of 8 and 4 in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—A Coroner's Jury is to determine the cause of the death of two young sisters who died within a few hours yesterday after they had eaten some poisonous fireworks on a "dare" of playmates.

The girls were Ellen McDaniel, age 8, and Marion, age 4, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William F. McDaniel, 4,316 Henderson Street.

It was thought at first that the poisoning was caused by food, but their mother insisted that her three other children had eaten of the same dishes and were not affected. It was then that the report was made that Ellen and Marion had eaten fireworks on a "dare."

GIVES COLUMBIA $20,000.

Hartley Corporation Aids Completion of Teachers College Building.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 6.—Twenty thousand dollars was appropriated to Columbia University for the completion of a new building for Teachers College at a meeting of the Hartley Corporation today at the Norfolk home of Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, and $7,000 was appropriated to Peking University, Peking, China. The corporation also provided for the maintenance of a juvenile clinic established by it in this city, under the direction of Dr. Paul Waterman, psychiatrist.

Dr. Charles Edward Amory Winslow, Professor of Public Health at Yale University and senior sanitarian of the United States Public Health Service Reserve, was appointed a trustee of the corporation to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, New York State Public Health Commissioner. Dr. Winslow is a member of the Public Health Council of the Connecticut State Health Department and Curator of Public Health of the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

George Cecil.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 6.—George Cecil, aged 73, formerly general manager of the Du Barry Steamship Company, New York, and later a prominent hotel man in that city, died in a local hospital last night.

He was related to Lord Salisbury.

ENOCH ARDEN LAW UPHELD.

First Decision of Higher Court Reverses McGoldrick Decision.

The first decision by a higher court upholding the so-called Enoch Arden law, passed by the Legislature in 1922, which provides that absence for more than five years without any word is cause for a divorce upon giving proof of the facts, was handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division.

The court reversed an order of Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick, who refused to dissolve the marriage of Florence Jane Frankish to Charles Harold Frankish, who, she charged, abandoned her in Buffalo, took her three children away from her and has not been heard from since.

In refusing a dissolution decree to Mrs. Frankish, Justice McGoldrick said: "This Enoch Arden law is an anomoly in the legislative history of the State."

Commenting on the proof offered by Mrs. Frankish, Justice Martin, writing the opinion of the Appellate Division, said:

"It was shown that for upward of fifteen years the defendant had been absent and that nothing whatever had been heard from him; that diligent search had been made by the plaintiff to find defendant, evidently with a view to compelling him to support her, and that all attempts to locate him had failed.

"The subject is not a new one. The presumption of death from continuous absence has long been recognized by the Legislature and courts of this and other jurisdictions. The Legislature being within its power when it passed the law herein reviewed, it is our duty to apply the law to the facts proved, with a view to its enforcement."

SUSPICIOUS OF AMNESIA.

Homeopaths Are Told That Loss of Memory Is Induced by Desire.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—Dr. Lester E. Siemon of Cleveland, newly elected President of the American Institute of Homeopathy, declared today in an address before the seventy-ninth annual convention of the organization, that in "nearly every case of so-called amnesia, that has come to medical attention, the person's loss of memory was induced by a convenient desire to forget."

"Real loss of memory is comparatively rare. It is only induced by some form of brain shock, such as shell concussion, blows on a certain part of the head, or by sudden and violent emotion."

The institute today petitioned the Federal Government to relieve physicians of the "unnecessary and onerous" tax on medicinal liquor in a resolution asking that alcohol for physicians be placed on the same basis as alcohol for hospitals and sanitariums.

Dr. William Lathrop Love of Brooklyn urged physicians to take a larger interest in public affairs and criticised the predominance of lawyers in legislatures.

UPHOLDS MISS EWEN'S WILL

Appellate Division Rejects Contest Over $250,000 Estate.

The Appellate Division yesterday affirmed the probate of the will of Miss Maria Louise Ewen, daughter of General John Ewen who died in 1878, and rejected the objections made by her nephew, John Ewen, a lawyer, who, with his two sisters, was cut off from a share in her $250,000 estate. The Appellate Division decided that because the jury upheld the will on the issue of fraud and undue influence, an Appellate Court "should not be prone to interfere with the determination."

John Ewen and his two sisters were cut off in the will because they contested the will of Miss Ewen's sister, who left a large part of her estate to institutions founded for the benefit of cats, and got $50,000 in settlement of the contest. Maria Louise Ewen's marriage to the bogus "Baron" von Koenits, which was subsequently annulled, figured in the case. Her will gave $20,000 to the Rev. Aubrey Carll Nelson, who at one time made his home with her.

R. K. FOX LEFT $3,000,000.

Inventory of Estate of Police Gazette Publisher Is Filed in New Jersey.

FREEHOLD, N. J., July 6.—An inventory of the personal property and real estate left by the late Richard K. Fox, publisher and owner of the Police Gazette, who died in Red Bank on Nov. 14 last, shows that Mr. Fox left an estate of more than $3,000,000. The inventory was filed by James J. Lillis of Jersey City, counsel for the estate.

According to the inventory, the publisher left personal property valued at $1,062,629. Besides other securities there are Liberty bonds valued at $165,500 and $124,298 in cash. The estimated value of the real estate is $2,000,000. This real estate is located both in New Jersey and in New York.

The publisher bequeathed $150,000 outright and one-third of the estate to his widow, Mrs. Emma L. Fox. The remaining two-thirds is to be divided among four children, Miss Mary K. Fox, Charles J. Fox, Richard K. Fox Jr. and Fred G. Fox of California. The will also provides for the erection of a mausoleum at a cost of $50,000.

WOMAN LAWYER HONORED.

Mrs. Jeanette G. Brill First of Sex to Be Deputy Attorney General.

News was received in Brooklyn yesterday of the appointment of Mrs. Jeanette G. Brill of 1,542 Union Street, as Deputy Attorney General of New York State. Mrs. Brill's appointment by Attorney General Carl Sherman establishes a precedent, as she is the first woman ever to be selected for such a post. She will be assigned to the Labor Department at 124 East Twenty-eighth Street, Manhattan. Her salary will be $4,500 per year.

Mrs. Brill was born in Manhattan and was educated in the public schools and St. Lawrence University. While serving as a teacher in the public schools she studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1908. She was the first woman to try a case of murder in the first degree. Her law offices are at 299 Broadway, where her husband, Abraham Brill, also a lawyer, has his offices.

SING SING SEES CRIME DROP.

Has Only 1,103 Commitments in Past Fiscal Year, a Decrease of 510.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 6.—Statistics prepared by Warden Lewis E. Lawes today show a big slump in the number of prisoners admitted to Sing Sing during the fiscal year ended last Sunday and would indicate that there is a falling off in crime around New York City.

During the year there were 1,103 prisoners admitted, compared to 1,613 the previous fiscal year, or 510 less. These figures include not only new commitments but parole violators and men received from other New York State prisons.

From New York City and suburban counties that commit criminals to Sing Sing there were 881 received, compared to 1,450 the year before, or a reduction of 569.

Charles A. Moore.

Charles A. Moore, for whom services were held Thursday at his late home in Patchogue, L. I., was for seventeen years the personal representative of E. S. Willard, the English actor, and had spent most of the three score years of his life in the theatrical business. He managed one of the road companies of "The Chocolate Soldier" and then retired to Patchogue, where he established a successful business, the Mary Gwenn Bread Shop. His wife and two married daughters survive.

AUSTIN B. FLETCHER DIES IN HOSPITAL

President of National Institute of Social Science Succumbs After an Operation at 71.

Austin Barclay Fletcher, lawyer and President of the National Institute of Social Science, who had made his home for several years at the Metropolitan Club, died Thursday in St. Bartholomew's Hospital following an operation. Services will be held Monday afternoon in the First Universalist Church of Franklin, Mass.

Mr. Fletcher was born at Mendon, Mass., in 1852 and graduated from Tufts College in 1876, his alma mater giving him the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1899. He was President of the Board of Trustees of Tufts and a trustee of Boston University and Dean Academy. He gained his legal education at Boston University and for two years after graduating taught oratory there and at Brown. Since then he had practiced law chiefly as attorney for banks and other corporations and as trustee for large estates.

He was a trustee of the Bowery Savings Bank, a Director of the Irving National Bank and President of Eppinger & Russell, creosoting and lumber firm, 165 Broadway, where Mr. Fletcher had his law offices.

Mr. Fletcher was elected President of the Social Science Institute last February. He was also President of the Fletcher Family Union, an organization of 10,000 members of this old New England family. His clubs included the Bankers, Sleepy Hollow, Piping Rock, New York Athletic and Union Leagues, of which he was at one time Vice President. In 1882 he married Hortense Follett, who died in 1905.

WALTER M. AIKMAN, 95, DIES.

Chairman of Central Stamping Co. Spent 76 Years in the Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 6.—Walter Monteith Aikman, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Central Stamping Company, of which he was President from 1886 to 1922, died this morning at his home on Stanwich Road after a brief illness. He was long a member of the Presbyterian Board of Missions and had been Vice President of the Brooklyn Savings Institute. He lived in Brooklyn before moving here.

Mr. Aikman's career in the stamping business was probably unique in the length of his service with the same, or virtually the same, organization, which totaled seventy-six years. He was 95 years old and at 19 went to work for the James Stamping Company on Cliff Street.

Further Recovery on the Stock Exchange—Sharp Advance in Sterling.

The continued recovery on the Stock Exchange yesterday, accompanied as it was by a rise of wheat and cotton, perhaps attracted the greater interest yesterday; but the movement of foreign exchange had more direct connection with the week's events. Sterling, which had touched $4.54⅛ just before the higher London bank rate was announced on Thursday, reached $4.57 yesterday, and although it closed at a reaction, its final price was nearly one cent above the previous day's closing. This was clearly a consequence of the Bank of England rate; it remains to see how far that influence will offset others.

In Continental exchange rates there was no recovery; possibly they were affected adversely, if at all, by the 4 per cent. on Lombard Street. Sterling at Paris nearly got to the high price in francs which was reached at the end of January, while the day's low price for the franc on Wall Street, 5.78 cents, was close to the period's lowest—the 5.76¼ of Jan. 31. The Italian lira also went under the year's previous low price, and the mark closed at Thursday's minimum of 5 ten-thousandths. Nothing in the day's news threw any light on this continuing movement.

Although varied by one or two brief reactions, which apparently represented efforts of professional speculators to check the recovery by converging sales on a few stocks, the real trend of prices on the Stock Exchange was upward throughout the day. Some of the advances ranged from 1 to 3 points, but as a rule the recovery was fractional. It was the persistence of the upward movement in the face of counter-demonstrations which gave the more satisfactory part of the day's picture.

Midsummer is not the time of year to look for important change in a trade situation, and the very noncommittal character of the week-end mercantile reviews is therefore what should have been expected. In the inferences tentatively drawn, the mercantile experts seem to differ. Bradstreet points to preponderance of favorable opinion among bankers and business men but with "speculative interests inclined to take a less optimistic view." Dun stresses the "policy of restricting operations to actual requirements" as apparently indicating "doubt as to the probable course of business," points out that "the heavy production of earlier months" is affecting prices, and cites a decline this week in 59 commodities on its list, as against 23 advances. The impression which these reports, compiled from agents in the commercial field, will make on most people's mind is that Wall Street is not alone in its attitude of perplexity. The business community itself is moving, not apprehensively but cautiously, and does not clearly appear to know why.

One rather evident underlying reason is a consideration which was not absent from experienced minds, even during the Springtime expansion of trade. The markets and the business world were then warned, often enough, that the greatly accelerated pace of consumption did not represent a new scale of yearly requirements by American consumers, but the addition of special buying to make up the shortage in supplies created by the economies of the two past years. This left the question open as to when this shortage would have been made good, and the immense speeding-up of production suggested that it might not be long before only the normal demand from consumers would exist. The facts in this regard will presently be tested. Fortunately, the test will come with merchants' and producers' stocks in a safe condition; the "policy of restricting operations to actual requirements" has taken care of that. If there is not to be sudden shrinkage even from normal consumers' purchases (of which admittedly there is no evidence in sight) the business world would appear to be prepared either to adjust itself to trade on the basis of ordinary times, or to meet with advantage the recurrence of large-scale purchases.

NEW WRIT HOLDS UP STEEL & TUBE CO. DEAL

Injunction Granted Against the Destruction of Assets Following Sale of Property.

The Allied Chemical and Dye Company, a minority stockholder in the Steel and Tube Company of America, was granted a preliminary injunction in the Court of Chancery in Wilmington yesterday restraining the Steel and Tube Company from distributing its assets among stockholders at the present time. A rule to show cause to the contrary has been issued by Chancellor Wolcott, returnable next Friday.

The property of the Steel and Tube Company was sold recently to the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company for approximately $33,000,000. Prior to the disposition of the property the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation was granted an injunction prohibiting the transfer of the assets, but this injunction was vacated a short time ago and the sale concluded.

Directors of the Steel and Tube Company yesterday voted to recommend to the stockholders liquidation of all of the preferred stock, of which $16,500,000 is outstanding, and all except a nominal amount of common stock. The stockholders have been called to a special meeting, to be held Aug. 7, for the purpose of voting upon the proposals of the Directors. The charter of the company calls for a redemption of the outstanding preferred stock at $110 a share and accrued dividends in the event of liquidation of the company. It is not expected, however, that the preferred stock will be retired before Oct. 1, regardless of what action is taken at the stockholders' meeting. The injunction granted the Allied Chemical and Dye Company is not expected in any way to interfere with the stockholders' meeting.

The Allied Chemical and Dye Company is credited with holding 20 per cent. of the common capital stock of the Steel and Tube Company of America. Its opposition to the disposition of the property to the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company is understood to be based upon the ground that the compensation was not in line with the real value of the property.

Price of Lead Drops Twice in Day.

Two reductions in the price of lead were announced yesterday by the American Smelting & Refining Company. The first, made early in the morning, reduced the price of lead from 6.50 cents a pound at New York to 6.35 cents. Later in the day another reduction was announced, this time from 6.35 to 6.25, making the total reduction for the day 25 points.

MAIL COUNT TO GET COSTS.

Post Office Department Hints at Need of Higher Rates.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Post Office Department is about to launch a count of mail to determine the average cost of handling it with a view to a readjustment, either of postal rates or contracts with transportation companies.

The count, which will begin in selected cities September 21 and end October 20, will embrace the four classes of mail.

It is estimated that the cost of the postal service is about $500,000,000 annually and revenue from the sale of stamps comes within *85,000,000 of that amount. Officials said today it was hoped eventually to have the postal service pay for itself. There is a possibility, they said, that Congress may see fit to raise potal rates.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stocks Rally Vigorously.

The sharpest rally of the week occurred in the last two hours of dealing yesterday. That it was a technical rally staged by those who had sold for the decline and who desired to repurchase their commitments was quite evident. The news of the day did not develop a single factor which might possibly have been construed as a peg, on which the rally could have been hung. Judge Gary's statement, under ordinary circumstances, could not have been considered a constructive factor marketwise, because it emphasized the increased cost that an eight-hour day would mean to the steel industry. But nevertheless, the market's rally was coincident with his announcement and throughout the afternoon some very sharp upturns were recorded in the speculative market leaders. Such issues as United States Steel common, Studebaker, American Can, Baldwin Locomotive, New York Central and other market leaders of the same sort were in insistent demand. Wall Street's consensus was that the market had reached the point where it was technically oversold and due for a rally, if nothing else but from the force of buying from those who had sold for the decline, who wished to even up their commitments before today's half-holiday.

Better Sentiment in Wall Street.

No matter what the stock market may do—and, of course, that is anybody's guess—the sentiment in Wall Street has undergone a very considerable change in the last four or five days. It is too much to say that pessimism has turned overnight into optimism, but brokerage houses believe that the pessimistic side has been overplayed and that the Street as a whole has lost sight of business fundamentals, and has been accepting without hesitation the theory that the stock market controls business instead of the well-proved fact that business controls the stock market. One of the evidences of the disappearance of pessimism was the absence of rumors about brokerage house failures in the financial district yesterday.

A Rally in Sterling.

The first reaction to the increase in the Bank of England's rate as shown in the foreign exchange market was a rally in sterling, which yesterday moved to $4.57, up 2 1-16 cents from the low point reached the day before. A better demand for this bill was reported by dealers, and for the first time in several weeks there appeared to be a slackening in the amount of sterling offered. The quotation closed at $4.56½, up ⅞ of a cent—a net gain which was made the more impressive in view of the behavior of other European bills, which closed at levels just a shade above their low points for the year.

Recruiting American Labor.

Although barriers imposed by the new Immigration law have held back many thousands of workmen who would like to enter the United States from various European countries, it is now becoming apparent that a new source of labor supply is being opened to American industries. According to the recent statements of industrial leaders, there is a substantial increase in the number of laborers entering this country from Canada, Mexico and the Philippines. The Canadian labor immigrants are said to be particularly desirable as a group, these workmen having been fairly well schooled in Canadian industry before filtering southward. The Mexican laborer also has some friends, although he is not yet well known in the industrial plants far north of the border line. In any event, it is suggested, this new supply added to the numbers of European laborers still permitted through Ellis Island and other immigration stations holds forth fairly good promise of meeting requirements of industry, at least for the immediate future.

Financing for Canada.

The banking fraternity is becoming more and more perplexed as to the part this country will play, if any, in the three-cornered refunding operation which it was suggested several weeks ago that Canada would enter for the purpose of paying off some $172,000,000 of bonds which become due next Nov. 1. As yet no overtures have been made by Canadian Government representatives to local bankers, it was stated yesterday, although London reports have suggested that Canada has sounded out that market. The Canadian plan so far as Wall Street can tell is to sell as many bonds in London as possible—due to the lower interest rates obtainable there—and to absorb as much in the Canadian market as possible. If any balance is left over it is expected that this portion will be placed in New York, but the earlier estimate that $50,000,000 of such bonds would be offered here has been modified somewhat of late. One reason why it is believed Canada will do some of her financing work in the American market is because of a desire to maintain her market standing here at the high point which was reached after offering Government loans during and since the war.

The Twelve-Hour Day Doomed.

Judge Gary's statement yesterday that the iron and steel industry was working earnestly for the "entire abolition of the twelve-hour" day was accepted in Wall Street as a definite indication that the long day of labor is doomed in this country. The campaign against the twelve-hour day has been carried on with great enthusiasm since the war, and in this campaign steel men as well as the professional or the sincere friends of the laboring man have played their part. Wall Street interest concentrated largely in the question as to costs that the abolishment of the twelve-hour day will raise, and an answer to this question was seen in Judge Gary's estimates that the price of iron and steel production will be increased about 15 per cent. The question was put to Judge Gary whether this would be reflected in a corresponding increase in the selling price of steel, to which the Judge replied that it "ought to mean a raise," although the industry will strive to do all possible by way of substituting improved machinery for man power by way of keeping production costs down.

Bonds a Shade Firmer.

With a comparatively lean week in point of new bond offerings just passed and with prospects none too bright for larger offerings in the next week or two ahead, investment bankers yesterday were showing more than the usual amount of interest in the tale of the ticker as to bond prices in the open market. Prices were a shade firmer throughout the entire list, and while far from robust they were distinctly more encouraging than in the previous sessions, when many new lows were recorded for the year by bonds of a speculative or semi-speculative character and by railroad bonds in particular. The continued small amount of transactions, as well as easy prices, was taken to indicate that the anticipated re-investment buying movement was still being held in abeyance, and it was suggested that few new offerings of size would be brought out until there was better evidence than at present of such a demand in prospect.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was firm all day. There was some calling in the forenoon, which sent opening and renewal rate of 4½ per cent. up to 5, with a later advance to 5½. Dealers reported good demand throughout and little left unloaded at the close. Time money market was quiet at prevailing quotations of 5 per cent. bid for all dates and accommodation offered at 5¼; renewals were arranged at lenders' charges. Interest in discounting of commercial paper continued, but bulk of paper at 5 per cent. Call loans against acceptances firmed ¼ to 4¾ per cent., no change in future bills.

London Market.

Money in London unchanged at 2 per cent.; short bills ⅛ higher at 3⅛@3⅛ per cent.; three months' bills ⅛ up at 3⅝@3⅝ per cent.

Gold bullion 2d lower at 90s 5d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of £4s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of go'd would represent a price of 106 1-3 at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106⅛, on July 5. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149⅜, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 103⅜, on Feb. 21, 1922. Last year's highest was 136, on Jan. 3.

Clearing House Exchanges.

Exchange of checks at the New York Clearing House, $888,000,000; balances, $84,000,000; Federal Reserve credit balance, $72,000,000; exchanges this day a year ago, $866,700,000.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $54,046,111

Largest Issue $40,000,000 of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company Debentures.

$3,250,000 FOR UTILITIES

State and Municipal Securities Aggregate $9,296,111—Little Reinvestment Demand Observed.

The largest bond offering this week was the $40,000,000 issue of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company debentures placed on the market last Monday. The offerings for the week totaled $54,046,111, or $28,000,000 less than in the previous week when offerings totaled $82,165,000.

A comparison of offerings by groups for this and the previous week follows:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Industrial	$40,000,000	$15,300,000
State and municipal	9,296,111	9,909,000
Public utility	3,250,000	8,000,000
Land bank	1,500,000	47,000,000
Foreign	.....	2,000,000
Insular	.....	956,000
Total	$54,046,111	$82,165,000

One of the features of the current week was the continued absence of reinvestment demand. Bond houses and bankers reported that they were doing business of this kind on a moderate scale, but that the big buying movement which usually develops soon after the turn of the half year was missing. The principal reason suggested was that the security markets were still unsettled, a number of stocks and bonds going to new low levels for the year, and buyers were waiting for the bottom.

While the unsettled condition of the stock market was more pronounced than that of the bond market, it was apparent that even in gilt-edge securities there was more liquidation in prospect than accumulation. Railroad bonds showed particular weakness, and practically all descriptions of a semi-speculative character were forced to or around low levels for the year. In one day more than thirty new lows were touched. Toward the end of the week there were evidences of rallying power, but the volume of trading showed that little of the expected reinvestment buying had appeared.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company bonds were brought out at a time when their sale would seem most difficult, owing to the holiday and the fact that several other large issues had been offered recently. The sale was entirely satisfactory, according to the Bankers Trust Company which headed the offering syndicate.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Irregularity at Paris, Weakness at London.

LONDON, July 6.—Prices were weak on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols, ⅝ lower at 56⅞; British 5 per cent. war loan, ⅝ lower at 99⅝; 4½ per cent. war loan, ¼ higher at 97¾.

Rand Mines, ⅛ higher at 2⅜; De Beers Mining, ¼ lower at 13½.

PARIS, July 6.—Prices moved irregularly on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, unchanged at 55 francs 85 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, 20 centimes lower at 75 francs.

Exchange on London, 70 centimes higher at 78 francs 30 centimes per sovereign; American dollars were quoted at 17 francs 25½ centimes, against 17 francs 5½ centimes yesterday.

DANISH GOLD ON WAY HERE.

Plan to Strengthen Exchange by Buying Paper Kroner Locally.

The National Bank of Denmark is shipping gold to New York in an effort to strengthen the Danish krone, according to advices from Copenhagen. The amount was not stated.

It was said at local banks that the consignment, reported to be en route, would be used primarily for stabilization purposes through the buying of paper kroner on sale here. A large shipment would not be required, according to foreign exchange dealers, as selling orders are not heavy.

The krone showed strength yesterday, closing at 17.42 cents, up 22 points net. The previous day it had closed at a new record low for the year at 17.22 cents. Parity is 26.8 cents.

WOOL MARKET FIRMER.

Germany a Large Buyer During the Week.

BOSTON, July 6.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"There is a better tone in the wool market. Prices have not hardened during the week. There has been hardly sufficient actual business done for that, but on the other hand they have not declined further. Indeed the market appears to have righted itself and manufacturers hunting for bargains have found many of their bids turned down flat.

"London has kept very firm throughout the week, in spite of some fairly heavy withdrawals. The Continent is the chief buyer. Bradford is feeling better, with heavier sales of all descriptions. Prices at Brisbane declined about 5 per cent. from the previous rates. The Continent was the chief operator, Germany being the big buyer.

"Interest in the goods market now centres on the opening of lightweights, which is expected about the middle of the month. Some advance in price is inevitable, although the manufacturers will unquestionably minimize the rise as much as possible.

SILVER PRODUCERS PLAN EXPORT UNIT

INDUSTRY NOW DEPRESSED

F. H. Brownell, Guggenheim Executive, Suggests Combine Like Copper Export Association.

The formation of a silver export association, patterned along the lines of the Copper Export Association, has been suggested by Francis H. Brownell, Vice President of the American Smelting and Refining Company, who made public yesterday a plan which he believes will relieve the present depression of silver producers as the result of suspended silver purchases by the United States Mint under the Pittman act at $1 an ounce.

Mr. Brownell's plan would bring together some of the largest silver producers of the United States, whose mines furnish about 70 per cent. of the world's silver output. Eventually, he suggests, other American silver producers would enter the association until the eventual control of nearly 90 per cent. of the world silver production facilities would be acquired. To start the new association, an amendment to existing laws would have to be obtained, but Mr. Brownell says this could probably be accomplished, as Congress has already appointed a committee to look into the silver situation with a view to relieving the crisis now faced by silver producers.

According to Mr. Brownell such an association would be capitalized at the start at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 and would have authority to raise from time to time $50,000,000 more for exploitation purposes. While the association would interest itself in the sale of silver for coinage purposes, it would also feel out the markets of the world for other uses of silver and would eventually seek to bring about the use of silver commercially in a larger way than it is now used. The association would obtain its income through a charge of 1 to 2 cents an ounce on silver mined, or enough to bring in from $1,750,000 to $3,500,000 a year on current production, figures showing an average production in this country of 175,000,000 ounces annually.

Mr. Brownell is Chairman of the Finance Committee of the American Smelting & Refining Company, a Vice President, a Director and also a member of the Executive Committee. He is also President of the Federal Mining & Smelting Company, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, silver producers in the world.

Three companies now sell between 50 and 60 per cent of the world's total yearly new production of silver. These are the American Smelting & Refining Company, the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company. From 15 to 20 per cent additional is sold by the American Metal Company, Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining & Concentrating Company, the Cerro de Pasco Copper Company, Nicholas Copper Company, Nipissing Mines Company and the Phelphs Dodge Corporation.

In his statement Mr. Brownell says:

"One of the most important purposes of the association should be to help restore the former use of silver as money and to encourage its continuance by those still using it. Any revival of political feuds, any strong arm method, arousing animosity, any effort to compel governments against their wills, would invite inevitable disaster. The friendly cooperation of the chief financial interests of England and of the United States and the friendly attitude of each of those Governments must be obtained. English financiers for generations have had what is practically a commission on the sale of the world's silver. This would probably have to be continued to some extent, to be arranged by negotiation. The large English banks engaged in the oriental business should be interested also. A whole plan and purpose of the Association should be to work along lines of co-operation and without arousing antagonism, trade rivalries and political animosity."

GERMANS SELL SECURITIES.

Substantial Amount Has Been Disposed Of Recently, Says Report.

A substantial amount of selling of securities has been going on for the past two weeks for the account of German holders of stocks and bonds, according to reports circulated in the financial district yesterday. Banking houses with German connections declined to make any comment on the report.

According to the view expressed by representatives of brokerage houses which have handled some of the liquidation orders this selling has been divided into smaller orders placed with numerous houses and has been more or less of a distress nature. With the paper mark now so cheap it was suggested that Germans were finding it necessary to establish credits through the sale of American bonds or stocks.

Stocks which have been mentioned in this connection are Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific preferred, Anaconda Copper, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, Rock Island and Great Northern.

BANK EXCHANGE LAST MONTH BELOW MAY

Also Less Than January and March, but Greater Than April and February.

Drawn checks on American banks and exchanged at the principal clearing houses of the country in the month of June totaled $34,792,240,606, a drop of 2.1 per cent. from the May aggregate, but 2 per cent. greater than for June a year ago. For New York City, the turnover was $18,675,477,660, likewise a loss of 2.7 per cent. compared with May this year, but slightly more than 15 per cent. greater than the return in June, 1922. Outside of New York City, the total of $16,116,762,956 for last month was 1.3 per cent. smaller than the preceding month and 7.1 per cent. under June a year ago. For the six months of this year drawn checks in June were greater than April and February, but below those for January, March and May.

This summary, compiled by the Financial Chronicle, shows increases in but four of the Federal Reserve districts for June over May, as against gains in all districts, but New York, in a comparison of June this year with the same month a year ago.

June clearings for the entire country compare as follows with those of previous months and years:

WOOLWORTH HEAD ASSAILS PESSIMISTS

H. T. Parson Scouts Wall Street's Attitude on Financial Outlook as "Bugaboo."

60 NEW STORES PLANNED

Estimates Company's 1923 Sales Will Exceed $180,000,000—Praises Rail Deliveries.

Asserting business is good and that there is no reason it should not continue good for the rest of the year, H. T. Parson, President of F. W. Woolworth Company, yesterday attacked what he termed Wall Street's "bugaboo" on the financial outlook.

Merchandise prices were on a stable basis, he said, and his company did not hesitate to contract for future delivery at present prices. Manufacturers were not calling for financial assistance, as was the case with some last year, and, he added, shipments were prompt in all sections of the country.

"Our sales continue in splendid volume," said Mr. Parson. "June sales showed a substantial increase over those of June, 1922. This, coupled with the fine increase reported by the mail order houses for the six months, prove the public is making and spending money. In May only one district—that of Butte, Mont.,—showed sales under May, 1922; but this will be made up by the sales in June. All other districts are far ahead of last year's total."

The Woolworth Company expects to open more than sixty stores in various parts of the country during the current year, according to Mr. Parson, who said this would be an increase of approximately ten over the average number opened in the last few years.

"I think Wall Street has started a bugaboo," Mr. Parson said, "I see no reason for pessimism. I have found no such sentiment regarding the future among retail merchandising men or, for that matter, among manufacturers, as seems to be overflowing the financial district.

"At our recent directors' meeting for organizing the board, we had present our district managers, representing every section of the country. Without exception, they reported their own and general business in each district to be good and the outlook bright. Even that part of the Southwest which includes copper mining territory is showing splendid improvement, although towns there have been hard hit because mines were shut down for a period. Sales in the South are good. In my opinion, the South's financial position is strong.

"I find merchandise prices on a stable basis and for that reason we are willing to buy ahead. We are not experiencing requests for financial help by manufacturers who turn out our merchandise, nor is there any distress selling of goods by manufacturers who find themselves overstocked."

The New England railroad situation was clearing up rapidly and the retail situation there was good, Mr. Parson said.

"Another noticeable improvement which, I believe, is general," he continued, "are the splendid deliveries by the railroads. A year ago we were held up from thirty to sixty days by slow deliveries, but this year the reverse is true."

Another helpful factor in the domestic situation, Mr. Parson said, was the high type of immigrants to the United States. These should help the labor situation and reduce the shortage of skilled help, he thought.

As for the Woolworth Company, its President estimated 1923 sales would exceed $180,000,000, as against total gross sales last year of $167,000,000. The company was proceeding conservatively and had no intention of paying any extra cash or stock dividends this year, he said, adding that surplus cash would be used to liquidate bank loans, made to assist in paying out $12,500,000 when $10,000,000 preferred stock of the company was retired at 125 last February. Last year the company brought its "good-will" item down to $30,000,000 through transfer of $20,000,000 from profit-and-loss surplus. This policy would be continued, Mr. Parson intimated.

The Woolworth Company, which imports china, crockery, toys and other merchandise from Germany, negotiates all such deals in dollars, Mr. Parson said.

TO BUY INTO BELT RAILWAY.

Pere Marquette Is Reported to Join Other Lines In Ownership.

The Pere Marquette Railway will probably become one of the joint owners of the Belt Railway Company of Chicago at the meeting of the company to be held in Chicago on June 10, it was reported in the financial district yesterday. The Belt Railway is now owned by twelve roads entering Chicago, each of which has 2,400 shares of stock.

According to the information that reached New York yesterday the Pere Marquette will be admitted as an equal member, it being the policy of the holders of the Belt Railway Company of Chicago to admit other roads to ownership upon request.

The Pere Marquette now uses the Baltimore & Ohio Chicago terminal to handle its Chicago freight.

Loans and Investments Rise $48,000,000 In the Week at New York Member Banks

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Aggregate increases of $60,000,000 in loans and of $29,000,000 in accommodation at the Federal Reserve Banks are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated statement of condition on June 27 of 774 member banks in leading cities.

Increases of $52,000,000 in loans secured by stocks and bonds and of $11,000,000 in all other, largely commercial, loans, as against a reduction of $3,000,000 in loans secured by United States obligations, are shown in the report. Member bank holdings of United States securities declined by $16,000,000, while their other investments increased by $18,000,000, so that the total investment holdings increased by $2,000,000 and total loans and investments by $62,000,000.

Member banks in New York City report an increase of $42,000,000 in loans secured by stocks and bonds and decreases of $1,000,000 and $4,000,000, respectively, in loans secured by Government obligations and in all other loans. Government security holdings show but a nominal change, while other investments increased by $12,000,000, so that the total of loans and investments for the New York members was $48,000,000 larger than the week before.

Borrowings of the reporting institutions from the Federal Reserve Banks increased from $462,000,000 to $491,000,000, or from 2.8 to 3 per cent. of their combined loans and investments. For member banks in New York City, an increase from $78,000,000 to $92,000,000 in their borrowings from the local Reserve Bank and from 1.5 to 1.9 per cent. in the ratio of these borrowings to total loans and investments is noted.

Government deposits of the reporting banks remained practically unchanged, while demand deposits increased $10,000,000 for all banks combined and $34,000,000 for the New York City banks. Time deposits increased $4,000,000 for all banks, but declined about $1,000,000 at the New York banks.

Reserve balances of the reporting institutions with the Federal Reserve Banks show a decline of $7,000,000 for the week, while the New York banks show an increase of $5,000,000 in this item. Cash in vault increased by $3,000,000 for all reporting banks and by $2,000,000 for the New York banks.

Following is a statement of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of reporting member banks, as compared with a week and a year ago:

DOMESTIC SUPPLY OF SUGAR INCREASES

Distribution in First Half of 1923 Is Less, but Exportation Shows Slump.

CUBAN PRODUCTION OFF

Beet Crop Furnishes 375,000 Tons and Louisiana Sends 60,000 Direct to Consumer.

Distribution of sugar in the first half of 1923 was in excess of 130,000 tons less than in the same period of last year, according to an estimate made public yesterday by the Federal Sugar Refining Company. This statement says that refiners' meltings during the first six months of this year totaled 2,464,565 tons, as compared with 2,655,125 tons last year.

But while there was a decrease in the amount of sugar melted the estimate shows that there also was a decrease in the amount exported, the total this year being 195,000 tons, against 665,661 tons last year, thus leaving a balance for the domestic trade of 2,097,045 tons in 1923, as compared with 1,989,464 tons in 1922. Adding 60,000 tons of Louisiana sugar consumed without refining and beet sugar distribution of approximately 375,000 tons, the estimate indicates that the distribution of sugar for the first half of 1923 has been 2,532,045 tons. Last year in the same period it was 2,663,331 tons, or 131,286 tons more than in the first half of this year.

The report of the Federal Sugar Refining Company on conditions also says that 177 centrals in Cuba have completed operations, reporting a run of 3,338,029 tons, as compared with the original estimate of 3,739,714 tons.

Warns of Forged Dividend Checks.

Fraudulent dividend checks on the Federal Acceptance Corporation, 565 Fifth Avenue, are being circulated among security holders, C. G. Cooke, Treasurer of the corporation, announced yesterday. The forged checks were for the next quarterly dividend, July 15, and bore the signature "F. J. Lercis" as the first endorsement, Mr. Cooke said.

Hartman Sales Show Big Increase.

Hartman Corporation sales for June were $1,012,009, an increase of 5 per cent. over the $962,625 in the same month last year. The June sales brought the total sales for the first six months of the year up to $9,599,743, an increase of 44 per cent. over the $6,664,030 for the first half of 1922.

WHEAT AGAIN NEAR LOWEST OF SEASON

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Wheat dropped early to within a fraction of lowest price of the season on July and December, with September at $1.01⅛, equaling the inside figure so far, under $1.02. There was good buying, headed by a local house which took the surplus out of the pit, and toward the last covering by local shorts made a sharp rally with the finish ⅞@1¼ cent higher, with July leading the latter, going to ⅛ cent premium over September at the last.

Rather persistent buying of the July and selling of the deferred delivery recently looks as though an effort was being made to attract cash wheat in this direction, but so far there have been no arrivals from the 1923 crop and the general run of reports from the interior indicate that farmers are slow to sell.

On the other hand a house with extensive Southwestern connections claimed to have bought more wheat overnight than at any time so far. Wichita, Kans., has received 107 cars and Hutchinson 65 cars for the day. The bulk of the grain at the latter point is from the new crop.

With the average moisture content running from 13 to 16 per cent., weather conditions in the southwest are favorable to harvesting and thrashing. Black rust reports from the Northwest are increasing.

Sufficient export business seems to develop on the breaks to about offset the hedging by the country, and the balance is so delicate at the moment that the pit element quietly becomes oversold or overbought. Export sales in all positions were estimated at 600,000 to 700,000, but included a fairly liberal trade in new crop Winters, although understood to be against old business.

Corn closed ⅝@1 cent higher, September showing the least advance. December, early, broke to 60⅛ cents, a new low for the season, only to rally to 62⅝ cents and close at the top, largely on local short covering, as the general run of crop and weather reports is decidedly favorable. A local cash house bought July and the latter sots decidedly congested. Shorts are getting uneasy and come in on all the dips. The holding that causes the delivery to act tight is said to be largely local.

The Corn Products Company plants are scheduled to resume grinding next Monday but, despite the fact that they have been out of the market for cash grain for a week, the spot basis remains decidedly firm, with No. 2 yellow 4@4½ cents over July, and mixed 1¾ cents over.

September and December oats sold at a new low for the season but rallied with other grains and closed ½@⅝ cents lower. July was ¼ cent lower at the last.

It is intimated that the buying of rye futures the past few days has been for seaboard account and reflects a larger export business than reported. The close was 1¼@1⅝ cents higher for the day.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 533,000 bushels; week ago, 840,000; last year, 713,000. Shipments were 59,000 bushels; week ago, 656,000; last year, 532,000.

Corn receipts were 750,000 bushels; week ago, 628,000; last year 1,019,000, and shipments 419,000 bushels; week ago, 535,000; last year, 376,000.

Another Cut in Lead—Grains Irregular, Dairies Steady, Coffee at New Low.

A further cut of 15 points in the price of lead by the leading smelting companies was the outstanding change reported in local cash markets yesterday, current price of 6.35 cents, comparing with 8⅝ cents made early in March. In the grains wheat and oats went lower, while corn moved up, and in the groceries coffee dropped ¾ cent to 11 cents, a new low point for the year. Dairy products were steady, with a slight increase in lard, with other provisions unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Friday, a week before, and a year ago:

COTTON GOES HIGHER ON BUYING OF JULY

Profit-Taking in Early Hours Gives Way to a General Recovery Later.

Action of July continued to influence the entire cotton market, bringing a further recovery yesterday. Though profit-taking caused irregularity earlier in the day, demand for July contracts became such during the afternoon that prices rose half a cent and made an advance of nearly a cent and a half in two days. With strength in July, a firmer stock market and higher range of prices abroad, a covering movement developed in new crop months which carried October to 24.10 during the last hour of the session. The crop is improving in most sections, but rain is needed in Texas. Prices gained 17 to 23 points.

As Liverpool barely met the advance in American markets, scattered profit-taking occurred in early trading. This carried October back 20 points, with all months from 20 to 30 points from high levels of Thursday before the tone steadied. Then a further improvement developed abroad, bringing prices there to high figures of the day. A better stock market and resumption of the buying movement in July started a recovery, so that by midday July had advanced over 26 cents and execution of several orders in distant months established a higher range of prices than any reached the previous session. With weather generally favorable, profit-taking on various lines of cotton bought during the decline following the monthly report supplied contracts and prices eased off again. But every setback found July contracts wanted which tended to support the entire list. Outside of scattered realizing, selling pressure proved limited, though the advance failed to attract increased outside business. Few orders for more than a thousand bales were executed during the morning, though the volume of purchases in July reached a liberal total considering its being a spot month.

For the third successive day little rain fell in the cotton belt, with temperatures in the seventies at 8 o'clock in the morning. Reliable advices from Texas indicate a large area in the Southwest is now in need of a good soaking rain. This, however, is the normal progress of the crop in that region, and it will be August before any definite information is forthcoming as to the probable yield. In an average season, a call for rain is heard from the Southwest more than once during June or July, but the crop is generally made by a good August rainfall. As the coming month or six weeks will be the most critical of the entire growing season, market operations are restricted at the moment.

The most active trading of the day developed the last hour under the lead of July. Demand for that month assumed increasing proportions, starting a rise to nearly 25 cents, compared with 25½ cents the previous day. Covering of late months ran October over 24 cents, all cotton for sale at the even figure being readily absorbed. Prices reacted 10 to 16 points in final trading.

The amount in sight this week aggregated 56,000 bales against 84,000 last year, making 10,949,000 for the season compared with 10,515,000 last year. Spinners' takings were only 105,000 against 210,000 a year ago, making 8,010,000 for the season against 12,187,000 last year. This brought about a reduction in the visible supply of 64,000 bales against 125,000 last year, leaving the total world's supply of American cotton 1,077,000 against 2,441,000 a year ago.

NATIONAL MOTOR CO. CITED.

Successor of Company With Judgment FHed Against It Here.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 6.—A suit asking for a receiver for the National Motor Car and Vehicle Corporation and the National Motors Corporation of Indianapolis and judgment for $10,987 was filed in the Superior Court today by attorneys representing William H. Duval, George M. Preifer and Chester D. Ireland of the firm of W. H. Duval & Co. of New York.

The plaintiffs allege that the National Motor Car and Vehicle Corporation is indebted to them in the amount asked, which represents a judgment obtained by the plaintiffs in the Supreme Court of New York, April 26, in a suit against the company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State.

The National Motors Company was formed after the National Motor Car and Vehicle Company lost the case in the New York Supreme Court.

TO EXCHANGE RAIL SHARES.

Guaranty Trust Is Transfer Agent of New Consolidated Company.

Exchange of the stocks of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company, Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company, and the Lake Erie and Western Railroad Company for the stock of the new consolidation known as the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company can be effected through the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, it was announced yesterday.

Holders wishing to exchange their stock can do so by presenting the stock of the constituent roads, properly guaranteed as to signature, to the Guaranty Trust Company. Receipts will be issued for all stock so deposited, and the stock in the new company will be delivered when issued. Involved in the transaction are 458,800 shares of preferred and 506,200 shares of common stock of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company, for which railroad the Guaranty Trust Company has been appointed transfer agent.

HOLIDAYS CUT DRY GOODS.

Road Sales Drop and Current Sales Below Last Week's.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was greater in volume than for the corresponding period a year ago, but was considerably less than last week. The customary inactivity of the post-inventory period and the withdrawal from their territories of a considerable proportion of the road sales force for vacations were felt in the small volume of road sales taken during the week. The total was about the same as that of the corresponding week last year.

"There were more customers in the market than during the same week in 1922.

SLACK IN BUSINESS SEEN BY REVIEWS

Bradstreet's Reports a Quieting Down in Textiles and Drop in Metal Output.

FAILURES SHOW DECREASE

Insolvencies During June Were Least in Past Two Years, According to Dun's.

A slight quieting down in trade, a shading off in prices of some commodities, combined with a decrease in the number of failures, are some of the outstanding conditions in the analysis of trade conditions for the past week as made by Bradstreet's.

"Outstanding events of the week have been fewer in number than of late," says the report, "these including a quieting down in textiles, with increased curtailment of production and some further price revisions of cotton goods; a slight shading off in iron and steel and coal outputs, with further ease in pig iron, scrap and fuel, continued operation in most automobile factories, a new high production in petroleum, a slight increase in Winter wheat estimates, marked activity in current building, but a further shading off in new plans, renewed mention of shortage in some construction materials, increased inquiry for cars, rails and track material by railroads, fewer orders for lumber, but continued active output, and the first advance since midwinter in the food index, due to higher prices for food animals. The majority price movements, however, are still downward."

In summing up conditions for the week ended July 7, the R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Business says:

"The policy of restricting operations to actual requirements apparently indicates dourse as to the probable course of business and of prices, and it is significant of this condition that most manufacturers and dealers are disinclined to accumulate reserve stocks of merchandise. Evidence is not lacking that the heavy production of earlier months is beginning to affect some prices, and the second half of the year has opened with declines again largely outnumbering advances in Dun's list of wholesale commodity quotations.

"The crops, on the whole, have made good progress, but the relatively low prices for grains are causing revision of estimates of the purchasing power in agricultural communities.

"There is not a little that is encouraging in current statistics of failures. A decided reduction in the business mortality during the second quarter of the year has been foreshadowed by the returns for April and May, and the statement compiled this week shows decreases of 17 per cent. in number and 12 per cent. in liabilities from the defaults of the first quarter.

"The comparison with the record for the second quarter of 1922 is even more favorable, there being a decline of 25 per cent. in number and a contraction of 22 per cent. in the indebtedness for the insolvencies of the earlier period. More than this, fewer failures occurred in June than in any month in two years, while the amount of money involved reached the lowest point since August, 1920. The exhibit for the latest month appears the more satisfactory when the recent check to the industrial expansion and rise of prices is considered, and the increase in number of firms in business also is to be taken into account."

New President of Philipsborn's, Inc.

Philipsborn's, Inc., announce that Porter M. Farrel, for many years associated with the National Cloak & Suit Company, will shortly become associated with them as President. Martin M. Philipsborn becomes Chairman of the Board of Directors. The company also announces the election of Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Vice President of the Chicago Title & Trust Company, as a member of the board.

Hayes Wheel Sets Sales Record.

Gross sales aggregating more than $1,900,000, a new high record, are reported by the Hayes Wheel Company for June. Net sales for the first six months of the year were approximately $10,000,000, compared with $6,155,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings for the first six months will exceed $1,000,000 after charges and depreciation but before taxes, against the dividend requirement of $300,000 for that period.

Real Estate Bonds Offered.

Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc., of 120 Broadway are offering $600,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. real estate sinking fund gold bonds of the Rosedale Park Land Company, Detroit, due June 1, 1933, at 100 and interest to yield 6½ per cent. The bonds are tax exempt in Michigan.

LONDON LIVING COSTS SHOW DROP IN JUNE

Index Number 111 Points Below May, but Six Months Average Above That of 1922.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—June saw a substantial decrease in The Economist's index number of wholesale prices. It amounted to 111 points and makes the total 4,301, the lowest recorded since that of December.

The average for the half year is 4,373.5 as compared with an average for the year 1922 of 4,294.5.

The rise, The Economist says, is attributable to a large extent to events in the Ruhr, which in the early months of the year produced a sudden demand for coal, iron and steel, at a time when supplies were not sufficient to meet it.

The index figures for June are:

Cereals and meat	815.5
Other food products (tea, sugar, etc.)	773.5
Textiles	1,177.5
Minerals	778.5
Miscellaneous (rubber, timber, oils, etc.)	761.0
Total	4,801.0

FRANCO-BELGIAN TRADE.

New Convention Accords to Belgium Entire Minimum Tariff.

The Foreign Tariff Division of the Department of Commerce is informed that by the commercial convention between Belgium and France, signed May 12, and effective ten days after exchange of ratifications upon parliamentary approval in both countries, France continues to accord to Belgium the entire minimum tariff, with reduction in coefficients which amount to the lowering of duties from 10 to 15 per cent. on a considerable number of articles. Belgium, on the other hand, in granting France its proposed minimum tariff effects numerous reductions from the proposed rates.

The modifications of the proposed Belgian rates, generally by way of decreases, affect various articles belonging principally to the following classes: Foodstuffs, patent medicines, leather goods, clothing, iron and steel products, including various tools; ceramic products; various glass products such as porcelain insulators and similar electrical accessories; table glass, &c.; textile products, including various woolen and linen yarns; certain leather products and machinery constituting a limited number of items.

Both Governments, however, are empowered to modify the rate or methods of imposition of duties contained in the convention, in accordance with exchange fluctuations, price variations, and similar determining factors, but without increasing the margin of protection entailed by the duty established by the convention.

CATTLE INDUSTRY WANES.

It Will Soon Be Unprofitable to Raise Them, Says Rancher.

James W. Buck, a ranch owner of Montana, who is at the Hotel Pennsylvania, declares that the time is fast approaching when it will be unprofitable to raise live stock for the market. Mr. Buck predicted a coming shortage in the world's supply of fresh beef.

"The stock raising industry as a money maker has been depreciating for some time, and now it is taking a rapid slide downhill," said Mr. Buck. "The ranges and the land which are necessary to take care of the stock which produce our mutton and beef are fast being homesteaded. There are few huge ranges in the West any more. They are rapidly being covered with a network of fences, and this, too, is a condition which is hostile to cattle raising, for, while in former days the cattle used to range far and wide, in the Winter time now the storm drives them up against some restraining fence and there they freeze to death.

"This is a very vital matter, as it affects not only the meat supply of the United States but of the whole world. Furthermore, the men who are needed to take care of the ranges are no longer available. The romance has gone out of cow punching. No one wants to follow this occupation any more. All of the old desires to white-collar jobs. The great West, which at one time produced enormous herds of cattle and sheep, is now being closely settled, and this rings the knell of the cattle industry."

Reading Rights Removed From Curb

The New York Curb Market, through its Committee on Listing and Securities, yesterday ruled that contracts made in Reading rights when issued are now void and ruled that the rights be removed from trading. The committee also ruled that members who have adjusted such contracts to a valuation of $18 per right in accordance with the ruling handed down Jan. 12, 1922, shall proceed to settle such adjustment without delay. Contracts in Reading Coal Company rights were also ruled as void and such rights were removed from trading.

Urges Pool on Canadian Wheat.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 6.—Canadian wheat prices will fall below the cost of production, exerting a disastrous effect on the entire economic life of Western Canada, unless a voluntary wheat pool is formed, J. H. Haslam, economic adviser to the Farmers' Union of Canada declared at the annual convention today. It has become obvious during the last month that new low level prices will be reached unless relief is provided, he said.

Norfolk & Western Loadings Off.

Although the loadings of the Norfolk & Western were 114,031 for June, the highest for any month this year, they were 11,112 or 12 per cent. under the same month of last year, according to the figures made public yesterday. Due to the amount of non-union coal handled by the Norfolk & Western during the strike last year, the figures for 1922 were abnormally high, it was pointed out.

Wasser to Direct Jersey Road Job.

Thomas J. Wasser, former Chief Engineer of the New Jersey State Highway Commission and now President of the National Association of Road Engineers, has been engaged to take charge of the road work of the Public Service Production Company, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

Waldorf System's Sales Gain.

Sales of the Waldorf System, Inc., for the month of June were $1,151,600, against $983,276, according to a report made public yesterday. Sales for the first six months of this year were $6,829,727, as compared with $5,757,060 in the same period of last year.

RESERVE BANK ACTS TO HALT WHEAT GLUT

OVERSUPPLY HITS PRICES

Foreign Buyers Are Combined Against Producers—Big Problem Seen in New Crop.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Federal Reserve Board took the initiative today in a movement to bring about the education of co-operative marketing agencies and producers and buyers of agricultural products, particularly those interested in the harvesting and marketing of wheat in regard to the new credit facilities provided by the recent Congress.

Directions had been sent to all Federal Reserve agents to inform themselves fully regarding the new laws and see that the facts were circulated where they will do most good.

There was much interest in the action of the board because of the telegram sent to Secretary Wallace on June 27 by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in which he suggested that President Harding advise wheat growers to take advantage of the Intermediate Credit banks and other credit facilities and withhold 200,000,000 bushels of this year's wheat from the market. Mr. Silver thought that such action by the farmers would increase the price of wheat and benefit both producers and consumers.

The President did not issue the advice and there was no mention of withholding large quantities of surplus wheat from the market in the instructions sent to agents by the Reserve Board. These instructions were as follows:

"The Federal Reserve Board wishes to call attention to the importance of the Federal Reserve System functioning effectively in providing adequate financing for the orderly marketing of agricultural products.

"Your attention is called specifically to the near approach of the American wheat harvest. The movement of this commodity to the world markets will soon be on and will require financing as well as expert handling, to insure an orderly marketing movement and avoid periodical congestion at terminal market points, which is very much to the disadvantage of the producer in that it permits a combined buying arrangement on the part of foreign countries.

"The board is advised that the agricultural situation in many sections of the country has materially improved over what it was in the three previous crop seasons. There are, however, some weak spots that require studied attention with a view of assisting the producer in obtaining full advantage emanating from orderly marketing.

"The board would like to suggest that officials of all of the Federal Reserve banks, including branches, inform themselves fully regarding the added facilities for agricultural financing made possible through legislation enacted during the last Congress. This done, the Federal Reserve banks should give such information to the public, especially to the member banks, co-operative marketing agencies, and producers and buyers of agricultural products.

"The board feels that any activity on the part of the Federal Reserve banks will give added assurance to the producer and his marketing agency that added credit facilities are available, and will also be helpful in promoting mutual confidence, which should be instrumental in pointing out any additional steps that can be properly taken in the process of orderly marketing of agricultural products."

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS.

French Government Stands to Lose $135,000,000 by Ship Sale.

The French Government is gradually going out of the shipping business. Excellent progress has been made, it is reported, in the disposition of its merchant ships, and indications are that the entire fleet will be sold by the end of July. More than three-fourths of the fleet had been disposed of by the end of March, and present plans are proceeding satisfactorily, reports Eugene T. Chamberlain of the Department of Commerce.

During the major part of the war, French shipyards were almost entirely occupied in making munitions and repairing damaged allied shipping, and it was not until March 1918, that appropriations of 500,000,000 francs, later supplemented by an additional 350,000,000 francs, were made for the construction and purchase of ships for the Government account. The French losses during the war amounted to 915,000 tons—40 per cent. of her pre-war tonnage.

The delivery of German ships as represented for allied ships sunk by submarines was not completed until 1922, but, through purchase, construction and reparations, the French Government's fleet had reached a total of more than 800,000 tons in 1920.

The effects of the Government's fleet upon the restoration of the French merchant marine and the expense it entailed to the Government was severely felt, and agitation for the Government's retirement from the shipping business culminated in a bill passed in August, 1921, directing the sale of the fleet before July 31, 1923.

The only conditions of the law were that the sales should be "for the interests of the Treasury"; that the contracts should be approved by the Chamber of Deputies; that the purchaser could not resell a ship without the approval of the Government, and that he must pay the Government half the profit from such a sale.

A report covering the progress of liquidation up to January, 1923, states that as a base price, 400 francs (approximately $28) per deadweight ton of new steamer of 6,000 deadweight tons was fixed, and that prices were graded according to age, type, general conditions, &c. The report shows that up to that date 360 vessels of all types (steamers, barges, tugs, &c.), totaling 945,865 deadweight tons, were disposed of at a price of 115,324,000 francs. As of that date, this left nineteen vessels of 83,439 deadweight tons yet to be sold, estimated to bring 20,800,000 francs.

The report concludes with the statement that when the accounts of the Government's transactions in merchant shipping are finally closed, they will show a loss in round numbers of 2,000,000,000 francs, or at present exchange, about $135,000,000.

The ships considered in the report of the liquidation committee do not include fourteen cargo steamers of 79,900 deadweight tons and ten passenger steamers of 57,140 tons, which were still under construction or were just delivered late in 1922, or in 1923, but delivered in the first half of 1923. The cost of construction of these ships, less their market value when completed, is estimated at 60,000,000 francs. Upon the completion of these ships they will be chartered to French owners.

The figures do not include the expense to the Government of replacing twenty-one steamers of 67,000 gross tons (80,000 deadweight tons) which, while under Government charter during the last eight months of the war, were torpedoed, and which the Government was under contract to replace. Replacement began in 1919, but will not be completed until the current year. The total net loss to the Government on this account is computed at nearly 145,000,000 francs.

Including all these items the cost to the Government for the purchase and construction of ships stands at over 1,300,000,000 francs, and the proceeds from the sale of ships to be applied to the cost was about 138,000,000 francs, showing a loss of nearly 1,200,000 francs under this head. The operating losses up to Sept. 30, 1922, were 600,000 francs, showing a total loss of 1,800,000,000 francs.

WALLIS CONDEMNS IMMIGRATION LAW

12-HOUR DAY IS CRITICISED

Convention Calls for Its Abolition and Also Prohibition of the Poppy Here.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 6.—Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Correction of New York, and E. P. Gates of Boston, General Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society, were chief speakers on today's program of the internationalCh ristian Endeavor convention here.

Mr. Wallis, who is a former Immigration Commissioner at the Port of New York, had as a subject "Christian Endeavor and Neglected Groups," pointing out how the organization might well extend its service. The fact that foreign trade, influence and prestige follow in the wake of Christian pioneers was the theme of Mr. Gates.

Clarence Hamilton of Boston, prominent Endeavor leader, deplored the hero worship bestowed by the American youth on his favorite motion picture, baseball or boxing star.

Special "quiet hour" services were held in three churches during the forenoon, and group conferences dealt with leadership training, missionary education and religious vocations.

The twelve-hour day and the seven-day week for industrialworkers are a menace to the American home, the Christian Church and free government, according to a resolution before the convention. The resolution was introduced by the Executive Committee of the United Society of Christian Endeavor and will be sent to the constituent societies.

The statement says: "Unrest and open warfare in industry constitute a distinct challenge to Christianity. We recommend those who are acting as pathfinders of a new and Christian social order. Particularly do we commend such organizations as the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company and the International Harvester Company for their demonstrations of the practicability of the eight-hour day, the shop committee, and the wisdom of the participation of workers in direction and control.

"The twelve-hour day, the seven-day week, the espionage system and autocratic control are relics of an industrial absolutism; where they still continue they are a menace to the American home, the Christian Church and free government; they remain as feudal evils that Christian civilization ought long since to have outlawed. Because of them the Church is often unjustly measured by the working world. For vast numbers they stand as barriers in the road to Americanization. They promote unrest and make for bitterness and therefore are not good for a nation. We pledge our best efforts under the wise leadership of our churches to bring them to an end."

Prohibition of the poppy as the sure way to stamp out the narcotic evil and the selection of immigrants before they sail for America were advocated by Mr. Wallis.

"The per capita annual consumption of opium in Italy is one grain, in Germany, two grains; England, three grains; France, four grains, and the United States, thirty-six grains," he said.

"Furthermore, our consumption of this drug is ever on the increase. There must be a prohibition of the poppy, as well as of alcohol."

Discussing immigration, Mr. Wallis said: "Immigration can be regulated by legislation or by diplomacy, or by both, but the immigrant cannot be standardized. He is a human being and must be treated as such. Every day is Judgment Day for many people at Ellis Island. Families are cut in twain, husband and wife separated, children torn from their parents and mothers taken from their children. One is taken and the other left, right down the line. It is all wrong, and for the nation's honor it should be stopped forthwith.

"The new 3 per cent. quota law is scarcely worth the paper it is written on. The problem today is not the number of people who are knocking at the gateway, but the kind of people who are knocking. To merely reduce the number is no cure for the ill. What we need in immigration is to go to the other side and pick the people, morally, mentally and physically, whom we believe would be entitled to citizenship in this country, and if the foreign nations are not willing for that, then let the whole bunch stay at home.

"The gates of Ellis Island should swing both ways. They should swing inwardly in cordial reception to the alien in sympathy with American ideals who is willing to work. But they should also swing outwardly, eternally and impassably, to the man or woman who by word or deed would destroy the peace and tranquillity of the nation or threaten the overthrow of her free institutions."

THOMPSON BACKS LUNDIN.

Comes From Hawaii to Aid Him in Chicago School Board Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, who had journeyed from Honolulu to come to the aid of his old friend, Fred Lundin, and the members of the School Board who had caused him so much trouble during his two administrations as Mayor of Chicago, went on the witness stand today in Judge McDonald's court in the School Board conspiracy trial.

Lundin's appearance as a witness has been postponed until Monday.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, Commissioner of Health during the Thompson régime; Charles R. Francis, Thompson Commissioner of Public Works, and Leslie P. Volz, former Secretary of the William Hale Thompson Republican Club, were lesser witnesses for the defense today.

The point sought to be established for the defense by all these witnesses was that Lundin had nothing to do with School Board appointments.

"He never would talk about School Board or police appointments," said former Mayor Thompson. "It was a religion with him."

ENRIGHT AID WOULD QUIT.

Lieutenant, Ignored in Captaincy Promotions, Asks Retirement.

Application for retirement was made yesterday by Murray Wersansky, one of the three police lieutenants passed over by Commissioner Enright on June 26, when five captains were named. The application was filed with the police commissioner. Lieutenant Wersansky would not say whether the passing over his name, which was on the eligible list, actuated his decision.

Lieutenant Wersansky is attached to the Parkville station and lives at 14445 East Third Street, Brooklyn. He was appointed April 18, 1896, and became a sergeant Sept. 27, 1906, and a lieutenant May 29, 1911.

Admiral Fletcher and Family Here.

Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, U. S. N., of Washington, and Mrs. Fletcher, are at the Hotel Astor, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Alice Fletcher, and their son-in-law and daughter, Lieutenant Reginald Worth Hubbell, U. S. A., and Mrs. Hubbell, whose wedding took place in Washington on June 25.

Mrs. Fletcher, with her daughter, Miss Alice Fletcher, will sail for Europe today on the Albania, and they will be joined by Admiral Fletcher in the Autumn. Lieutenant and Mrs. Hubbell are also sailing today for Bermuda, where they will pass several weeks.

JAIL 5 SHOPLIFTERS; ONE GETS 3-YEAR TERM

Man Is Sent to Penitentiary—Four Women Are Sentenced to the Tombs.

Fines and prison terms ranging from one day in the Tombs to three years in the penitentiary were imposed yesterday in Special Sessions on a man and four women when they were convicted on shoplifting charges. The heaviest sentence was imposed on Edward Ruthenberg, a tailor, 37 years old, who said he lived at 648 East 138th Street. He was found guilty of stealing six pairs of socks, worth $8.34, from Macy's several weeks ago. Detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association informed Justices Kernochan, Herrman and Murphy that Ruthenberg previously had been convicted of store thefts. He was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Miss Elaine Boinnard, 30 years old, who said she was a governess and lived at Glen Cove, L. I., was sentenced to ten days in the Tombs when she was convicted of the theft of dresses worth $48.75 from Gimbel's.

A mother and daughter were fined $25 and sentenced to one day each in the Tombs when they were convicted of the theft of goods valued at $36.50 from Macy's on June 16. They said they were Mrs. Elizabeth Warner, 51 years old, and Emily Warner, 18 years old, of 127 Borem Street, Jersey City. Detectives said the daughter stole the goods and passed them to her mother.

A fine of $50 and two days' imprisonment in the Tombs were imposed on Mary Mandell, 23 years old, who said her home was at 167 Stanton Street, when she was convicted of the theft of goods worth $30.62 from Gimbel's last week.

SCOUTS TO HEAR PERSHING.

Governors Smith and Silzer Also to Attend Outdoor Council.

General John J. Pershing yesterday notified Chief Scout Executive James E. West at National Headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, 200 Fifth Avenue, that he would attend the thirteenth annual meeting of the National Scout Council.

The meeting will begin Monday and continue through Tuesday evening at the camp in Palisades Interstate Park, the world's largest camp for boys, conducted by the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York, of which Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, is President. This will be the first outdoor meeting of the National Council, whose members will eat camp "chow," sleep in tents and generally "rough" it. There will be 2,500 Boy Scouts on hand. Among the several hundred delegates will be bankers, Judges, Government officials, publishers and heads of big business interests from all parts of the country.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Colin H. Livingstone, President of the Boy Scouts of America; National Treasurer George D. Pratt and Scout Executive West will speak Monday at a luncheon at the Bear Mountain Inn. On Tuesday, General Pershing, Governor Smith and Governor Silzer of New Jersey will address the meeting.

SUES JUDGE FOR JAIL TERM.

Gary Man Asks $100,000 Damages for Being Wrongly Imprisoned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 6.—Dimitre Economoff, an attorney of Gary, Ind., filed suit in Circuit Court here today against Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States District Court, charging that he was illegally imprisoned for contempt of court. He asks $100,000 damages.

Economoff was sent to jail Oct. 4, 1922, when he failed to obey Judge Anderson's order that he return to Mike Zoran of Gary $650 which Economoff says was part of his fee for representing Zoran, who was in court on a charge of making counterfeit money.

The Gary attorney alleges that Judge Anderson ordered him to show cause why he should not return the fee. When he appeared ready to show cause, he alleges Judge Anderson refused to let him make his statement. The money was not returned, Economoff says, because the order was "arbitrary, tyrannical and illegal."

REVERSES WAR RISK AWARD.

Appeal Court Finds Standard Oil Tanker Lost by Marine Peril.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today set aside a war risk insurance award of $280,105 to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the loss of the tanker Llama in Westray Firth, off England, during the war.

While on a voyage to Copenhagen in October, 1915, the tanker hit a submerged rock, was stranded and subsequently sank. The United States had insured the tanker against war perils, but refused to pay the insurance on the ground the loss of the vessel was not due to a war element.

The Federal District Court of New Jersey awarded the Standard Oil Company $280,105, holding that the loss of the vessel came within the terms of the insurance policy, but the Court of Appeals ruled that it was due to a marine peril and to errors in navigation judgment of the masters and ordered the award set aside.

FLIGHT TO COAST PUT OFF.

Sunrise-to-Sunset Attempt Expected Tomorrow or Monday.

Because he deemed the weather unsatisfactory, Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan decided last night not to attempt his daybreak-to-nightfall flight from New York to San Francisco today. He is expected to start tomorrow or Monday morning.

Lieutenant Maughan made two flights yesterday at Mineola, L. I., testing last-minute changes in his Curtiss pursuit plane. The first flight lasted two hours and the second a half hour. Afterward the machine, which will not be flown again until the transcontinental "take-off," was placed under guard.

NEW DIAL PHONE EXCHANGE.

"Nevins" Will Be Opened in Brooklyn Tomorrow Morning.

"Nevins," New York City's sixth machine switching telephone central office, will be placed in operation in Brooklyn tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock by the New York Telephone Company.

This exchange at the outset will serve 1,500 telephones used by subscribers in the section between Fort Greene Park and Prospect Park. With the addition of "Nevins" telephones there will be 32,500 dial telephones in operation in the city.

New Home for Peace Foundation.

PARIS, July 6 (Associated Press).—New headquarters of the European Branch of the Carnegie Peace Foundation in the Boulevard St. Germain were opened tonight with a reception attended by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, who is also the American President of the Foundation.

Gives $100,000 for Canadian School.

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., July 6.—Mrs. Gilbert W. Ganong announced today that she would give this city $100,000 for the erection of a school building as a memorial to her husband, who was prominent in the official life of the province.

AUSTRALIAN ENVOY SEEKS MARKET HERE

New Commissioner Also Wants Capital for Tobacco and Cotton.

STRONG FOR 'WHITE' NATION

Mr. Mackinnon Declares Himself in Favor of the League as a Means Toward Peace.

Donald Mackinnon, the new Commissioner for Australia, who arrived in New York on Thursday night from Montreal, assumed his duties yesterday at the offices of the Australian Commission, at 44 Whitehall Street. He told newspaper men that his mission was to develop markets for the surplus production of his native country; to interest American capital in the development of cotton and tobacco growing and new industries to support the growing farming population of Australia; to promote good-will between the English-speaking peoples, and to offer the aid of Australia in the reconstruction of the economic structure of the world.

Commissioner Mackinnon said that he was opposed to the project, which will be discussed at the next Imperial Conference in London, to give separate diplomatic representation at Washington to the dominions of the British Empire. He asserted his belief that the best interests of both the Empire and the dominions would be served by the discussion of all diplomatic matters through the agencies of the British Embassy at Washington rather than through separate agencies for the dominions.

Was Attorney General of Victoria.

Mr. Mackinnon succeeds Sir Mark Sheldon in charge of Australian affairs here. Sir Mark Sheldon resigned in December, 1921, since which time there has been no Australian Commissioner here. During the war Mackinnon made a record for efficiency as Commonwealth Director for Recruiting. He has been Attorney General and Minister of Lands in the State of Victoria, and was at one time in the cheese-making business. He left Sydney on June 2 with his wife and daughter, and came here by way of Vancouver.

The new Commissioner is a strong advocate of the English-speaking union. He said yesterday that Walter Hines Page, the late American Ambassador in London, had expressed sentiments in favor of a "perfect understanding between the English-speaking peoples," which had great support in Australia.

Australians, he said, are very close to the British people, and that the fondness of the British and Australians for the same kind of sports was one of the strong bonds between them. The Australians were like the British, he said, in their love for cricket and football and horses. He added that the Australians play baseball, but not very well. An American who has been in Australia for five years told him shortly before he sailed that he was to be envied because he could see baseball. Another American sport which the Australians do not rate highly, Mr. Mackinnon intimated, was prohibition.

Approves League of Nations.

Commissioner Mackinnon said that Australia approved of the League of Nations. "The greatest thing Australia wants is peace," he declared. "We want anything that will bring peace to the world and think that peace and stability will come from greater co-operation among the English-speaking peoples of the world. There should be a greater community of interests between America and Australia, as there is between Australia and Great Britain." Discussing his mission here, the Commissioner said further:

"We especially look to the people of the North American continent, because they have common interests with us in the Pacific, and we Australians believe that our destiny, and to a large extent the future of mankind, will depend upon development in and around the Pacific Ocean. There is also a feeling that the people of the Pacific are very much in sympathy with each other and that the two branches of the Anglo-Saxon races will develop very much along the same lines. There is a marked similarity between the Californians and Australians. This is no doubt due to a large extent to climatic conditions.

"There is doubtless much interest in the United States regarding the determination of Australia to keep the Commonwealth white. Personally, I am convinced that the overwhelming majority of Australians are in favor of retaining what is known as the White Australian Policy. This is not only the policy of the worker, but it represents substantially the view of people of all classes.

Seeks Market for Surplus.

"Australia is looking the world over for markets for its surplus production. This is the real practical question for Australia now. We are looking for industries which will help to develop our vast territory. We are looking not only to England, but to the great Republic of America. For that reason we want the people of America to better understand us. We regard them as the most genuinely peace-loving people in the world, despite their great physical force, and we feel that, as a younger sister of the British race, we can look to them to co-operate in the advancement of universal peace. I have recently spent more than a year in Europe, having visited England, Germany, France and Italy, and I have seen something of the misery existing in those countries. I believe that the English-speaking people, whether in England or the United States, or in those growing British Dominions, have it in their hands to build an edifice of peace which will be enduring. This especially applies to those who are removed from the centre of trouble, such as Americans, Australians and Canadians.

"Australia is, of course, a country which lives upon its primary production. It is the greatest wool producing country in the world and, as that commodity is very scarce, it is commanding prices far beyond anything previously received. The same may be said of all our primary production, with the exception of beef, and many Australians are inclined to regard this as a temporary trouble. The workers of all classes are saving money, and savings banks' returns appear that one out of every two persons in Australia has a savings bank account. The workers for years past have been becoming their own land owners. Our external trade figures cover £402,000,000, or approximately $2,010,000,000, and while these figures may not appear much to Americans, the returns of Australia's per capita trade show that in 1901 our total trade was $120 per head; in 1912 it had risen to $170, while in 1921 it had reached the figure of $220 per head.

"An important part of my mission here will be to observe and to report to the Australian Government the possibility of developing such industries as these in our country. In this connection, I hope to be able personally to come in contact with the rural industries in this country, not only those dealing with the production of cotton and tobacco but all industries which seem to offer a fair prospect of success in Australia."

WIDE TROUSERS COMING.

Double-Breasted Coats Also Are Decreed for Men's Wear.

TORONTO, July 6.—Double-breasted coats, wide, straight trousers and shawl roll or shawl collar dinner jackets were decreed today as the fashions for next Winter by the Style Forecast Committee of the Clothing Designers of the United States and Canada in convention here.

Sack coats will be lower waisted, with normal shoulders and peaked lapels. Cuts or sport coats will have fewer pleat and less yoke embellishment. Box back overcoats with set-in sleeves and two-piece belts will be worn next Winter, it was stated.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERICAL PAPER.

Yesterday .....5 per cent. for the best names.
Thursday .....5 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Did Well Out of Town.

Staple lines of hosiery for Spring have been sold in considerable quantity by local selling agents who have been in Chicago and the Middle West during the last two weeks calling on the trade, the special news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers will say today. In many cases the orders were booked in substantial quantities on a blanket basis, with details to be forwarded in the near future. The merchandise is offered at prices on a par with those at which the bulk of the Fall merchandise was sold, and are about 5 to 10 per cent. higher than the corresponding quotations of a year ago.

Lightweight Openings Beginning.

By the end of next week the greater part of the showings of men's wear tropicals by the independent concerns, it is believed, will be completed. Some of the leading mills making these cloths have been showing their lines sub rosa to important buyers, and one or two have officially opened. The openings to come, however, will mark the real beginning of the lightweight season in men's wear. The largest factor in the trade, it was thought yesterday, will be the staples and the all wool cloths. The fancy worsteds will follow later. No definite indication of what prices will be named has as yet come out, although the entire market will be governed thereby. The impression prevails that close figures will be named, the advance not exceeding 10 per cent.

The Manufacturer Loses.

Another instance in which a manufacturer stands to lose quite a little money as a result of the operations of an inexperienced resident buyer came to light yesterday. About six weeks ago the buyer in question bought a number of white dresses, meant principally for graduation wear, for a store in a prominent New England city. The store, according to the manufacturer, was a surprisingly good one to have a buyer of that type giving it his service. The buyer concentrated more or less on certain styles which the manufacturer did not think were suited to the type of general merchandise the store carried, but the buyer would not listen. That the latter was wrong was shown when nearly the whole shipment came back a few days ago. The failure of the store to return the goods promptly was the hardest blow of all, as the dresses, if sold at all now, will have to be practically given away.

Gray Goods Still Dull.

Gray goods continued to show very little life in this market yesterday, with no important trading. Eleven cents was the best that buyers of printcloths could do on 39-inch 68-72s, but some second-hand 38½-inch 64-60s were reported available as low as 9¼ cents. No sales were reported at this price, but the goods are known to have moved at 9⅝ cents from second hands. First hands were said to be willing to take 9½ cents for them. In the sheetings there were some scattered business done in lightweight goods on the basis of 7¾ cents for 36-inch 5.50s and 8¼ cents for 5-yard sheetings of the same width. The rest of the market was devoid of interest.

***

Black Once More Leading.

In the variety of colors which are competing for favor in Fall garments, black again seems to be headed for leadership in coats of pile sheen woolens. This staple shade, however, is thought likely to be hard pressed by grays of the squirrel order to harmonize with the fur trimmings that will be used. Taus and browns follow. In other fabrics, greens are being pushed forward for various types of coats and some suits. Particular stress is being placed on bottle green and the myrtle shade. Leading couturiers abroad, it is pointed out, have ranked the former very high and some of the foremost style houses here are giving them considerable attention. Navy will again be a leading staple in dress goods.

To Show Spring Lines Tuesday.

At one of the best attended meetings of the Associated Knit Underwear Manufacturers of America for some time, held yesterday at the Hotel Woodstock, the decision was reached to open Spring lines of ribbed and balbriggan underwear on Tuesday next. The goods, however, will probably be presented to buyers generally on Monday. Some lines have already been displayed in a quiet way. A number of important Jobbing buyers will be in the market in the near future to attend the coming semi-annual meeting of their association, and it was said that the opening date in question was chosen with the idea of giving them time to study the market before the meeting takes place. In view of the present cotton situation and the dilatory buying methods of the last several seasons, it would not surprise many mill agents if the initial buying were small.

Raw Silk Consumption Increases.

While imports of raw silk during June fell off a substantial increase in consumption was indicated in figures issued yesterday by the Silk Association of America. Imports during the month totaled 26,727 bales, the smallest since April, 1922. In March there were 25,814 bales. Approximate deliveries to American mills, indicating consumption, were 27,824 bales, as compared with 24,500 bales in May. Stocks on hand in local warehouses on July 1 amounted to 25,865 bales, against 29,962 in storage on the first of the preceding month.

Waiting on the Coal Conference.

With the hard coal operators and miners assembling at Atlantic City for the wage conference on which so much depends, the trade is, figuratively speaking, holding its breath. Seward's Journal will say today that the weight of opinion is that if a shutdown is avoided the demand for anthracite will abate to such an extent during September and October that premiums will probably disappear, except possibly on stove coal. That is pre-eminently the most active size just now. Egg is also wanted in excess of the supply, but the shortage is less pronounced and is confined chiefly to the sidewater market. In the bituminous trade the present week has not been productive of much business, owing principally to the holiday interruption.

Look for Activity in Garments.

Garment wholesalers here look for the beginning of showroom activity for Fall to take place during next week. Up to the present most of the business taken has been on the road, but from now on an increasing number of buyers of merchandise for next season are scheduled to arrive. The initial business will be slow in developing, it is thought, and it may be well toward the end of this month before buying gets into its stride. The holding of the merchandise fair at that date, it is expected, will be an influence toward this. Of the buying that has been done to date one feature is that rather late shipping dates have been requested. This trend is being given considerable attention and will, it is said, have the effect of making manufacturers go still slower on the cutting-up of goods beyond what an immediate outlet is seen for. The same disposition has also found its way back to the mills, and recent buying of dress goods, with only a few exceptions, has been of a conservative nature. A pick-up is expected as soon as cutting begins actively around July 15.

Much Embroidery Will Be Used.

From present indications the use of embroidery for garments will again be stressed this Fall. Most of the models in nearly all of the representative coat and suit lines of local wholesalers have this form of decoration developed in various ways. Dresses and, to a lesser extent, separate skirts likewise come in for this treatment. Many garments for young girls and smaller children are also included among those for which embroidery is favored. Considerable vogue is also indicated for soutache braids and trimmings, owing to the accentuation of pockets and similar style details.

BUSINESS NOTES.

According to an announcement made yesterday by M. B. Synan, official representative in this country of the Australian Department of Trade and Customs, deferred duties on the following have been still further postponed to Dec. 31: Airplanes, metal cordage, except aluminum and explosives.

By mutual agreement, relations between Meens Brothers, makers of negligees, 45 East Twentieth Street, and Frank E. Gallagher have been severed.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

More Declines Again Than Advances, But Few Changes of Note.

Compared with last week, the excess of declines over advances in Dun's current list of wholesale commodities prices was considerably smaller, but still liberal. Fifty-nine of the eighty-two changes shown were downward, while seventy-four recessions were seen in last week's eighty-nine revisions. In the corresponding week last year there were fifty-seven fluctuations, and of these only twenty were declines. Not many features were seen in the current week's changes.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities prices. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

Twenty-six of the week's changes were seen in the foodstuffs, in which there were twelve advances. At least half of these changes, however, were seen in the minor foods, such as spices and dried fruits. The listed flours showed no change in the local provisions market, nor did hams and bacon. Middle Western lard advanced here. At Chicago live hogs and short ribs went up, while live steers and mess pork declined. Live sheep showed no change.

The dairy products were more unsettled than usual, the various grades of butter showing declines ranging from half a cent to a cent a pound. Cheese was unchanged. Nearby fancy eggs rose 3 cents a dozen, but are still slightly under the corresponding price for 1922. Fresh-gathered "firsts" advanced 1½ cents.

Four declines were seen in the list for dried fruits, the fresh ones showing no changes. Apricots, fancy citron, peaches and prunes contributed the drops, with advances seen in lemon and orange peel. Choice pea and choice red kidney beans were lower, and the only other change in the vegetables was a further rise of 25 cents a barrel in potatoes.

Teas continued to show no change, but both the basic grades of Brazilian coffee dropped still further. Mace, cloves and ginger supplied the advances in the spices, with the only decline seen in white pepper. The best raw sugar advanced again this week, but there was no corresponding rise in fine granulated.

Malting barley was the only item in the grain list to advance this week, the declines being shown in wheat, corn, oats and straw. The leather list was unchanged at the recent decline, and the only revisions in the hides were a rise in No. 1 extremes and a drop in No. 1 kips.

Poplar advanced in the lumber list, with declines seen in white pine, birch, maple and pine air-dried roofers. Fewer changes in the metals were seen than for some time. They consisted only of a rise in spelter and declines in copper, lead and tin. In the building material a rise in Hudson River brick contrasted with a break in Eastern spruce lath.

Pitch was higher in the naval stores, with turpentine again showing a decline. In the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils four of the eighteen changes were advances. Of the fourteen declines, eleven were in the oils, which was about the only feature of the week in this part of the general list.

The miscellaneous changes of the week, included lower prices for both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers, as well as Chinese and Japanese raw silks. One advance and a number of declines were seen in the domestic wools listed.

The week in the textile markets was without feature. The interruption of the holiday kept trading light, and the only changes reported in cotton goods were downward. Burlaps, though quiet, took on a slightly firmer tone in sympathy with the better feeling reported from Calcutta.

BUSINESS PROPERTIES.

Investor Purchases the Harding Building.

Maurice Forman and Wolf Forman have sold the Harding Building at 147 to 151 West Thirty-fifth Street, which is 66.8 by 100 feet and six stories in height. It is opposite R. H. Macy & Co.

This is the former Hotel Sturtevant, formerly owned by the Edwin Gould interests, and was remodeled by the Forman brothers in 1921 into a business building.

It is understood that the new owners have purchased this property for investment.

The price paid for this parcel by the purchasers is understood to be close to $400,000.

Steinberg & Pokolk have sold to Henry Schultz the modern six-story and basement fireproof business building located at 256-258 West 36th Street, in the heart of the garment centre. In order to procure possession of the building it was necessary to buy out the tenant and sub-tenants with leases having 15 years to run, the cost of the building and procuring possession amounting to nearly $200,000. The broker was Neason Jones.

Private House Sales.

Layne H. Morris sold 145 West Seventy-fifth Street, between Amsterdam and Columbus Avenues, a five-story American basement, altered dwelling, 20 by 56 by 102.2, to a client of James P. Walden for investment.

The Houghton Company sold for Ethel Quinn the four-story dwelling 51 West Sixty-eighth Street on a lot 19 by 100.5. The buyer will occupy.

$1,900,000 for New Buildings.

Plans for office buildings were filed yesterday with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings as follows: Thirty-fifth Street, 240 to 248 West, for a seventeen-story, offices, &c., 100 by 98; Weinstein Holding Company, owner; C. B. Meyers, architect; $1,000,000.

Forty-fifth Street, 239 to 245 West, for a seventeen-story, offices, &c., 90 by 98.9; K. R. K. Corporation, owner; C. B. Meyers, architect; $900,000.

Waterfront Auction Today.

At 2 P. M. today Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., will hold an auction of 300 waterfront lots and two bungalows at Bay Colony, Baldwin Harbor, L. I. Bathing beach privileges go with every lot, while many lots have riparian rights. Most of the lots have water and electricity, with the balance of the water mains guaranteed.

To Build on the West Side.

As a sight for a twelve-story building for light manufacturing purposes, the two five-story tenements at 215 and 217 West Fortieth Street, on a plot 50 by 100, were sold by Miss Rose Haberman to Samuel Hoffman. Bastine & Co. were the brokers.

Apartment for Cooper Street Plot.

Charles F. Noyes Company sold for the 476 Broadway Corporation to James H. Cruikshank a plot 100 by 100 at 26 to 32 Cooper Street, which will be offered for resale for an apartment improvement.

To Investigate Tariff on Logs.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Tariff Commission has ordered an investigation into production costs and other data bearing on import duties on logs of fir, spruce, cedar or Western hemlock, and announced today it had set August 3 as the date for a preliminary hearing on the rates.

TENEMENT HOUSE DEALS.

Trading Indicates Demand for Multi-family Houses.

John J. Hoeckh, Inc., sold for Theresa Arthen property 445 West Forty-sixth Street, a four-story tenement, on lot 24.2 by 100. The adjoining owner is the buyer.

C. M. Folsom & Co. sold to a client the five-story triple apartment house at 206 St. Nicholas Avenue, held at $40,000. The A. Kane Company represented the sellers.

The J. M. Kelly Company sold 617 West 152d Street, a five-story apartment house, 50 by 100, containing twenty families, renting for $16,500, held at $95,000.

The same brokers sold 2,364 Eighth Avenue, a five-story single cold water flat, 25 by 100, eight families and one store, held at $43,000; also 220 West 123d Street, a three-story double, 16.8 by 100, to Grace Cassidy, for occupancy, from J. Segal, held at $15,500.

Henry Brady has sold for Sophie Meyer the five-story brick tenement at 161 West Sixty-third Street to the Alva Realty Company.

EAST SIDE RETAIL SITE.

Keith Interests Buy Lexington Avenue Corner.

Norman S. Riesenfeld and Joseph F. A. O'Donnell resold the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street, 100 by 100 feet, held at $400,000, to a corporation representing the Keith Theatrical interests. It is understood the Keith interests have also bought the Eighty-sixth Street corner and will improve the entire block front with a theatre.

The site just sold is improved with flat houses and was held through L. J. Phillips & Co.

Suburban Home Buyers.

John Templeton sold through Fish & Marvin a new house on Stella Avenue at Pelham Manor to B. V. Woodward of New York City. The property was held at $17,000.

The same brokers sold the Fuhr estate on Lincoln Avenue, Rye, consisting of twenty-eight acres and residence, to E. C. Fink of New York City. The property has been in the family for over fifty years.

S. Lichterman Agency sold for Jacob Straus a brick dwelling on the west side of Beach 117th Street, Rockaway Park; for Francis Dunn three lots on Beach 130th Street, Belle Harbor; for Katherine Whalen three lots on Beach 138th Street, Belle Harbor.

George O. Telmany sold through the Multiple Listing Exchange, Moffatt & Schwab of Tompkinsville, S. I., listing broker, and John G. Quigley, selling broker, his lot on Oxford Place, Battery View Park, to Isidore Horowitz.

Trading in Brooklyn.

The Rahb Construction Company sold to operators the six six-family houses at Seventy-fifth Street and Nineteenth Avenue, Bensonhurst, valued at $175,000. Harry Bobker was the broker.

William Liss, Inc., sold for Wohard Realty Corporation to J. Chopp, the northwest corner of Kings Highway and East Eighth Street, being 120 feet on Kings Highway by 112 feet on East Eighth Street by 148 feet in depth, consisting of three taxpayers on Kings Highway and a two-family house and gasoline station on East Eighth Street, with a rental of about $6,000. The property was sold for $63,000.

Le Bel Construction Corporation sold ten houses in process of completion at Eighty-second Street and Sixth Avenue. The property was held at $300,000. I. Blum was the broker.

Purchase East Side House.

Myers & Goldstone purchased from Elizabeth Dempsey the four-story brownstone apartment house at 117 East Ninety-second Street, on a plot 32.7 by 100.

The house stands in the centre of a 100-foot plottage, near Park Avenue, where many fireproof apartment houses are now being erected.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Builder Buys Riverside Drive Corner as Site for Big Apartment House.

A $3,000,000 INVESTMENT

West Side House, Valued at $725,000, In Resale—George H. Weber Sells The Sutherland.

The southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 115th Street, a plot of nine lots with a frontage of 126 feet and a depth of 200 feet, has been purchased by Joseph Paterno, builder, from Robert Walton Goelet. The site will be improved with an apartment house that will represent a total investment of $3,000,000.

The plot, which is the largest in single ownership in that section, has been in possession of the selling family since 1860. It was valued at $450,000, the brokers in the sale being Wood, Dolson Co. and Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co.

Louis Kramer resold the twelve-story apartment house at 150 West Seventy-ninth Street, which he bought a couple of months ago from Edgar A. Levy and valued at $275,000. The new owner is an investor. The sale was arranged by Slawson & Hobbs as brokers. The structure stands on a site 84 by 102.2 and is laid out in suites of nine and ten rooms, comprising duplex and simplex apartments and returning an annual rental of approximately $110,000. The building was designed by Schwartz & Gross, architects, and was erected ten years ago by Mr. Levy.

Sells the Sutherland.

Irving H. Wolfe, as broker, sold for George H. Weber to the Ronda Realty Company, Goldfein & Weltfisch directors, the Sutherland, at 810 Riverside Drive, northeast corner of 158th Street, a nine-story and basement fireproof apartment house, on a plot 83 by 114, irregular. The house contains thirty-five apartments of four, five, six, seven, eight and ten rooms. The rental is $60,000, and the building was held at $400,000.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Operator Buys Three Garages Under Construction.

Nathan Wilson purchased from the Crotona Improvement Company, Inc., Louis Laening, President, the northeast corner Whitlock Avenue and 149th Street, consisting of 60,000 square feet, on which there is now in course of construction three one-story garages having a frontage of 490.98 on Whitlock Avenue by 224.22 on East 149th Street by 400.64 on Austin Place by 41.33 in rear.

The property was held at $275,000. Edward J. Maier & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

Harry Cahn, operator and builder, sold to Samuel G. Weisman and Thomas Merrit, the five-story new law apartment with stores, known as 963 Prospect Avenue, on plot 40 by 195, held at $70,000. David Frankenthal was the broker who negotiated the sale.

Joseph Sager purchased from S. Berlin a five-story apartment house at 797 Crotona Park North, 50 by 100, accommodating twenty families, divided into four and five room apartments, held for $78,000. S. Garmize was the broker.

Joseph Sager sold to Morris Perlstein the five-story apartment house at 796 East 175th Street, on a plot 45 by 100; contains suites of four, five and six rooms on a floor. It shows an annual rental of about $12,500. It was held for $80,000. Samuel L. Aronds was the broker.

Philip A. Payton Jr. Company sold to a client a 2½-story stucco building at 250th Street and Old Albany Post Road, on plot 82 by 94, irregular.

B. J. and L. V. Weil sold to Bertwal Realty Corporation 627 to 631 East 137th Street, two six-story apartments on a plot 75 by 100, held at $130,000.

The newly formed Rosal Realty, Inc., with A. R. and F. Fatterson and R. Frankel as directors, has purchased the plot 125 by 127, irregular, at the northwest corner of Harrison Avenue and 180th Street, from the Tee Taw Realty Corporation. The buying company intends to erect an apartment house to cost about $200,000.

ASTOR ESTATE SELLS SITE.

Entire Block Front on Avenue A in a Resale.

The Farmers Loan and Trust Company, as trustee for William Waldorf Astor, sold to Match & Halper, real estate operators, the entire block front on the easterly side of Avenue A, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, and several vacant lots adjoining the same on the east. Maxwell Gelberg and Morris R. Stang were the brokers.

The buildings erected on said plot are 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90 and 92 Avenue A, consisting of four-story tenement and stores.

Maxwell Gelberg resold said property for Match & Halper to the 74-92 Avenue A Realty Corporation, who are improving the premises for various tenants, chiefly furniture and rug concerns, under long term leases. Mr. Gelberg, on behalf of the present owner, has effected several long term leases on the premises. He has also procured a mortgage loan exceeding $200,000 covering the property.

$400,000 Loan Placed.

Plans were completed yesterday by the Yellow Taxi Realty Corporation of New York for an extensive expansion of their service stations in New York and Philadelphia. In connection with these new building operations and improvements S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a $400,000 issue of first mortgage 6½ per cent., one to fifteen year, serial coupon bonds. The borrowing corporation has leased one service station to the Yellow Taxicab Company of New York and two to the Yellow Cab Company of Philadelphia, for a period of fifteen years.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Co. has made a building and permanent loan of $100,000 at 6 per cent. for five years to the Borco Realty Co. on the plot 100 by 100 at the northeast corner of Lincoln Avenue and 137th Street. A 3½-story business building is now being erected on the site.

National Guard Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 6.—These National Guard orders were bulletined in the office of the Adjutant General today:

Authority for Capt. W. J. Graham, 39 Bn. N.M., to proceed from Rochester to New York City for consultation at headquarters concerning matters connected with the cruise of U. S. S. Sturgeon Bay and Subchasers 431, 433 and 437 is given and pay of grade is authorized.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The weather map of Friday night showed relatively high pressure over the Southeastern States and thence eastward over the Atlantic Ocean, also over the region north of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Valley, while in all other districts the barometric pressure was comparatively low, with centres of depression over the Canadian Maritime Provinces, Northern Manitoba and the Middle Rocky Mountain and plateau region.

Showers and thunderstorms have been rather general in the last twenty-four hours over the Northern States east of the Rocky Mountains, along the Gulf Coast and over the Southern Rocky Mountain plateau region, and rain also has fallen over the Pacific Northwest. In some cases the thunder showers were attended by winds of gale force.

The temperature has fallen over the New England States. Elsewhere no changes of importance have occurred.

The outlook is for generally partly cloudy showery weather Saturday and Sunday in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee and the Ohio Valley and the southern lower lake region. With the exception of somewhat higher temperatures over the northern portion of the North Atlantic states, no changes of importance are indicated during the next forty-eight hours.

HYLAN HITS CRITICS OF POLICE AND CHIEF

CUVILLIER IS ATTACKED

Underworld Interests Helped by Part of Press, He Declares in Letter to Commissioner.

Mayor John F. Hylan, before leaving for Saratoga yesterday, made public a letter to Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, reiterating his faith in the present police régime and attacking the critics of the department.

The letter, which is a reply to one sent to the Mayor by Commissioner Enright, following the adjournment of the Crain police hearing, at which two detectives admitted that they had testified falsely, follows:

"Your letter received. The attacks to which the police have been subjected in their enforcement of law and order are not altogether surprising. It is a notorious fact that the bootleggers, gamblers and underworld fraternity have many newspaper sympathizers. That lawless element is known to be quite liberal with its ill-gotten gains.

"The attacks of the newspapers upon you personally and the men of the Police Department have a special object in the Corrigan-Cuvillier case. When you started proceedings against Corrigan and Cuvillier, which would have given them an opportunity to demonstrate the truth or falsity of their wild assertions, I felt quite sure that some of the newspapers, sympathetically inclined toward them, would start a back-fire in the hope of placing the police on the defensive instead of Corrigan and Cuvillier. Such newspapers know, of course, that if Corrigan and Cuvillier be found guilty of the charges set forth in your libel action against them, the newspapers themselves, which printed the libel, would likewise be liable.

Calls It Mock Indignation.

"Cuvillier continues to make sensational assertions daily. The stories with which he may have been wont to regale his companions at places of public refreshment he now serves up to the general public. Undoubtedly, he misses the corner saloon, with its sawdust and rail, which will never return.

"It was necessary for the District Attorney to call sharply to his attention the instance of the individual whom Cuvillier insisted the police were annoying. The police found it necessary to proceed against this man because it was alleged he was fostering vice in a crowded tenement house. Cuvillier, nevertheless, continued to maintain an attitude of mock indignation.

"Again, the District Attorney of Richmond was obliged to give Cuvillier a few facts about another case of police activity. Cuvillier took up the cudgels for a World War veteran who, he claims, was assaulted by the police while waiting outside a church. This particular veteran, according to the District Attorney, had been dishonorably discharged from the service and constituted one of a gang loitering near the church whom the clergyman requested the police to drive away; and that the dishonorably discharged veteran did not hesitate to severely attack the police officer from behind. Would Mr. Cuvillier have the police pay no attention to disorderly groups on the justifiable complaints of clergymen?

"The space devoted to the mouthings of Cuvillier by the very newspapers which have conspicuously displayed his many absurd allegations suggests a common newspaper authorship, with Cuvillier as the bow to shoot the verbal arrows prepared for him in a studied attempt to stir up and excite public opinion against the police.

"It is a Magistrate's duty under the law to inquire whether a crime has been committed, and, if there be probable cause to believe that the person charged with the crime is guilty, the defendant should be held for the action of the Grand Jury or the Court of Special Sessions. It is my opinion that the Court could very properly request Cuvillier, the defendant, as it requested you, the plaintiff, to take the witness stand immediately and tell all he knows.

Praises Police Force.

"The day-to-day tasks of the police are difficult enough. They will be rendered more difficult if newspapers are to take up every isolated case of police activity called to their attention by insincere noise-makers and make it appear as though harsh and oppressive measures were being adopted where not warranted. The bad effect on the morale of the department can readily be appreciated. The false cry of persecution raised by the underworld fraternity should not be broadcasted the length and breadth of the city, giving new heart to the lawless and impeding effective police action.

"In a body of about 12,000 men there may be those who do not perform their duties faithfully and well; taken as a whole, the police officers of this city surpass in honesty any body of any class of men in the civilized world. I don't care what their trade or profession may be.

"I know that you are able to and will cope with any wrongdoing that may occur in the Police Department; but your efforts in keeping this city clean of vice and other forms of lawlessness would be greatly aided if there were extended the same complete cooperation by all governmental branches that deal with criminals as is extended by the District Attorneys of the various counties.

"Bootleggers, gamblers and underworld interests would like to lift the lid from the City of New York. You have effectually kept down that lid. If the vicious interests in their sordid attempts to lift that lid are aided by a portion of our press, it is well for the people to know where the responsibility lies in order that it may be placed squarely where it belongs."

CUVILLIER DEMANDS INQUIRY.

Gives War Record of Man Accused of Assaulting Policeman.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, in a letter yesterday to District Attorney Joseph Maloy of Richmond, renewed his demand for an investigation into the arrest of Thomas Coronato Jr. and his brother Francis at Rosebank, S. I., on June 10.

Mr. Cuvillier had asked that Mr. Maloy look into the charge that Coronato had been attacked by a policeman without provocation while he and other members of the Holy Name Society were assembling for church services. The patrolman, according to the police reports, was beaten by a "gang" when he tried to make Coronato and others move from a corner.

The Assemblyman's letter is in reply to one from Mr. Maloy to the effect that he had decided after investigation to take no action against the policeman. Coronato has been held for the Grand Jury on a charge of assaulting the officer.

After restating Coronato's version of the affair, Mr. Cuvillier in his letter replies to Mr. Maloy's statements regarding Coronato's war record, in which reference was made to court-martial proceedings for some breach of discipline, by referring to Coronato's military record, which, Mr. Cuvillier says, shows that Coronato was honorably discharged as sergeant of Company C, Ninth Infantry, at Camp Upton, March 5, 1919; that he received the Croix de Guerre with three citations, the Victory medal with five battle clasps and two division citations, was promoted to platoon sergeant, graduated from the Army Candidates' School for Commissioned Officers and was wounded at Champagne.

Enclosed in the letter, Mr. Cuvillier said, was one from the Rev. Father A. Cattoglo, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, dated June 15, 1923, stating that he had known Thomas Coronato for the last ten years and that during these years "he has been a quiet member of the community, where he is well thought of. Owing to the young men of his age, Coronato was elected President of the Holy Name Society."

"So you can well appreciate after my investigation that the statements made by the police are not correct, as usual," the letter continues. "Of course, the 'system' must be protected, but, thank God, we have a trial by jury in which citizens can differentiate between perjury and the truth. I am sure that when this case is tried the jury will acquit the defendant.

"I suggested a few days ago to District Attorney Banton of New York County that the District Attorneys in the respective counties of Greater New York should have a bureau of police brutality, where citizens who are beaten up without the least provocation can go."

CORRIGAN IS REVERSED.

Policeman Convicted of Disorderly Conduct Gets New Trial.

The conviction of Policeman Patrick Lennon before Magistrate Corrigan, of disorderly conduct on Jan. 26, 1922, was reversed by the Appellate Division yesterday, and a new trial ordered "on such a charge as the District Attorney is advised should be lodged against the defendant."

Magistrate Corrigan was sitting in Jefferson Market Court when Lennon brought in Owen W. Watkins and charged him with disorderly conduct. Watkins alleged that Lennon had arrested him without cause in a restaurant and that he was beaten by the policeman on the way to the station house. The Magistrate directed that a charge of disorderly conduct be lodged against the policeman, and had the case transferred to Essex Market, where he next sat. He found Lennon guilty and sentenced him to thirty days in jail, but when the case came before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions, on appeal, the sentence was reduced to the one day the policeman had served before he appealed.

Justice McAvoy, who wrote the unanimous opinion of the Appellate Division, said:

"Whatever the merits of the action I do not think the defendant can be said to have had a fair trial. The Magistrate who presided indicated before he began the trial of the defendant his prejudgment of the defendant's guilt. His remarks indicate that, because he thought there would be some difficulty in convicting the defendant of perjury he ought to try him for disorderly conduct, so that he surely would be punished. Where a judge exercised both the functions of court and jury he should be scrupulous to avoid even the appearance of partiality.

"Throughout the trial the Magistrate's statements and remarks evince a prejudgment of guilty and an indication of bias against the defendant. The character of the testimony, such as it was here, and the type of witness the complainant proved to be, each gives rise to the claim that a possible doubt exists in the evidence which an impartial judge ought to hear and determine."

Tells of Blue Meteor With Red Tail.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The prize—if there was one—for the outstanding contribution to marine phenomena reported during the current week to the Naval Hydrographic office, would go to Captain R. D. Robbins, master of the British ship Managui. An immense meteor "of brilliant blue color, with a wake of what appeared to be red fire," was observed during a recent trip down the Atlantic coast, the skipper said, his ship being at that time about opposite Savannah, Ga. The glare was so intense, the report continued, that the Managui and the surrounding sea were vividly illuminated in purple for several minutes.

NO TRACE OF SLAYER OF GIRL GOVERNESS

PUZZLED OVER THE MOTIVE

Articles of Value Left Undisturbed by Assailant—Suspect Arrested and Freed.

Although an intensive search has been made by the Westchester authorities, aided by the State police, the identity of the slayer of Dorothy Kauffman, pretty Mennonite governess, in the home of Magruder Craighead, near Scarsdale, remained a mystery last night. The body of the young woman, found in her bedroom with eight knife wounds early Tuesday morning, yesterday was sent to the home of her parents at Westover, a Maryland community of seventy residents.

Captain McQuillan of the Greenburgh police has received additional information which leads him to the belief that the murderer was a negro. Mrs. Harold Schlesinger, who lives in Greenville Road, a mile and a half east of the Craighead home told him that about noon on Tuesday a negro entered her yard and called to her as she was standing in a second floor window. She said he asked for employment as a chauffeur, and a job as laundress for his wife. She told him to go to the home of E. C. Eylar in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Schlesinger said he returned in twenty minutes, saying he had a position at the Eylar home, but that she later learned that the Eylars had not seen the man. She described the negro as being of medium dark complexion, about five feet nine inches in height, apparently of middle-age, and wearing a suit of brown mixture and a fedora hat to match, which he did not take off while talking to her. Mrs. Schlesinger's description tallies with that given by Charles Baldwin, a negro farmhand, who said he saw a man eating crackers about 1 o'clock on Tuesday, who two hours later walked away from the vicinity of the Craighead home. Captain McQuillan has established that the murder occurred within this time.

The authorities are puzzled as to the motive of the crime. There was no evidence that the murderer had contemplated robbery, as articles of value belonging to Miss Kauffman and the Craighead family were undisturbed. This suggested to Captain McQuillan the theory that Miss Kauffman might have been killed by a jealous admirer. He is making an effort to learn details of Miss Kauffman's life in the communities where she formerly lived.

James Clark, a negro, who was found by the police on a motor van leaving Scarsdale for New York, was detained by Captain McQuillan and questioned after residents of Egremont had said they had seen him loitering in the vicinity. The driver of the van said that Clark had asked for a ride to the city. The negro was freed when he had proved that he was a carpenter seeking employment.
